

Chicago spared in nationwide Teamsters' strike

by LEA TONKIN

The Chicago area apparently was spared a local Teamsters' strike today as truckers in Eastern cities began to pull their rigs off the road, starting the first nationwide Teamsters strike in history.

There were indications, however, that many drivers would continue to work under temporary agreements, including truckers in the Chicago area.

Louis Pelck, representing Chicago Teamsters Local 705, said Chicago-area leaders have been told to line up agreements with local employers. Another Chicago union official said he expected 80 per cent of the 40,000 area truckers to work under interim agreements.

A Teamsters official said drivers in Detroit, New York, and Columbus, Ohio, went on strike at 12:01 a.m., Eastern time. There are 400,000 Teamsters affected by the negotiations.

As the midnight deadline approached, national union leaders told local union officials to negotiate their own contracts or "shut 'em down at midnight."

The union negotiators also offered the trucking industry an interim three-year contract offer.

The proposed offer calls for a total of $1.75 in wage hikes during the next three years; three cents a mile allowances increase; and $17-a-week hike in health, welfare and pension contributions.

THE TAKE-IT-OR-LEAVE-IT deal offered the Trucking Employers Inc. was simple: Sign the contract or face a strike at 12:01 a.m. today. Pickets were scheduled to be up early this morning if the interim pact was not signed.

The trucking industry's original offer was to boost the $7.18 to $7.33 hourly truckers' wage 85 cents during the next three years. In addition, over-the-road truckers were offered a two-cents hike to the present 18-cent-a-mile allowance limit during the next three years.

The employers also originally offered an $11-a-week increase in the current $44-a-week contribution to the health, welfare and pension fund.

Labor Sec. W. J. Usery was sitting in on marathon negotiating sessions between the Teamsters and the trucking industry at the Arlington Park Hilton Hotel in Arlington Heights.

HIGH HOPES FOR a settlement covering more than 400,000 drivers and warehousemen across the country faded as the time grew shorter.

A Teamsters' strike — the first nationwide walkout by the giant union yet — could have a crippling effect on many segments of the nation's sputtering economy. The Teamsters involved haul 60 per cent of the nation's manufactured goods.

Even if a last-minute agreement were reached, there were calls for wildcat walkouts.

Teamster officials from Pennsylvania and Oklahoma said locals were being advised throughout the nation to seek a local settlement with their individual employers outside the master agreement. Teamsters terms were to remain intact.

THE OKLAHOMA OFFICIAL said he was instructing (Continued on Page 15)

Money mayhem statewide dilemma

A Herald staff report

Northwest suburban communities and municipalities throughout Illinois are facing hard times, a situation which is affecting everything from street sweeping to possible increases in property taxes.

Locally, governmental leaders are tightening the belt on spending — eliminating some programs, rejecting requests for personnel increases and limiting wage increases to about 6 per cent, in most cases.

It is not a crisis, but it is becoming increasingly difficult for revenue to keep up with the spiraling costs of operations, finance directors say.

The common objective in the new fiscal year is to provide existing services without an increase in costs. Financial worry and penny-pinching is evident throughout the state.

"WE'RE JUST having a hell of a time keeping up," said Peoria Assistant City Mgr. A. Fred Timmerman.

"For example, we buy something like 500,000 gallons of gasoline a year. It was 20 to 22 cents a gallon several years ago (without tax). Now we're paying 40 to 42 cents a gallon."

The result in Peoria, Timmerman said, will be a property tax rate increase of 14 or 14½ cents per $100 of assessed valuation this year, which will allow the town's $19 million budget to be balanced. It also will allow a 7 per cent pay hike for the city's 800 employees.

The situation is worse in towns that have been hit hard by unemployment because when people are out of work they buy fewer goods and their communities get less sales tax.

MOST NORTHWEST suburban communities have managed to balance their books this year, but Mount Prospect is facing a deficit of $400,000 and Elk Grove Village has been forced to make some large cuts in spending since last October when a deficit of $270,000 was projected.

Mount Prospect Village Pres. Robert D. Teichert Wednesday said it is "not a panic situation."

"The problem is more severe in the minds of the people than it is in fact," he said.

Tuesday night, the Mount Prospect Village Board voted to impose on residents a $4 per month direct garbage collection charge. It is hoped the new (Continued on Page 10)

Magnus to start work in summer

Alexander Magnus said Wednesday he plans to begin construction of a 132-unit housing development for the elderly this summer on Central Road, between Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect.

He described it as "phase one" for the development of the 42-acre Magnus Farm property in Wheeling Township.

No long-range plans for the site have been made. The eventual size of the development will depend on "need and what the public wants," he said.

MAGNUS HAS BEEN unable to get building permits for the project since he applied for them in January, because the two villages objected to the property being developed at 17 units per acre.

But Cook County Circuit Court Judge Raymond Berg ruled Monday that the 17-unit per acre zoning should be retained, although the county's new zoning ordinance calls for a density of eight units per acre.

Arlington Heights and Mount Prospect had asked that the 42-acre nursing home site be zoned for single-family development, subject to a special use for retirement and convalescent homes.

Arlington Heights Village Atty. Jack Siegel said he will recommend to the village board Monday that Judge Berg's decision be appealed, but Mount Prospect Village Pres. Robert D. Teichert said his village will accept the (Continued on Page 5)

April Fool pranks perpetuate an historic tradition

by JILL BETTNER

Better taste the white stuff in the sugar bowl before dumping a big spoonful in your morning coffee. Think twice about going through a week's worth of trash to find that lottery ticket a friend says is worth $1 million. In fact, just to be safe, don't believe half of what anybody tells you all day today.

It's April Fool's Day, beloved holiday of tricksters and practical jokers everywhere and the bane of all the gullible, trusting souls who inevitably become their victims.

Nobody is quite sure how April Fool's Day got started, but although the actual origins of the holiday are obscure, there are several interesting theories.

SOME SAY IT IS derived from ancient New Year festivals celebrating the vernal equinox and the coming of spring — a time when even the capricious weather plays tricks.

In most versions, France gets the credit (or the blame, depending on how you feel about it) for designating April 1 as "All Fools Day."

Apparently, the day grew out of the confusion that was created when France adopted the Gregorian calendar in 1582. Up until that time, the New Year — traditionally a time for gift-giving and visiting friends — had ended April 1. The Gregorian calendar, however, moved the holiday back to its current date, Jan. 1.

A few conservative Frenchmen, so the story goes, refused to accept the new date. Others, who were just more forgetful that stubborn, kept showing up at friends' houses at the wrong time by mistake. Anyway, they were all laughed at and called (guess what) April Fools.

SOME TRIVIA experts trace the beginnings of the holiday back to Biblical times, connecting it to an incident in the story of Noah and the Ark. This version says the practice of sending friends on fool's errands started when Noah, wrongly thinking the flood had subsided, sent a dove out from the Ark on a futile search for land.

Another religious explanation associates the origin of fool's errands with tricks played on Christ by his foes to mock Him.

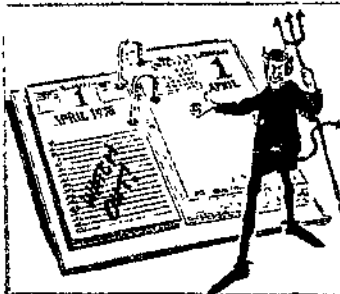

Still another version has its roots in Medieval times. According to this story, the holiday can be traced to a time when insane asylum patients were released for a few hours each year on the first day of April. Cruel crowds reportedly goaded the patients into doing things that were impossible for them and then laughed while the poor patients struggled.

Whatever the real story is, April Fool's Day has evolved into a day of impostors and absurdity relished by pranksters around the world.

In Scotland, the first of April is the time for "hunting the gowk" or cuckoo, the symbol of fools throughout Europe generally.

A Frenchman tricked by a friend is called a Poisson d'Avril or April Fish, meaning one who has been easily caught in an April Fool's Day joke. The day is also popular in Italy, Spain, Portugal, Sweden, Germany and Norway. The last two countries celebrate with hilarity on the last day as well as the first day of April.

Of all the customs associated with April Fool's Day, Mexico has one of the most unusual. South of the border, the day for fooling is Dec. 28. On that date, anyone clever enough to trick a friend into lending him one of his possessions doesn't have to give it back.

1 killed as recruiting trip ends in tragedy

by JOHN MAES
Dean Sanders, the principal of Barrington High School, was looking forward to a meeting Wednesday morning with Stewardson-Strasburg, Ill., school officials.
They had come to the area to interview Sanders and several others who were applicants for the job of school superintendent in the Downstate district.

But early Wednesday, Sanders found out the Downstate school officials had met with tragedy.

CHARLES W. KESSLER, 45, president of the Stewardson-Strasburg, Board of Education, Tuesday was killed and three other school board members injured when their auto collided head on with a truck in Barrington Hills.

In serious condition Wednesday at Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, were Melvin Ohnorsorge, 41, of Stewardson and Dale Wirth, 41, of Strasburg. Leon Vonderheide, 34, of Stewardson was in fair condition, a hospital official said.

Barrington Hills police said Kessler was driving the car Tuesday that collided with a dump truck driven by Gregory Bundgard, 23, of Huntley, Ill. The two vehicles collided on Ill. Rte. 59, just south of Algonquin Road when Kessler's northbound auto crossed the center line and slammed into the truck. Bundgard was not injured, police said.

"They were coming here to decide which of the three or four men they were going to offer a contract to," Sanders said Wednesday.

HE SAID THE men had conducted another interview earlier Tuesday in West Aurora and had planned to stay overnight in Barrington before meeting with Sanders Wednesday. They were to return Downstate late Wednesday afternoon, he said.

The officials were searching for a new superintendent to replace Lloyd Elam, who plans to retire from the post at the end of the year.

"I was aware they were coming and when they didn't show up, I became concerned. I was not even aware of the accident," Sanders said.

Sanders said Elam telephoned him with news of the tragedy Wednesday morning.

"They're nice people," Sanders said. "They're extremely proud of their community and their school district."

Dems endorse two in Dist. 54 election

The Schaumburg Township Democratic organization has endorsed candidates for the April 10 Dist. 54 school race. Dennis Watts, Schaumburg and Arlene Czajkowski, Roselle, have been endorsed by the organization's executive board, committeeman John Morrissey said Wednesday. The group's endorsement, the first ever made by the local organization, came in the wake of endorsements made last week by the township's GOP organization and the district's teachers' unions. Morrissey said noninvolvement of major political parties in school board elections is probably best for the community, but that "is only realistic if both parties observe it. The Republican Party has not."

Three held on narcotics rap

Three men face narcotics charges following their arrest Tuesday when agents of the Metropolitan Enforcement Group seized 10 ounces of cocaine valued at $15,000. MEG Director John Hinchey said the cocaine would have sold for about $250,000 on the street. Arrested were Andrew A. Zeglin, 27, and Wayne P. Smok, 24, of south suburban Justice along with Spud W. Janney, 32, of Gulf Breeze, Fla. The men were taken into custody in a restaurant of the Regency Hyatt House, Rosemont, after they allegedly sold the narcotics to undercover agents, Hinchey said. All three were charged with conspiracy to sell cocaine. Zeglin was charged with three counts of delivery of cocaine and Janney one count of cocaine delivery. Smok was charged with sale of cocaine, Hinchey said, adding that Zeglin also was charged with unlawful use of a weapon because he was carrying a pistol. Hinchey said the men had made previous sales to MEG agents totaling $150,000 in cocaine in the last month. Those deals were made to set up the arrest, he said. All three were being held on bond pending an April 6 appearance in the Niles branch of Cook County Circuit Court.

Karen Quinlan fate in dad's hands: court

TRENTON, N.J. (UPI) — New Jersey's highest court Wednesday put the fate of comatose Karen Ann Quinlan in the hands of her father, ruling he has the right to find doctors willing to remove her life-seeking respirator and allow her to "die with dignity."

"This was the decision we've been praying for from the time we entered the courts," said Miss Quinlan's father, Joseph.

The 7-0 decision of the New Jersey Supreme Court said the respirator may be removed from the 22-year-old

Miss Quinlan once family doctors and a hospital ethics committee agree there is "no reasonable possibility" of her recovery.

At a news conference in Our Lady of Lourdes school, near their modest home in Roxbury, N.J., Karen's parents, both Roman Catholics, said they would consult with doctors Thursday.

Quinlan said he wanted the respirator to be disconnected in the presence of the family and their priest in Karen's room at St. Clare's Hospital, where she has lain since last April 15th, weighing only 60 pounds.

"We don't consider this a victory," said Mrs. Quinlan, her eyes filling with tears. "We are going to lose our daughter but this is the way we want our daughter's life to end."

Chief Justice Richard J. Hughes, who wrote the opinion, said neither the hospital nor the doctors would be held liable on civil or criminal charges because the act would not constitute a homicide.

"The evidence in this case convinces us that the focal point of decision should be the prognosis as to the reasonable possibility of return to cognitive and sapient life, as distinguished from the forced continuation of that biological vegetative existence to which Karen seems to be doomed," Hughes wrote.

State Attorney General William Hyland said an appeal of the decision to the U.S. Supreme Court was unlikely.

"The decision is highly compassionate, and probably represents the consensus of society," Hyland said. New Jersey Gov. Brendan T.

Byrne called the decision "a sound ruling."

The high court's ruling overturned the decision earlier this year of Superior Court Judge Robert Muir who said removing the respirator would be homicide.

However, Hughes wrote, "we have no hesitancy in deciding . . . that no external compelling interest of the state could compel Karen to endure the unendurable, only to vegetate a few measurable months with no realistic possibility of returning to any semblance of cognitive or sapient life."

The court said that if Karen could "miraculously" awaken today and realize she could never recover, she would choose to terminate her life.

Doctors at St. Clare's who originally refused the parents' request to remove the respirator may feel differently now because "we assume that she is now even more fragile and nearer to death than she was then," the court said.

Strike hits San Francisco — transit systems halted

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Thousands of city workers went on strike Wednesday, cutting off most public transportation and defying a voter-mandated pay limitation that would block wage raises including a boost to $19,000 a year for street sweepers.

Mayor George Moscone said the walkout could lead to a "full scale general strike" of unionized workers in the city.

The vast transit system of cable

New Yorkers check out walking shoes

NEW YORK (UPI) — Millions of New Yorkers, street wise from years of one crisis after another, checked out their walking shoes and bicycles Wednesday as the city teetered toward a bus and subway strike deadline.

One of the mediators said at Herald press time there would not be a settlement before the deadline. It appeared the first walkout by the TWU since 1966 was at hand.

Mayor Abe Beame, the courts and an array of mediators and lawyers tried to head off a repeat of the 1966 subway strike that turned the city into a frantic nightmare for commuters.

cars, trolleys and buses came to a standstill. Water works and sewage plants went on emergency staffing with supervisory personnel. The airport was picketed but continued to operate normally.

Thousands of persons were forced to walk or hitchhike to work. Other thousands rode in automobiles that clogged downtown streets during the rush hours.

Only the Bay Area Rapid Transit subway system, which serves a limited area, remained in operation.

The public library, swimming pools, zoo and recreation centers were closed. Public hospitals remained open, but without the services of plumbers, electricians and some other workers. Schools remained open, but attendance was down sharply because students were stranded by the transit tieup.

The strikers ignored a court injunction against the walkout.

Police and firemen, who waged a strike last year, remained on the job.

"We are gearing up for a total general strike," said the mayor. "It's always a possibility."

The mayor said if necessary he would call on the state to help provide "emergency services that might be needed." A police spokesman said "everything is peaceful" on the picket lines.

The issue in the walkout is whether about 1,900 city workers who have jobs similar to those covered by so-called craft unions in industry — plumbers, laborers, electricians, etc. — will have their pay increases trimmed.

Other city workers received modest pay increases in the new budget.

Apparently concerned over the police and firemen's strike last year and frightened by the fiscal crisis in New York City, San Francisco voters passed a measure last November repealing the craft pay raise formula.

The refusal of the Board of Supervisors to delay implementing the ballot measure touched off the abrupt walkout. The unions contend it means pay cuts for many workers.

ANGRY BUILDING trades unions launched a strike against the city of San Francisco Wednesday to protest pending pay cuts for close to 1,900 city "crafts" employees. Immediately affected was the Municipal Railway system whose drivers refused to cross those picket lines.

Ford policies attacked by Reagan

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Ronald Reagan harshly attacked President Ford's domestic and foreign policies in a nationwide television address Wednesday night that marked a sharp shift in his campaign strategy for the Republican presidential nomination.

Reagan said that because of Ford's foreign policy "our nation is in danger, and the danger grows greater with each passing day."

He also charged that Ford's claims of a solid economic recovery echoed the claims made before the 1972 election and added "Then the roof fell in."

Reagan's 30-minute speech, carried by NBC at an estimated cost of $100,000, was a composite of the increasingly tough attacks that the former California governor mounted against Ford in recent primaries.

The speech, however, raised no major new issues nor gave any indication of Reagan's future campaign plans.

Reagan, a master of the television medium, shut down his campaign for a full week to concentrate on the speech and virtually ceded next week's Wisconsin primary to Ford.

"There is one problem which must be solved or everything else is meaningless," Reagan said. "I am speaking of the problem of our national security. Our nation is in danger, and the danger grows greater with each passing day."

In addition to pouncing on Ford's domestic and foreign policies, Reagan again attacked the federal government for taking over programs that belong to the states and communities. He specifically cited welfare, housing and schools.

"Nothing has created more bitterness for example than forced busing to achieve racial balance," he said. "It was born of a hope that we could increase understanding and reduce prejudice and antagonism."

Former Premier Saeb Salam conferred with Jumblatt earlier in the day and predicted that a truce was imminent. He was summoned to Damascus for urgent consultations with Syrian President Hafez Assad and was expected to leave Thursday.

The fierce fighting that has hit Beirut and the countryside for 11 months

"I'm sure that we all approved of that goal," he added. "But busing has failed to achieve that goal."

Reagan said that inflation is the cause of recession and unemployment and added "we're not going to have real prosperity or recovery until we stop fighting the disease."

"There's only one cause for inflation — government spending more than government takes in," he said. "The cure is a balanced budget."

On foreign policy, Reagan said:

"We are told Washington is dropping the word detente but keeping the policy. But whatever it's called, the policy is what's at fault."

He said that "detente" would be replaced — in Ford's words — with "peace through strength."

"I believe in the peace of which Mr. Ford spoke — as much as any man," Reagan added. "But peace does not come from weakness or from retreat. It comes from the restoration of American military superiority."

Indications point to Lebanon cease-fire

BEIRUT, Lebanon (UPI) — Leftist Socialist leader Kamal Jumblatt turned conciliatory Wednesday and there were growing indications a new cease-fire in Lebanon was in the making. But he dashed hopes of immediate peace by saying "nothing has been decided yet."

Former Premier Saeb Salam conferred with Jumblatt earlier in the day and predicted that a truce was imminent. He was summoned to Damascus for urgent consultations with Syrian President Hafez Assad and was expected to leave Thursday.

The fierce fighting that has hit Beirut and the countryside for 11 months tapered off Wednesday to occasional bursts of machinegun and mortar fire.

During the day Jumblatt hinted he may be willing to accept a cease-fire if it meant averting an invasion by Syria. Reports from Damascus said Syria had massed 17,000 troops at the frontier and was ready to move in and impose a truce if its mediation efforts failed.

"The military war may have ended but the political war is continuing," Jumblatt said. The comment marked a significant softening in Jumblatt's hardline stand that the war would not end until Lebanon's Maronite Christians had been decisively defeated.

(Reports circulated in United Nations diplomatic circles that terms of a truce had been worked out and that President Suleiman Frangieh had agreed to resign once a new president is elected.)

The United States became involved in the crisis for the first time Wednesday when it sent Ambassador Dean Brown, a veteran trouble-shooter to Beirut. Diplomatic sources said his mediation efforts probably would be limited to talks with Syrian officials.

Carson signs pact, hosts 2,463rd 'Tonight' show

• Johnny Carson, currently in his 14th year as host of "The Tonight Show" has signed a new, exclusive, long-term agreement with the NBC Television Network. Robert T. Howard, president, said: "We are extremely happy Johnny will continue to be associated with NBC-TV. Without doubt, he is the king of late-night television and one of TV's most talented performers." Wednesday night, Carson hosted his 2,463rd "Tonight" show.

Sirica said there was no communication between the woman and jurors that could have prejudiced the case.

Congress probe of JFK murder rejected

The House Rules Committee Wednesday rejected 9 to 6 a request that Congress investigate the assassination of John F. Kennedy because of new evidence not considered by the Warren Commission. Reps. Thomas Downing, D-Va., and Henry Gonzalez, D-Tex., asked the panel to send the House a resolution creating a House Select Committee to make the inquiry.

Gonzalez said the killings of Sen. Robert Kennedy and Martin Luther King Jr., and the wounding of Alabama Gov. George Wallace, should also be included in the investigation. Rep. B. F. Isak, D-Calif., whose motion to defer action on the request was approved, said, "We ought to put this (Kennedy assassination) on ice and not just keep on with the idea that we have to repent, repent, repent."

No-fault standards bill back to panel

The Senate voted Wednesday to return to committee, and almost certainly kill, legislation to set mandatory federal standards for states to follow in implementing no-fault auto insurance. The bill, considered one of the most important pieces of consumer legislation to come before the 94th Congress, was recommitment on a 49-45 vote. A similar no-fault bill passed the Senate in 1974 but died for lack of House action.

Area bread prices are rising

Chicago area residents can expect to pay four to seven cents extra for major bread brands with recently announced price hikes by major bakers. The bakers of Butternut Bread said prices on white bread have been increased from 53 to 57 cents and 63 to 67 cents a loaf. The bakers of Wonder Bread have ordered an increase of four to five cents a loaf. Industry spokesmen say bread prices in the area have been below national averages in the last year because of a price drop last fall and winter, a major reason for the increase.

U.N. brands S. Africa as aggressor

The United Nations Security Council branded South Africa as an aggressor Wednesday night and asked it to pay full compensation for war damages to Angola. The vote on the resolution was 9-0 with five abstentions. China did not participate in the vote. Britain, France, the United States, Italy and Japan abstained. The resolution also asked the Pretoria regime to return equipment and materials taken from Angola and to respect that nation's independence.

Task force to probe overseas U.S. payoffs

President Ford Wednesday ordered a cabinet level task force to investigate overseas payoffs by U.S. firms and determine how much stems from corporate corruption and how much from foreign extortion. Suggesting some payoffs may be forced by "strong-arm practices" abroad, Ford said the panel, headed by Commerce Secretary Elliot Richardson, would help find where "true justice" lies and provide a basis for regulatory policy.

A police spokesman said the burglary at Carter's third-floor Fifth Ave. offices occurred between 5 p.m. Monday and 9 a.m. Tuesday, probably while the candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination was participating in a local television debate.

Student winners will then go on to exhibit their projects at the state exposition in May, at the University of Illinois, Champaign-Urbana, sponsored by the Illinois Junior Academy of Science.

Township roads budget up 4.5%

The Wheeling Township Highway Dept. budget has been set at $645,263 for fiscal 1976, an increase of approximately 4.5 per cent more than the current year's budget.

The township auditors approved the budget Tuesday. The projected tax rate is approximately 0.095 cents per $100 equalized assessed valuation.

The highway budget was compiled with the 10.9 per cent over-all inflation rate during the past year, an anticipated over-all inflation rate of 7 per cent this year and continuing increased costs of petroleum-based products such as patch and seal coat materials.

Two of the largest increases in the highway budget were the $17,000 appropriation for general insurance, up from $10,000 appropriated last year, and the $19,000 appropriation for the Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund, up from $13,000 last year.

Highway Comr. Arthur E. Olsen Jr.,

said the insurance increase reflected higher insurance rates which "have nearly doubled in a year." He said the retirement fund increase was caused by more of the department's employees nearing eligibility.

The budget includes planned expenditures for resurfacing a half mile of Wheeling Road, a two-inch resurfacing of Daryl, Salk and Park streets and installing a traffic signal at the corner of Wolf and Willow roads.

The township will pay a fourth, the Village of Wheeling a fourth and the state will pay half the installation cost.

Panel to draw up plan for downtown

The Arlington Heights Village Board's blue-ribbon committee on downtown improvements will meet tonight to begin drafting its final recommendations for improving the village's central business district.

Village Planner Joseph Kesler will present preliminary results of surveys returned by residents on their feelings about such proposals as parking garages and pedestrian shopping malls.

The meeting will begin at 8 p.m. at the municipal building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Candidates' night today in Dist. 59

An Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 candidates' night will be held at 8 p.m. today at the Elk Grove Township Hall, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights, by the district's School Community Council.

Officials vote to join area municipal unit

The Wheeling Township Board of Auditors voted unanimously Tuesday to join the Northwest Municipal Conference, a group formerly comprised of villages which has now opened its membership to townships.

The township will pay yearly dues of $282 based on 5 cents for each person living in unincorporated portions of the township.

$70,000 youth budget asked

William Jeffernan, chairman of the Wheeling Township Committee on Youth, presented a youth budget of $70,000 for the next fiscal year to the board.

The budget recommends $45,500 for Omni-House; $13,000 for Shelter Inc.; $10,000 for Prospectus; and $1,500 for youth committee clerical and printing use.

Temporary assessor hired

Frank Stewart of 632 N. Hickory Ave., Arlington Heights, has been hired as deputy assessor for three months to help Township Assessor Marshall Theroux comply with new Cook County requirements for handling personal property assessments. Stewart's salary has not been set.

Township assessors must now prepare a file on each business operating in the township, including corporations and unincorporated businesses, and forward to the county an individual data card on each.

Theroux estimated some 3,000 businesses operate in Wheeling Township.

Juvenile court branch urged

A resolution to locate a branch of the Cook County 3rd District Juvenile Court in the Northwest suburbs was unanimously approved by the auditors.

Several villages and townships, including Barrington, Elk Grove, Palatine and Schaumburg, have passed similar resolutions asking for a suburban branch of the court, now located in Niles.

MAGNUS SAID he has received a permit from the Metropolitan Sanitary District and has the necessary financing for the 132-unit project.

The development will be one building, four or five stories high, for persons over 52, he said. Central dining, recreational areas and games and crafts rooms will be provided for the residents.

"It's more than housing. It's really prestige-type living for those who have given up their homes," Magnus said.

Magnus said it has been "paradoxical" for the two villages to oppose the development because each village board has passed resolutions recognizing the need for senior citizen housing.

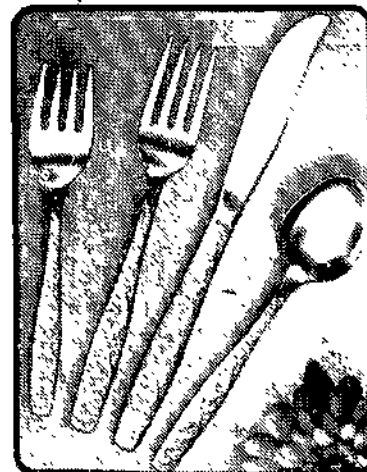

"IT'S HAD THE appearance of big government trying to smother an individual," he said.

Magnus also questioned why the Village of Arlington Heights continues to oppose the development when it is planning a 119-unit senior citizens development with the Cook County Housing Authority between Wing and Miner streets, west of Highland Avenue.

"It seems paradoxical when they are doing it by condemnation and the density will be ten times as much as this one," Magnus said.

Panel to weigh finance benefits of unit district

The financial benefits of forming a unit school district will be discussed tonight by the citizens' committee looking into the formation of an Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 unit district.

The committee will meet at 7:30 p.m. at Grove Junior High School, 777 Elk Grove Blvd., Elk Grove Village.

The Illinois School Consultants, hired by Dist. 59 to provide information on forming a unit district, will present the current financial picture of Dist. 59 and High School Dist. 214 and projections on the finance for the proposed unit district.

A unit district would have one school board and administration governing the elementary and high schools. Currently, Dist. 59 is one of seven elementary districts in Dist. 214.

The financial projections are the last report to be discussed by the committee before it meets to decide whether it will seek a referendum on forming a unit district. The committee April 8 will decide whether to petition for a referendum.

Story of 2 deaf programs: much progress after split

by PAM BIGFORD

Four pairs of hands answer a teacher's question in sign language. Four sets of lips call out the accompanying word. Four deaf children learn a little more about getting along in a hearing world.

The four are in a 13-student deaf education program sponsored by the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization at Kensington School, 201 S. Evanston, Arlington Heights.

A few miles away in Ridge School, 630 Ridge Ave., Elk Grove Village, six other deaf children are equally busy, working just as hard toward the same goals, supervised by the same organization, learning the same subjects.

THE RIDGE DEAF children were classmates of those in Kensington until this year. The six were moved to a newly created program in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 after a three-month controversy over serious inadequacies in the NSSEO program.

Both schools are working to create programs to solve these problems.

At Kensington, a new speech development teacher and principal have been hired. A program to teach the hearing children sign language has been expanded.

Instead of the deaf children being segregated at lunch and recess, they are encouraged to join the other children. Fifth graders are allowed to be patrol guards just like the hearing fifth graders.

A GROUP HAS BEEN started so that parents of deaf children can discuss their common problems. The Kensington PTA included the parent group in their activities.

"The speech development program has really improved," said parent Carol Stark, echoing other parents. "I can tell the difference in my son. He's getting about 3 1/2 hours of speech development a week, where last year he was getting about 20 minutes."

Many parents blamed the poor social integration of the children on a lack of leadership from the former administration. The new principal, Richard Bennett, received nothing but praise from parents.

MOST PARENTS said they are very pleased with the acceptance of their children this year by the hearing students. Other parents said there is progress only because there was nowhere to go but up.

Lorraine Kelly teaches sign language before school to 88 hearing children who come early because they want to learn it.

OTHER PARENTS said the Kensington program has improved in some ways, but serious problems remain.

The deaf program as a whole has only six girls, and three of them are at Ridge. Parents Marie Burk and Carol Engler said the split in the program has limited their daughters socially by limiting their girlfriends.

Some parents say nothing has been done about removing children who are both deaf and emotionally disturbed from the classroom.

BENNETT said none of the deaf children have been diagnosed as emotionally disturbed, and he was not aware of any excessive disruption problems in the deaf classes.

At Ridge, a whole new program was formed and is under NSSEO supervision. Classroom teacher Marilyn Grodman is assisted by one aide. A speech therapist works with the children every afternoon, and Ridge has its own learning disabilities teacher.

The children eat lunch, have recess and gym class and be patrol guards with the hearing students.

Ridge parents said they are very happy with the program and so far have no complaints.

SOME PARENTS said their children's speech has improved not only because of the new speech therapist, but because their children's new involvement with the hearing students

Parents' revelations sparked split

The deaf education program sponsored by the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization (NSSEO) split last summer after parents exposed serious inadequacies in the way it was operated and demanded it be removed from Arlington Heights Dist. 25.

Parents of 12 of the 13 children in the program housed in Kensington School in Arlington Heights signed a petition last May to have the program removed.

Charges levied by parents included: Inadequate speech development program; placement of emotionally disturbed children in deaf classes; lack of correlation between the elementary and junior high programs and a lack of social integration of the deaf at Kensington.

NSSEO Director Edward McDonald said some of the parents' complaints were valid.

McDonald recommended the program remain at Kensington because he said that changing the program's location would not solve its problems.

When the NSSEO board voted to keep the program at Kensington, the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education decided to offer an alternative deaf education program for the six deaf children within its boundaries.

has motivated them to want to talk.

"Last year my son didn't even play with the hearing children at Kensington, and this year at Ridge he's on the football team," said Nancy Ford, a leader in the fight to move the program.

Carolyn Best said her daughter's speech has improved "100 per cent" this year and credits it to her daughter's feeling of "total acceptance."

"LAST YEAR my daughter said she hated school," Mrs. Best said. "This year she never complains."

Parents said their children do not miss their Kensington classmates as much as they feared they would. Irene Flagg said her son never even mentions his old friends anymore.

Most of the Ridge parents remain bitter toward the Kensington program and insist their children will not go back to Kensington if the programs are ever reunited.

NSSEO Director Edward McDonald said that he does not believe Dist. 59 will be able to sustain a deaf education program after the five 10-year-olds now in the class move on to junior high.

"The prevalence of deaf children in that area (Dist. 59) now is extremely high," McDonald said. He noted that most of the children were born during the time when many pregnant women had German measles.

"The parents in Dist. 59 had legitimate concerns," McDonald said. "I asked them to bear with us and that we would straighten things out. We have kept our promise and I hope they can see that."

McDonald said if the deaf students were brought back together NSSEO would be able to provide a "more diversified program."

THE RIDGE PARENTS said they never intended to split the program — they wanted the entire class removed from Kensington. But even though the program split, parents from both schools say their action focused attention on the program's inadequacies.

"It was very beneficial that the parents' group was so vocal," Mrs. Rentdorff said. "You don't get a second chance to give our kids language development and self-confidence.

"You don't have to worry about hearing kids who automatically get the best education a district can provide. But for my son, who really needs these extra things, they weren't there," she said.

"We're going to have to take a wait-and-see attitude," Mrs. Rentdorff said. "I know there's going to be mistakes made, but this time I think it will all work out."

$38.9 million asked for special ed

The Illinois House Appropriations Committee Wednesday voted 16-3 in Springfield to recommend passage of a $38.9 million supplemental appropriation for state aid to special education.

At the same time, State School Superintendent Joseph Cronin expressed alarm over school cuts being made throughout the state. Cronin commended the committee's action and called for an additional $67 million to be appropriated for funding of this year's general school aid formula.

Cronin said districts already have sent dismissal notices to 3,000 teachers for next year because of financial problems. The reduction in staff statewide, he said, is more than twice the cuts that are warranted by declining enrollment.

Cronin pointed to teacher cuts in Wheeling Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 and Arlington Heights Dist. 25 as well as to cuts in the Chicago Public Schools and Downstate as examples of cuts that will endanger educational quality.

We cannot tolerate severe cutbacks in school programs that affect the quality of education for our child-dren, Cronin said. It is imperative that the legislature restore money cut from the schools.

Cronin said he believes the results of the March 16 primary, in which Gov. Daniel Walker was defeated by Sen. of State Michael Howlett on the Democratic side and James Thompson won the GOP nomination, are a good sign.

The fact that the winners in both parties of the primary said education would be a high priority indicates it is an issue to which voters respond positively, he said.

Cronin also said he believes the state's financial picture will improve enough by June that schools can be funded without a tax increase.

Four out of the last six years things have looked very bleak in January and February and by May things have improved, he said.

The appropriations committee in addition to approving the special education bill also passed a $100,000 supplemental appropriation for a braille program for blind students and increases in funding for state colleges.

The Illinois General Assembly will reconvene to consider supplemental appropriations and other measures Monday. The appropriations committee has scheduled meetings Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday next week.

Names panel to implement plan

Thompson urges revamp of state

by WANDALYN RICE

Republican gubernatorial candidate James Thompson Wednesday called for a reorganization of Illinois government and named three men — including a Democrat from the 12th Congressional District — to help him do it.

Speaking to nearly 1,000 persons at a fund raising dinner in two ballrooms in Chicago's Conrad Hilton Hotel, Thompson said he was naming the three to head a task force to plan the reorganization.

The three are Donald Perkins, board chairman of the Jewel Tea Co. Northwestern University Pres Robert Strutz and Robert Johnston, Northwest regional director of the United Auto Workers Union. Johnston was elected from the 12th District as a delegate to the Democratic national convention, pledged to former Georgia Gov. Jimmy Carter in the March 16 primary.

THOMPSON SAID he will ask Gov. Daniel Walker to help the task force, which will be recruited by the three leaders study state government to make recommendations for reorganization.

Thompson said Illinois government has not been reorganized since 1917 and "it's time to remodel our state government into an effective, responsive institution." He also said "The need for a new Illinois government will be just as real if Mike Howlett (Democratic gubernatorial candidate) is elected governor, rather than Jim Thompson. And if that should happen I will ask the group to work with him so Illinois can benefit no matter which candidate wins in November."

THOMPSON ALSO briefly recognized his primary election opponent, businessman Richard Cooper, who was sitting at the head table. Thompson said Cooper "is a bright and hard-working young man and has a great future in the Illinois Republican Party. He is a splendid gentleman and competitor."

Also Wednesday, U.S. Senator Howard Baker, R-Tenn., told the group

Thompson's candidacy represents a revitalization of the Republican Party after Watergate.

"Nowhere do I know any place where the Republican Party is fielding a young man more qualified to revitalize the party than Jim Thompson," Baker said.

Thompson supporters said the dinner would net the Thompson campaign about $330,000.

Many municipalities scrambling for funds

change will bring in an additional $45,000.

ELK GROVE VILLAGE has cut $12,000 from its budget in an attempt to dodge the deficit projected last summer. Auto vehicle sticker fees have been doubled.

George T. Doney, Elk Grove Village Finance Director, blames the deficit on a decrease in revenue including property taxes, sales tax and building fees. In February sales tax revenue alone was $250,000 below estimates, he said.

Sales tax continues to increase in Palatine, but other revenues are described as "stable" by Finance Director John Hedstrom.

"We're staying out of trouble by not spending money we don't have," he said.

Hedstrom said he expects construction in Palatine to increase and therefore create a better financial situation for the village.

BUFFALO GROVE Village Mgr. Daniel Larson said some financial problems exist there because it is a residential community with a low tax base.

Some cuts are being made. The village's operating budget for next year is down from $15 million to $12 million, though a public service center was built last year, accounting for some of that decrease, he said.

In Des Plaines last summer, the property tax was increased to provide an additional $600,000. Garbage collection and license fees also have been raised.

A 10 per cent utility tax was considered but was rejected by the city council.

IN WHEELING, Village Mgr. George Passolt has directed department heads to hold the line on their budget requests.

"The over-all goal this year is to provide equal or better services with no increase in costs," he said.

He has suggested that the village consider cutting costs by reducing the number of employees and by purchasing mid-size police squad cars.

Arlington Heights Village Mgr. L. A. Hanson also told department heads to hold the line, but was still forced to reject almost $1 million worth of requests before coming up with a $6.8 million operating budget.

"We've been hard-pressed to balance our budget. Because of the inflationary spiral of expenditures, revenues just haven't been able to keep up," Kenneth Bonder, Arlington Heights finance director, said.

BONDER SAID he expects things to be tight for the next couple years. He is one of seven men recently appointed to a new fiscal policy planning committee which has been charged with forecasting the village's future financial picture.

The financial situation has improved in Rolling Meadows since last year, when there was a hiring freeze, acting City Mgr. Charles Green said. Estimates show a $250,000 surplus is expected at the end of the next fiscal year.

Spiraling costs have caused Schaumburg to hold the line on spending, but the village still will be able to avoid levying a municipal property tax.

Schaumburg's $8.8 million budget is up about 30 per cent, but "we cut in every possible way we could and just left what is necessary to provide needed services," Finance Director Joseph Castor said.

HOFFMAN ESTATES also does not expect fiscal problems next year.

"We'll be able to balance the budget," Finance Director Keith Wendland said.

In most area communities, the loss of federal revenue-sharing funds will not affect general operations because they usually are used for capital improvement projects.

But in large Downstate Illinois cities, the federal money will be missed sorely. The funds have become the third largest income item, after property and sales taxes, in many budgets.

In Rockford, where unemployment hovers between 9 and 11 per cent, general revenue funds will drop $400,000 to $400,000 in 1976, partly due to the decline in sales tax.

JIM ANDERSON, chief accountant for the city, said Rockford will be able to balance its budget only by putting 18 months worth of federal revenue sharing money, $2.8 million, into the general fund.

In Decatur, where unemployment now averages 10 per cent, sales tax revenues increased only 4 per cent over the past year, or about two-thirds less than they usually do during times of full employment.

City Mgr. Leslie T. Allen said Decatur's $22 million budget for the fiscal year beginning May 1 will be balanced, but only through cutbacks and a continuing freeze on hiring.

The city's 421 employees will get a raise, Allen said, "but it will be below the cost of living (increase)." Property taxes will go up 3 cents per $100 of assessed valuation for police and fire pension coverage.

IN JOLIET, which had a budget deficit of $4 million last year and over $3 million this year, some 30 city employees have been laid off, property taxes were increased 15 to 20 per cent, and no raises are planned for city workers.

"We've developed a program to get out of this deficit position in four years," said City Mgr. Lynn Neuhauf.

"We reduced street sweeping in residential areas by one-half. We eliminated brush pickup by city forces. We've eliminated some minor programs in the police department. And we're taking a posture of absolutely no salary increases."

In Springfield, the city runs its own utilities on a $100 million plus budget, and that is a continuing financial headache.

"OUR LONG-TERM indebtedness alone is over a quarter of a billion dollars," said the city finance commissioner, James A. Dunham. "All our major funds, such as water, electric, sewer and motor vehicle, are bonded to the hilt. Only recently the City Council could not find sufficient money to pay a $500,000 judgment without a hefty property tax increase."

Many city managers and others concerned with government echo the fear expressed by Dunham.

"I think over-all government is in a serious financial situation," he said. "In fact, I think the tip of the iceberg was New York. I think this is all over the country, other than those governments which have been truly conservative."

Ask Andy

56 risked lives for freedom pact

Andy sends the Encyclopedia Britannica's Yearbook of Science and the Future to John Feller, 12 of Louisville, Ky., for his question:

HOW MANY MEN SIGNED THE DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE?

The Declaration of Independence is the historic document that proclaimed the birth of the United States of America. It told the world that the 13 English Colonies on the eastern shores of America no longer wanted to be subjects of England's King George III. Instead, they wanted the right to govern themselves and manage their own affairs. And the men that signed this crucial document did so at the risk of their lives.

The history of the United States spans 200 years and began on July 4, 1776. There are those who argue that our country was founded before this. It was on this day, however, that the delegates of the 13 Colonies adopted the Declaration of Independence.

Before the states declared their independence, they were colonies of England, and as such were bound to obey the laws that the king of England imposed. Many of the colonists did not feel that they were being treated fairly. And try as they might, they could not make their mother country understand how they felt.

In June of 1776, delegates from the 13 Colonies met to discuss the issue of independence. Richard Henry Lee introduced a resolution stating that the United Colonies should be free and independent states. A committee was appointed to write a declaration of independence. This committee asked Thomas Jefferson, a young lawyer, to draft the declaration.

Jefferson penned the eloquent document between June 11 and June 28, 1776. It is full of Jefferson's dedication to freedom for all men. After a few minor changes, the final draft was approved July 4, 1776. John Hancock, who was president of the Continental Congress, signed the document and sent it to be printed.

The printed document was read to a large crowd in the Statehouse yard on July 8. On July 19, Congress ordered the document to be written in script on parchment paper and mandated that the members of Congress sign it.

Fifty of the signers placed their names on this historic document on Aug. 2, 1776. One signed on Aug. 27, and four signed on Nov. 19. Thomas McKean, the last signer, was away with George Washington's army. He did not get a chance to affix his name until 1781. In all, 56 men put their names on the Declaration of Independence.

The 56 men who signed their names knew that they risked their lives. As far as England was concerned, they were traitors, and if they were captured they would be treated as such. Many of them lost their fortunes, their homes, their loved ones. Five of them lost their lives when captured. Nine more died from wounds or other hardships of the American Revolution.

Andy sends a Student Globe to Bobby Martinex, 8, of Portage, Ind., for his question:

WHO TEACHES A BABY SPIDER HOW TO SPIN A WEB?

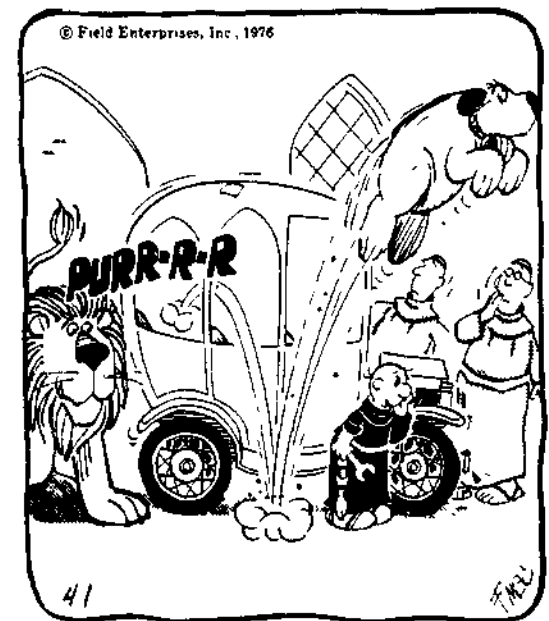

Nobody. Not even his mother has a hand in helping him perform the artistry his web displays. The baby spider just "knows" how to do it. In fact, he was born knowing how to do almost everything a spider need do. His behavior is through instinct. This means he goes about his business using inherited rather than learned knowledge. No relatives or friends show him. His entire nervous system is packed with messages and impulses directing him to act as other members of his species act.

Instinct almost totally determines the way insects and spiders behave. Biologists have shown in various experiments that their behavior patterns remain even when conditions in their environment change. For example, a solitary wasp places a dead insect inside each cell in the nest for the pupa to feed on as it grows. Should a human experimenter interfere by removing the victim, the wasp will still move on to the next step and seal up the egg in an empty larva. She will not reason that she needs to place another insect in the nest first.

Lightner double set slam

In the '20s the best auction bridge in the world was played at New York's Knickerbocker Whist Club. Culbertson and Sims were two of the best, but many others contributed tremendous help in getting contract bridge on its feet.

One was Ted Lightner. Ted, who is now 82 or 83, plays rubber bridge at The Regency Whist Club several days a week.

Win at bridge by Oswald and Jim Jacoby

The best known of his many contributions to the game is the Lightner slam double. This double means that when your opponents bid a slam on their own steam you are asking your partner to make an unusual lead, rather than the one you would normally make.

Here is a simple example of this bid which every expert uses today. Without the Lightner double West would open a club. East would take the first trick and South the rest. After the double, West leads a heart and poor South is one trick short of his contract.

Ethics plan long overdue

The ethics proposal put forth by Republican gubernatorial candidate James R. Thompson represents a plan for good government that is long overdue in Illinois.

Thompson's plan is sweeping and stringent and appears rooted in his background as a U.S. attorney who devoted much attention to political corruption investigations. It will undoubtedly cause a great hue and cry in Springfield and other places around the state where politicians gather.

The proposal, which would require approval by the legislature, would outlaw such things as lawmakers taking their private law practices before state regulatory agencies and elected officials holding outside jobs (are you listening, Mr. Howlett?) and would establish a strong ethics board to enforce provisions of the law.

The proposal also contains a sensible provision to eliminate the need for some government workers to report their net worth. The present law calls for workers like state troopers, teachers and others who earn over $20,000 annually to report their net worth.

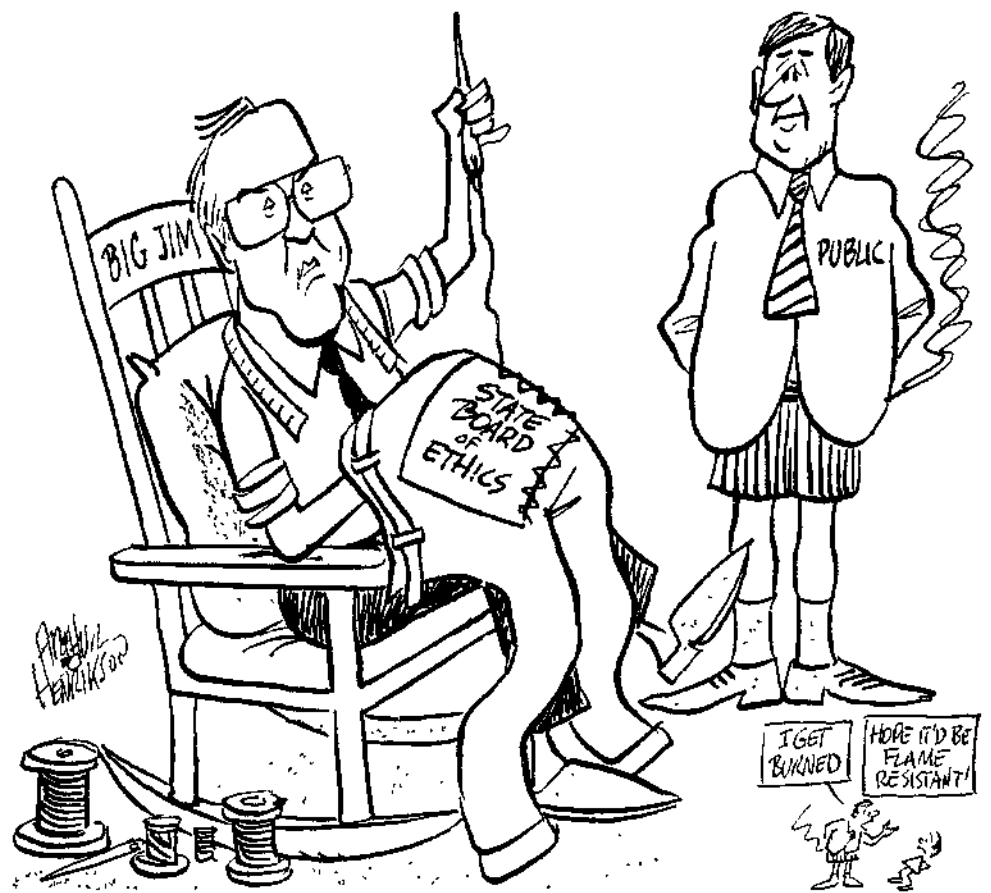

Thompson sensibly reasons these people have no real decision-making power and should not be required to bare their private financial situation.

Gov. Daniel Walker tried to do many of the things Thompson has proposed, but his fiery relationship with the legislature doomed the plan from the beginning. Walker did create his own ethics board to regulate employees under his control.

There is no way to predict whether the Thompson plan will go anywhere. Legislators probably will kick and scream about being deprived of income and contend this makes them second class citizens.

They are not and never will be second class citizens. But they are certainly a special case, because they have been given a special trust by the public — a trust that should never be violated and should mean going the extra step to insure honesty in Illinois government.

This reinforced seat isn't fireproof, but it should offer you better protection!

Can education be improved?

The topic: "How Can American Education Be Improved?" is argued by Terry Sanford, former governor of North Carolina and president of Duke University, and Clarence Manion, former dean of Notre Dame Law School. This article is adapted from the National Town Meeting.

CLARENCE MANION

What's wrong with American education?

The trouble with American education is that it is no longer American. Education now is not merely un-American, it is, in many places, rapidly becoming anti-American. The National Education Association, the American Civil Liberties Union, the Congress and finally the federal courts have combined to throw American education off its time-honored religious track and turn it around in a direction of atheism and materialism. I think the decision that a child couldn't voluntarily give thanks to Almighty God in school was vitally wrong and an invasion of the state's right to control its own school.

Should we bus to eliminate segregation?

The Supreme Court decided in 1954 that it was wrong for states to make race a condition for school attendance. Busing is doing precisely what the Supreme Court prohibited in 1954. There is a rank inconsistency in a court decision which requires a state to count white and black faces in a schoolroom when it was forbidden to do that; or to use race, or color, or any of those arbitrary things in setting up a school in the first place. School busing increases race consciousness and increases tension between the races — much more so than if they left them alone.

How much federal assistance should public schools get?

Education, under the Constitution of the United States, and in the spirit of the Declaration of Independence, is a reserved state right and the further the federal government stays away from it, the better. Federal intrusion begins with handouts. We (got along) for 150 years without any federal aid. I don't know why modern conditions require the federal government to rush in.

Should religion be taught in public schools?

I suggest that the religion in the American Declaration of Independence (is) all the religion we need to teach in the schools. Jews, Christians, Mohammedans, all who believe in God, can go along with the self-evident truth of the Declaration of Independence. But they are being hidden from students in America today. I think it's a disgrace not to permit this document to be brought into schoolrooms. The Declaration of Independence is the irreducible minimum of theology required for good citizenship. Conscience is the greatest policeman in the world. If a child grows to maturity without ever having heard of the Ten Commandments of God, he's very, very likely to turn out to be delinquent. (Newspaper Enterprise Assn.)

Asks vote on library costs

I vigorously protest any additional funding in further support of the village administration's library. No, not "public library." That title only indicates use. The public of Mount Prospect had no choice in the decision to build the library, it was the village board of trustees' decision. I feel sure if it had been put to a referendum we would not be currently concerned with a $225,000 cost overrun.

The larger ventilation system I cannot argue with nor the sprinkling system, if it is for fire protection. However, if the sprinkling system is for the lawns as Trustee Floros was quoted in today's Herald, my position is a flat no. Only last Friday in The Herald the board was telling us to cut water use by 10 to 15 per cent and this included no lawn sprinkling. Any overrun item should be funded in a like reduction in nice-to-have items.

A TV surveillance system, a book security system and a computer too? How did our fine present library render such excellent service in all these years without them? Landscaping causing an overrun? Then just plant grass. A built-in vacuum cleaning system? A couple of conventional hand vacuum cleaners would eliminate this overrun item.

If Mayor Teichert and other members of the village administration who voted in the library insist that these items of overrun are mandatory. There are four choices. Just go ahead and vote them in like they did the library, put the question to a referendum, contain them within the $3.2 million or eliminate them. At least a combination of the last two would be responsive to our already hard-pressed citizenry.

On March 23 in The Herald, Trustee Rhea revealed an additional $125,000 for books not mentioned before. This has to stop or our garbage bills will go from nothing to $10. Give us our say — overrun and book acquisition in a referendum.

New school decision rapped

I object! Last week I read that River Trails School Dist. 26 is considering the closing of a school next year. It seems to me that two years ago there was quite a turmoil created trying to find room (to replace the condemned River Road building) for the Maryville kids. At that time considerable interest from district residents finally resulted in the decision to build a new school. This school (Nipper) is presently under construction and scheduled to open soon, perhaps even before an existing building is phased out.

If that was good management and long-range planning — build a new school and shut down an existing one — I'm glad that I don't work for or live in Dist. 26. Those that do had better wake up and quit wasting our money. Our money because the new facility was built with state-provided funds.

Why didn't the school board see the population situation two years ago and make the only logical choice; put the Maryville kids in the closest existing school, close River Road School and save us all some money which undoubtedly could be used elsewhere? Mark B. Nelson PHILADELPHIA, April 1 — Congress expressed concern that the committee to superintend the treasury was failing to be "sufficiently explicit" as to the manner and place of settling public accounts. To remedy the situation, the delegates established a permanent treasury office and recommended appointment of an auditor general.

Support appreciated

As a parent of a Cub and Webster of Cub Pack 264 (Robert Frost School) and a Boy Scout, Troop 117 (Trinity United Methodist Church, Golf Road), I want to say thanks to the fantastic neighbors of Mount Prospect. They have helped us in all our fund-raising events year after year. Our Cubs and Webelos have been out taking orders for lawn and garden fertilizer, and the response has been great. Our Boy Scouts collect paper once a month, and people have responded by saving papers all year long.

Suburbs coming to grips with systematic planning

SAN FRANCISCO — Plans to limit new housing have long been the fashion in many of California's suburban communities, but few have come into effect because building interests on the one hand, and groups working to end discrimination in housing on the other, have challenged their legality.

Last month the Supreme Court cleared the way for such schemes by refusing to hear a challenge to the "Petaluma plan." This plan put strict limits on new housing in Petaluma, 40 miles north of San Francisco.

A dozen years ago Petaluma was a quiet farm town. Now it is a city of 40,000 people. The sudden growth overloaded the local services, and the new housing built to cope with the influx threatened to overwhelm the little place with its 19th century wooden houses and remarkable iron shopfronts.

THE ALARMED residents readily supported the plan of its vigorous mayor, Helen Putnam, to limit new housing units to 500 a year. After a two-year moratorium on all building, they voted last year in 1973 in favor of the new regulations.

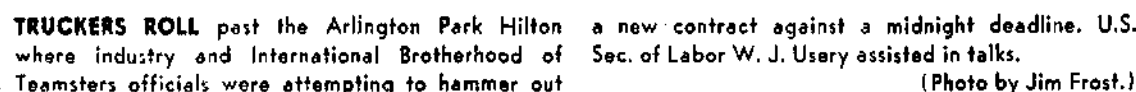

Builders and developers went to court to challenge the right of a community to restrict the citizen's freedom to live where he wants. They won in the lower court and lost on appeal. An impressive array of national interest groups lined up on either side.

Concern is not limited to California. Many other towns and cities have been trying to limit their growth, with mixed results in the courts. Restrictions in New Jersey and Pennsylvania were ruled out in court because they smacked of discrimination against black or working-class occupiers.

Petaluma's plan is considered special because it imposes standards for builders to meet if they want to share in the allocation of the 500 new housing units permitted each year. Builders score "points" by submitting plans for houses that fit best with public facilities, blend unobtrusively with the landscape and add least to the volume of traffic. To the considerable surprise of city officials, bids have been pouring in, some even from Britain.

NOW THAT THE legal path is clear, several California cities intend to put similar plans into effect. One town, Davis, with a large university population, wants to make new housing not just more orderly but more equitable. Its scheme requires that at least a third of the limited number of new houses or apartments built each year be sold for under $35,000. (The Economist of London)

She thought a moment and then added, "Of course, I don't know what they're like inside (the conference rooms). They're probably going right for the jugular."

Hearings this month on oil recycling bill

by LEA TONKIN

Hearings on a bill to encourage re-refining of used motor oil will be slated in late April, said State Rep. Daniel Pierce, D-Highland Park. Pierce, chairman of the House committee on environment, energy and natural resources, and sponsor of the bill, said his committee will hear testimony on the waste oil recycling measure.

Physics Conference on Environmental Nuclear Impact is sponsored by the Midwest chapter, Health Physics Society.

Summer air pollution is apt to be worse on hot, humid and sunny days between 11 a.m. and 6 p.m., the Chicago Lung Assn. has advised.

The association recently published a free pocket guide to the various air pollution warnings, along with survival hints for Chicago area residents.

Recommended activity at the several pollution levels are:

- Watch level: Refrain from strenuous outdoor activity, especially in the afternoon.
- Yellow alert: Avoid being outdoors for long periods of time, use air conditioning and stop smoking.
- Red alert: Stay indoors, use air conditioning and stop smoking.
- Emergency alert: Only emergency traffic allowed, restricted use of electricity, limit physical activity to a minimum and stay indoors.

Copies of the air pollution guide may be obtained by contacting the Chicago Lung Assn., 1440 W. Washington, Chicago 60607, or calling 243-2000.

Environmental nuclear risks will be discussed at a conference April 8-9 at the Carson Inn-Nordic Hills, Itasca. Fuel reprocessing, waste disposal, sabotage and other nuclear risks, as well as the demand for energy, are among conference issues. The Health

'We're not traditional old folks' home'

by LEA TONKIN

Picture a retirement housing center. If you come up with the image of an old folks' home easily identified by dilapidated rockers on the front porch, the Friendship Village development planned in Schaumburg may come as a surprise.

"We're very strong in our belief that we're not a traditional old folks' home," said Ron Kilgore, marketing director for Friendship Village. The planned development includes 640 "life-care" apartment units, two medical centers and other facilities on the Schaumburg Road site. Sponsored by the non-profit Evangelical Retirement Homes of Chicago Inc., the project is managed by Christian Home Services Inc.

The life-care concept, as explained by Kilgore, allows retirees to "continue their present lifestyle and standards, and maintain their independence and dignity. That's very important." In return for an endowment and a monthly service fee, residents can live in a Friendship Village apartment and use all its services as long as they remain.

BUYERS SHELL OUT a 10 per cent down payment for the apartments. They'll pay the balance in cash on the move-in date. The efficiency apartments, one- and two-bedroom units range in price from $17,000 to $41,950. The first phase of the development, including a 320-unit complex and medical center, is slated for a December opening.

Monthly fees range from $259 to $399, depending on the size of the apartment. Services include utilities, janitorial service, maintenance and repair, laundromats, security, scheduled transportation and one meal a day in the village dining hall.

"We feel there's a need for this type of development when you get 80 per cent reservations and you haven't even started construction yet," Kilgore said of the first phase sales. A second phase of 320 apartments and another 90-bed medical center is planned.

The real drawing card for Friendship Village residents is the medical center, Kilgore said. Although the planned social activities, contemporary building design and other features offer a modern version of retirement living, many buyers indicate the security of nearby medical care is their primary concern.

"THE BIG PROBLEM for retirees isn't the money. It's what's going to happen to them," Kilgore said.

When a resident dies, the unit will revert back to the management firm. It will be re-endowed for use by a new retiree. Residents who decide to move will gain a refund for a portion of the endowment, depending on the length of time they lived in the village.

Kilgore believes the concept of "life care" will eventually become more popular. Provision of needed services and a break from the traditional segregation of older residents from the community will be demanded by the public, he said.

"We don't want to alter a lifestyle. We want to add to it."

LIFE CARE for sale: The Friendship Village development planned in Schaumburg will include medical, recreational and other services. Completion of the first phase is slated for December.

Over February 1975 figures

Suburban home building doubles

February building permits show suburban single-family home construction has more than doubled last year's figures.

The Bell Federal Savings survey of building reports home construction in the suburbs jumped from 350 permits last February to 770 permits this February, with the figure for unincorporated areas increasing from 72 to 245 permits.

This represents a 143 per cent increase throughout the Chicago metropolitan area, with a 98 per cent increase in multiple-family housing.

THE SUBURBS reported nearly three times as many multiple-family housing units as last February, with 320 units this year compared to 109 last year. The unincorporated area had 75 units compared with only 10 units a year ago.

Des Plaines ranked as one of the housing leaders in 1976, with permits issued for three homes and 40 multiple-family housing units.

The combined total permits issued for houses and apartments in the first two months of 1976 are 16 per cent above last year's figures, reaching 2,534 compared to 2,188 in 1975.

Locally, building permit values in the Northwest suburbs increased in most towns. Arlington Heights' permit values jumped from $160,536 last February to $645,555 this February. Other towns where permit values increased are:

• Buffalo Grove, from $39,850 to $160,342.

• Hoffman Estates, from $6,350 to $33,150.

• Schaumburg, from $1,827,138 to $4,931,282.

• Wheeling, from $130,217 to $209,868.

Building permit values for all types of construction were $154,447,359, a 69 per cent increase from $91,143,443 last year. Permit values increased 22 per cent in the suburbs, 97 per cent in unincorporated areas and more than doubled in Chicago.

Check options carefully before renting apartment

The temptation to change apartments peaks twice a year, when managers send out lease renewals in February and July, 90 days before the traditional May 1 and October 1 lease dates.

That's when you find out whether and how much the landlord plans to raise your rent and when you begin to wonder where you might find greener pastures.

If you're really looking for a better deal than you think you're getting, you have to examine carefully not just how much you are paying but what you are getting for your rent dollar.

If you don't take the time to learn what's included in your apartment lease, and what isn't, you may be letting yourself in for some big disappointments, advises one Chicago management authority.

"Maybe that wonderful swimming pool, sauna, tennis court, and party room are available to you as a tenant and to your guests free of charge, and maybe they're not," said William D. Sally, vice president and general manager of the property management division of Baird & Warner Inc.

"The same goes for cooking gas, air conditioning, and even hot water. You just can't assume that basic service as well as amenities come with the apartment. There are too many exceptions, so it pays to investigate," he said.

An ethical leasing and management agent will make it perfectly clear in the advertising, literature, lease form, and tenant information just what your monthly rent buys.

"If anything isn't clear, feel free to ask the rental agent," Sally says. "He should have the answer and state it positively. If he tries to duck, you can expect trouble."

A checklist of things to ask about when you look at apartments should include the following questions.

• Who pays for the heat? It used to be that the landlord furnished heat to all apartments. But in many newer apartments today, electric heat is provided, and the tenant pays the bill as registered on his electric meter. Some garden-type apartments have central gas or oil heating units for each apartment, and again, the tenant pays for the fuel used.

"If you're paying for the heat, call the local utility and find out what the typical monthly charge is, so you won't be surprised," Sally said.

• Who pays for hot water? There are some apartments today which have individual hot water heaters, and the tenant pays for the fuel or power.

• What about air-conditioning? If the apartment has window or wall unit air conditioners, chances are the tenant pays for the electricity. If the apartment is centrally air conditioned, the tenant may pay for the electricity used to operate the circulating fans in his apartment. Check this.

• Is cooking gas free? In some buildings, particularly all-gas structures, the gas for your oven and range may be free, a good bonus if it is. The normal arrangement is to pay separately for cooking gas.

• Is your electric service limited to your apartment? Some landlords have been known to tap into tenant circuits for hall lighting and even to operate mechanical equipment, such as a water pump.

"The best way to check is to operate the circuit breaker in your apartment or remove the fuses one by one to see if anything outside the apartment is affected," Sally said.

• Is window-washing included? If so, how often are windows washed? If there's a charge, what is it?

• How about parking? Whether it's inside or outside, parking may involve an extra charge of anywhere from $10 to $50 per month. If an attendant parks your car, there's a tip. Ask about guest parking, too.

• Will the floor be finished? In brand-new apartments, the floor is usually raw concrete, although some buildings put in tile. If the floor is unfinished, the tenant is expected to carpet or tile it, which may involve quite an expense. Don't assume that just because the model apartment is carpeted, yours will be, too.

• Is there a charge for special decorating? How much allowance is there for decorating on a new lease? Many buildings limit your choice of colors. If you want something different or if you want wallpaper, you may have to pay for the privilege or at least guarantee to restore the walls to their original condition when you move.

• How much is the master TV antenna? You probably will be charged an installation fee plus a monthly use charge.

• Is there a private bus to take tenants to and from the nearest commuter station or business district? Some apartment owners play up this feature, but they may charge extra for it.

• What about charges or clean up fees for use of recreation and hospitality facilities? Even though you're a tenant, you may have to pay extra to use the tennis courts, swimming pool, party room, sauna and other facilities.

If equipment is needed, there may be a charge to rent it. And even if these facilities are free to you, guests or relatives may have to pay.

• Are there custodial charges? For example, if you find yourself locked out of your apartment, there may be a charge for the janitor to come up and let you in. What about charges for after-hours emergency repairs in your apartment?

• What's the Christmas tipping custom? You may be pressured to come up with a large amount. Although tipping isn't compulsory, if your building has many service personnel that you depend on, you may find that it's better to tip generously than to skip.

• What are the fees, if any, if you want to sublease or re-lease the apartment? Owners or agents will usually charge for this because of the paperwork involved.

Another point to check is pets — are they permitted? Related to this is the type of resident the building wants. Ask about the kind of people who are renting, and casually observe the other people in the rental office.

"You may find that a building which purports to be for quiet people is filled up with swinging party people, and they're in the apartment next to yours," Sally said.

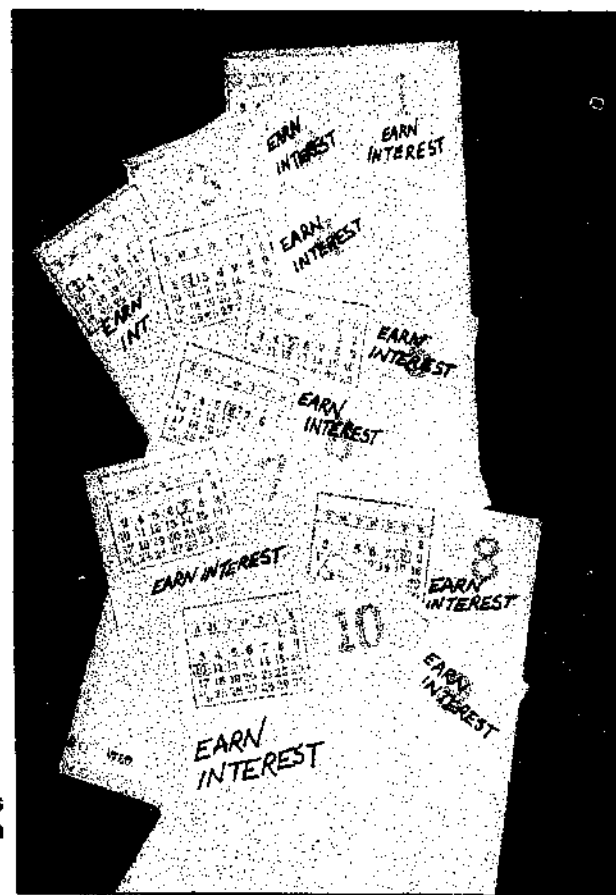

It's not that renting is that difficult, he said. The point is, as with everything else involving your commitment to a large sum of money over a year or more, it pays to investigate.

"Pick a building managed by a reputable property management firm, and you're generally safe," he said. "Such a firm doesn't want to jeopardize its reputation by having unhappy tenants. And for this reason, the good firm won't represent a landlord who isn't on the up-and-up."

Sally suggests that you should hunt quickly as well as carefully if your present lease is up for renewal. He explains that a lease renewal is not a contract until it has been signed by the tenant, returned to the owner, and signed by him. Until this is done, the lease renewal can be changed or even withdrawn.

The usual timetable is that the renewal is mailed 90 days in advance and if you don't sign and return it in 45 days your apartment is up for grabs, even though you technically still have 45 days.

"But the more you delay signing a renewal the greater the risk that your apartment will be rented to someone else. So while you are scouring the market for the best deal in town somebody may decide your apartment is the best deal in town," Sally said.

HUD tells plan to aid home buyers

All these homes would be assessed at 22 per cent of their fair market value as provided by law.

In the case of multifamily properties sold by HUD, assessments would be based on 75 per cent of the sale price. During the period of rehabilitation and rent-up the assessment will remain based upon the sale price. As with conventional multifamily properties, the assessor will analyze the annual occupancy of these properties and the assessment will be adjusted upward on the basis of income and expense accruing to the property.

The experience of the assessor's office indicates a two year rehab and rent-up period during which lowered assessments can be maintained. After rent-up is completed a full assessment will be rendered. Tully said.

HUD Secretary Carla A. Hill hailed the agreement as an example of metropolitan Chicago moving forward to "recycle housing." She called on other counties throughout the country to follow suit in working to improve neighborhood housing stock with tax incentive plans.

The new Illinois Home Improvement Exemption Law was adopted by the Illinois Legislature and signed into law last year.

Mr. Waner said his office currently has 2,251 homes and 32 multifamily properties with 3,727 units in the city and 474 homes and 3 multifamily properties with 372 units in suburban Cook County which could benefit from the newly adopted assessing procedures.

Big monthly gain told by S&L's

Savings deposits at savings and loan associations grew by an estimated $3.8 billion making it the largest February savings gain in the history of the business, the United States League of Savings Associations reported.

In its monthly Trends Report the trade association said that the estimated $3.8 billion savings gain topped last year's February gain of $3.3 billion by 15 per cent.

The league bases its Trends Report on reports received from 917 associations holding 47 per cent of the assets of the business.

The Trends pointed out that as in January, the gain in savings deposits appears to have been well distributed in the sense that there were no concentrations of heavy gains in any asset size groups or geographic areas.

February's estimated inflow of $3.8 billion plus January's increase of $5.1 billion brought the total gain in deposits for the first two months of the year to an extraordinary $9.2 billion, the Trends said.

Associations closed loans during February of an estimated $1 billion. This lending volume was a new high for February, passing the previous record of $777 million set in February 1973. The net gain of $3.8 billion in savings plus mortgage loan repayments of $2 billion provided associations with $1.8 billion in loanable funds.

Commitments moved up to $12.7 billion, a substantial rise over the $11.1 billion outstanding at the end of January, the Trends Report said. "The $12.7 billion represents a new high in outstanding commitments in February and surpasses even the high levels obtained during the summer months of 1975."

The Trends said that the surge in savings gains, the increase in liquidity, the stability in home loan bank advances and the unusual strength in loan commitments indicate there should be a substantial increase in mortgage lending during the second quarter. Closings in the April-June period are expected to top last year's $15.5 billion.

Dow up 7 points, closes just short of 1,000 mark

NEW YORK (UPI) — A late afternoon rally Wednesday pushed the Dow Jones industrial average to the door of the 1,000 level in slow trading on the New York Stock Exchange in the face of concerns over strikes at home and war in Lebanon.

The Dow Industrials, an 11-point loser the previous two sessions, gained 7.32 points to 999.45. The blue-chip average finished the first quarter with a gain of 147.04 points, or 17.25 per cent less than the 24.6 per cent gain in the same period last year.

The Dow's high for this quarter was reached March 24, when it closed at 1,009.21.

Other averages rose during the day. Standard & Poor's 500-stock index rose 0.76 to 102.77, the NYSE common stock index 0.37 to 54.80 and the average price of an NYSE common share by 23 cents.

THE MARKET's breadth figures reflected considerable investor uncertainty. Advances topped declines, 892 to 345, among the 1,863 issues crossing the tape. But 426 remained unchanged.

Volume totaled 17,520,000 shares, down from the 17,930,000 traded Tuesday and sharply below the average of around 28 million shares daily in the first quarter. Volume for the entire first quarter, however, totaled a record 1.76 billion shares.

There was little optimism in financially-troubled New York City where Wall Streeters were worried about a looming transit strike. The NYSE and American Stock Exchanges said they would close at 3 p.m. EST Thursday in the event of a strike.

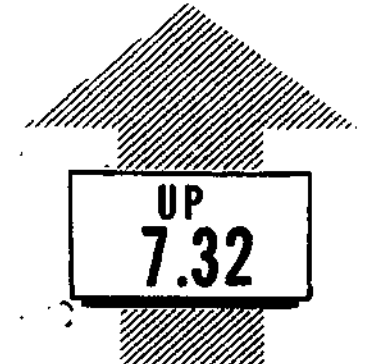

EASTMAN KODAK climbed 3 to 118 3/4 after the company introduced new copier products it said would totally automate the copying job. Xerox, the giant of the copier field, was the second most active big board issue, falling 5/8 to 55 7/8 on 293,000 shares. The stock lost 2 1/4 Tuesday after a major brokerage house advised caution until analysts can examine Kodak's products.

IBM gained 1 3/4 to 262 after the company introduced four new System-32 applicator programs. Other electronics and computers were mixed. Digital Equipment gained 2 1/4 to 175 1/2, Hewlett-Packard 2 1/4 to 115 1/4 and Texas Instruments 1 to 125.

Southern Co. topped the Big Board active, up 1/8 to 15 1/8 on 348,100 shares, including a block of 275,200 shares at 15. General Motors was third, up 1/2 to 70 1/8 on 182,100 shares.

Prices closed higher in moderate trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share increased by four cents. Volume totaled 2,880,000 shares, compared with 2,210,000 traded Tuesday.

12% building value hike forecast in 1976 by firm

The construction market will undergo a number of significant changes this year as the economy continues to move from recession to recovery, according to a leading authority on construction activity.

The latest update of the 1976 Dodge-Sweet's Construction Outlook predicts total construction contract value in 1976 will advance 12 per cent to $102.5 billion, with almost all of the increase due to housing. In addition, composition of the nonresidential building market will change with institutional construction receding and commercial work gaining strength. General manufacturing building will take up some of the slack produced by declining energy-related manufacturing projects.

The report prepared version of the annual forecast prepared and issued last October by McGraw-Hill Information Systems Co., stressed that the long decline in the all-important nonresidential building market may finally have hit bottom, setting the scene for stage two of the economic recovery.

Stage one, which covered most of 1975, consisted of early pickup in housing construction plus some temporary public works projects which typically come forth at the depth of a recession, said George A. Christie, vice president and chief economist of the firm's statistical gathering F. W. Dodge Division.

Christie said in addition to an expected change in the composition of the nonresidential construction market, he also sees a recovery in commercial building resulting from the impetus of 1975's and 1976's increased housing activity.

Housing, which started off 1976 with a 10 per cent gain from a year earlier, is expected to show continued recovery throughout the year. According to Christie, housing starts should reach a rate of 1.7 million in the fourth quarter and total 1.5 million for the year.

Christie said that contracting for new manufacturing facilities rose 22 per cent in 1975 to a record $6.8 billion, due principally to the impact of $4 billion in construction of petroleum and petrochemical facilities.

As energy-related construction drops back to a more normal level, said Christie, "a recovery in the construction of general manufacturing plants — which actually showed a 25 per cent decline last year — will take up some but not all of the slack."

Christie said that the impact of inflation, recession and Federal budget-tightening is constraining institutional construction, especially educational building. He sees no improvement until these circumstances change.

The immediate outlook suggests

'76 mortgage money ample: realty unit

New savings have been flowing into savings and loans since the start of the year, leading the National Association of Realtors to predict there will be an ample supply of mortgage funds for the rest of 1976.

The association's department of economics and research said this means a strong level of housing activity for the rest of the year.

The report also said the favorable money supply improves prospects that mortgage interest rates will dip to the 8 7/8 or 8 5/8 per cent range, instead of the current 9 to 9 3/4 per cent.

The department further reports that single-family home starts in February increased 37 1/2 per cent from January but new home sales in January slumped 15 7/8 per cent.

Seasonally adjusted annual rates for new single-family home construction was 1,303,000 and new home sales, 532,000 units.

The supply of new homes available for sale in January totaled 384,000 units up 6,000 from December. The report said the 384,000 units is about an 8 1/2 month supply at current sales rates.

Starts of multi-family housing units continued to drop on a month-to-month basis. February's construction starts totaled 252,000 units, down 8 per cent from January's units.

Rental vacancy rates have declined sharply because of the low level of multi-family housing production. The department predicts the rental market will tighten even further through 1976, exerting a strong upward pressure on rents.

The department's report also indicated that sales of existing single-family homes, which slumped in January, rebounded in February to recover part of the previous month's lost ground.

"more churning than gaining" in nonresidential building markets, Christie said.

"We are finally beginning to see the changes in direction that will set up the prospect of a sizable advance in nonresidential building in 1977," observed Christie.

Record of sales agreement a necessity

The recording of an agreement of sale is an important technicality, understood by few laymen. If the agreement allows the buyer the right to record, then the seller is at a disadvantage. It can lead to serious consequences, as explained below.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: Is it important for a buyer to have the right to record an agreement of sale? I own a 12-acre parcel. The buyer, a large company, is offering a fair price. Typed in large letters on the agreement is the statement, "The seller agrees that the buyer has the right to record the agreement at his option." To me, the statement appears unimportant. The fact that this large company is insisting on this clause must make it important, and therefore it has caused me to hesitate — NOT WELL VERSED IN REAL ESTATE.

The right to record an agreement of sale is very important. It can seriously affect the owner's property rights.

The right to record an agreement places the buyer in a very advantageous position if any disagreements or misunderstandings arise. By recording, a "cloud is placed on the title." It would be almost impossible to sell the property until the title defect is removed. This can sometimes take several years of litigation. It is an excellent clause for the buyer, against the best interests of the seller.

In practice, the usual agreement does not give the buyer the right to record. I have always recommended to clients selling property that the agreement prohibit the buyer from recording. It can save them untold trouble.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: After 20

Mr. Meltzer on real estate

by Bernard Meltzer

years my house has suddenly developed spreading cracks in the walls and foundation. The whole house isn't cracking up — only one corner, which contains the kitchen. It's gotten so bad the doors won't close and the windows won't open any more.

A builder I called in to look at it told me not to worry because it is only "routine settlement, aggravated by vibrations from the washing machine." Shall I wait until I buy a new washing machine before making the repairs — or shall I do it now? — CRACKIN' UP.

In spite of what the builder told you, your problem has nothing to do with your washing machine. The sudden appearance of the cracks you describe in the foundation and walls — after 20 years — indicates a sudden collapse of ground support in the area of your kitchen's corner of the house.

Before it gets worse, I suggest that you consult a civil engineer or an architect to examine the situation, for the footings beneath the kitchen must be supported.

This job can be an expensive undertaking, so you may not be able to afford that new washing machine.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: The exterior of every house on our block is covered with big paint blisters. Our house is the worst.

Every spring for the past four years we have had the house painted. By July, the paint blisters are back. I have tried every kind of paint, including those guaranteed not to blister.

What can we do? — POCK-MARKED HOUSES.

Drop your paint brush and begin looking for the cause of the problem. Paint blisters are almost always the result of entrapped moisture.

There is probably a structural deficiency which is allowing rainwater to get behind and inside the walls. The hot sun vaporizes the moisture, resulting in paint blisters.

The water may be getting into the walls from improperly installed gutters, poor caulking, faulty downspouts or other reasons. If you or your neighbors can't locate the trouble, I recommend that you consult a builder. The trouble spots should not be hard to locate.

DEAR MR. MELTZER: I am very confused about condominiums and cooperative apartments. Can you tell me what the difference is? — NOT UP ON THINGS.

In a condominium a person actually has ownership of his apartment. He can mortgage it, sell it, will it to his heirs. He can do with it anything he can do with any owned real estate.

In a cooperative apartment, one holds a share of ownership in the corporation owning the entire apartment house, rather than ownership of any specific unit or identifiable part of the apartment house.

Illinois business climate judged 'only fair to poor'

CHICAGO (UPI) — Most Downstate and Chicago-area businessmen feel Illinois has only a fair to poor business climate and they compare Illinois unfavorably with eight other leading industrial states, the Illinois State Chamber of Commerce reported.

Lester W. Brann, ISCC president, told a news conference responses by 1,083 chamber members to a survey showed:

- A total of 79 per cent of all persons surveyed thought Illinois has a "just fair" or "poor" business climate with "this unfavorable ratio of about 4 to 1... essentially the same regardless of location in Chicago, Chicago suburbs, or downstate."

- In comparing Illinois' business climate with that of eight other industrial states (California, Indiana, Michigan, New Jersey, New York, Ohio, Pennsylvania and Texas) nearly half of the respondents portrayed Illinois as "unfavorable" while 20 per cent were neutral and only 23 per cent gave Illinois a "favorable" rating.

- Only the state's transportation network was viewed as favorable by a majority of the respondents

- Unfavorable factors cited were

"unemployment and workmen's compensation costs, attitudes of political leaders, lack of incentives for business development, taxes affecting business, labor-management relations and environmental regulations."

Brann said significant themes emerged from the survey. They included:

- The antibusiness attitude on the part of the legislature and the governor were cited as major factors in the state's deteriorating business climate.

- The power of labor and the pro-labor attitude of government was also mentioned as an influence in the state's legislative posture.

- Recent increases in state unemployment insurance tax rates and workmen's compensation costs were singled out as especially detrimental to business' ability to function in Illinois.

Brann said a more detailed survey conducted among 76 of the state's largest manufacturers who employ 268,233 persons and hold investments estimated at more than $7 billion, also showed disenchantment.

"While their total dollar investment in Illinois has increased over the past 10 years and will further increase during the next decade," Brann said, "their relative share of total capital investment going into Illinois had declined and will further decline over the next 10 years."

More families add rec rooms to their homes

Recreation rooms showed the biggest gain in home improvement jobs last year compared to 1974, according to figures of $195 million Lincoln Federal Savings and Loan Association.

In a random sampling of 400 remodeling loans, rec areas posted a 78 per cent step up over the previous year.

Close behind was the 61 per cent improvement scored by room additions and dormers.

President Frank J. Kinst of the Berwyn based institution said that the figures came as no surprise.

"With the tightening of our economy, people commenced making their homes more attractive for family activities so that expensive 'nights out' could be replaced by equally enjoyable 'nights in.' What's more they like the result," he said.

"Also we have noted a trend by expanding families to prefer remaining in neighborhoods where they have established roots rather than invading new areas requiring a repeat round of pioneering.

"Often the addition of one or two bedrooms will permit a family to stay in environs it enjoys... the same friends, schools, church and stores. And, usually it costs considerably less than meeting today's inflated housing costs."

'ERA' replaces Homefinders firm

A new real estate firm in the Northwest suburbs has come into being with the announcement that ERA has replaced the 12 Homefinders offices headed by Robert L. Zaun.

Zaun and his partner, Jan Behrens, head up the new organization and continue with the same 12 offices in Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Lake Zurich, Libertyville, McHenry, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Roseville, Schaumburg, Streamwood and Waukegan.

Executive headquarters of ERA is at 235 N. Northwest Highway, Palatine.

The name "Homefinders" reverts to the franchise office of the same name.

"We are the same organization, management and sales force which sold $53,500,000 in home sales last year and which has helped our northwest neighbors buy and sell thousands of homes in the last eight years," Zaun said. "As new times and trends enter the real estate market, we have to change with them, and that is why we have turned to 'ERA'."

ERA — or Electronic Realty Associates — is the Kansas City City-based network of real estate offices throughout the United States which provides "shared identity" for its affiliates.

"This enables us to offer buyers and sellers in this area our unique combination of independence as brokers plus a tie-in with a national network of 714 real estate offices," notes Behrens, who as a partner in Homefinders saw that company place consistently in the "Top Ten" of ERA's classifications of listings, referrals and sales for the last three years.

ERA was organized in Kansas City as an unusual "moving machine," utilizing telephone facsimile equipment to help a buyer in one part of the country select his home in another area.

Through the use of its electronic transmitting equipment and recording device, ERA provides "living room" shopping for persons seeking residences in the Northwest suburbs and elsewhere, usually because of company transfers. The man or woman can view six pictures of different residences in the new community at one time and make a preference prior to visiting the area and seeing the house in person.

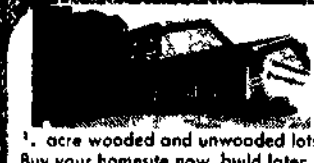

Behrens and Zaun joined the ERA program three years ago, and their Homefinders organization became a vital part of ERA. ERA has now inaugurated the new program in which "service brokers" can now organize franchise operations within their own given area on a "shared identity" basis with the main office in Kansas City.

Jan Behrens and Robert Zaun will be the ERA service brokers in this area. Through the shared identity program they will be able to present extensive television, radio, newspaper and magazine advertising in conjunction with the national promotion program, in addition to their own graphics and publications.

ERA is the only national real estate organization which has a buyers protection plan which provides for the repair and/or replacement of essential home components for one full year after the date of closing of the sale.

Protection under the buyers protection plan covers deficiencies in the heating system, plumbing system, entire electrical system within the home, water heaters, sheet metal duct work, central air conditioning systems, built-in appliances such as dishwashers and disposals, all plumbing fixtures except toilet seats and water softeners.

Truly fine living in a home designed and built for you.

THE IDEA HOME

The home pictured below, like most of our homes, includes a full basement, three car garage with electric door opener, air conditioning, humidification, brick or stone veneer, cedar siding, screened in porch, oak cabinetry and two fireplaces. In addition, our Idea Home has many unique concepts.

Idea No. 1—Site Planning
As with all homes designed by Barrington Construction Company, the Idea Home was individually designed for the natural terrain of the lot. There is a dry creek that meanders diagonally across the property with trees along each side. The home was sited to the side of the creek and to the rear of the trees on the high part of the lot. The walk from the drive to the front door is made with used railroad ties and landscaped with shrubbery and shredded bark.

Idea No. 2—Entrance
The centrally located foyer distributes traffic to six areas: the living room, family room, kitchen, laundry room, den, second floor. The foyer floor is a country provincial ceramic tile. The exterior door locks, interior door knobs, switch plates, cabinet handles, and bathroom hardware are the same pattern in order to develop a consistent trim finish theme.

Idea No. 3—Kitchen
The kitchen is designed in a country motif. The cabinets have solid oak paneled doors in distressed walnut. Total cooking capability is provided by a microwave oven, a self-clean oven, ceramic cooktop, indoor grill and griddle. The ceramic tile cooking center is framed with heavy, solid cedar beams and columns dark stained. A new type of kitchen sink has an oversized compartment for washing large pots and pans. Instead of peninsula wall cabinets which cut the kitchen in half, the wall cabinets are installed between the base cabinets and the breakfast area to make a 3' wide cabinet and countertop area and workspace. A 1' high back on the pass-through countertop shields the kitchen from the breakfast area. There is a 30" expanse of glass across the kitchen, breakfast room, and family room.

Idea No. 4—Family Room/Screened Porch
The family room is paneled with rough-sawn horizontal cedar boards of the same pattern as the exterior siding. The ceiling has heavy rough-sawn cedar beams that are solid timber. To each side of the fireplace are sliding glass doors leading to a large screened-in porch. The screening goes from the floor to the underside of the cedar rafters which are 16' high at their highest point.

Idea No. 5—Laundry Room/Powder Room
The laundry is finished uniquely so that it may be considered as part of the foyer, part of the den-guest room, or a hallway to the powder room. If the pocket door between the laundry and foyer is open and the closet doors are closed over the laundry fixtures, it becomes a hallway to the luxurious powder room. If the pocket door is shut, the powder room becomes a private bath for the den-guest room.

Idea No. 6—Den/Guest Room
The den-guest room has a full wall of bookshelves. It has windows to the south and west. It also has sliding glass doors to the porch on the north side. With glass on three sides, the den-guest room is a very light-bright room.

Idea No. 7—Owner's Suite
Upstairs, there are four large bedrooms. The owner's suite is several rooms in one. A fireplace divides the sleeping area from the sitting room. There are sliding glass doors from the sitting room to a wood deck overlooking a lake. The dressing room has three-way, full-length mirror doors, a double walk-in closet with 24 of clothespole, and a large linen closet. There are double bath vanities with 24k gold plated faucets. The vanity top is raised an extra 4" in height and has a marble cosmetic ledge. There is a luminous ceiling over the vanity area with full height mirror completely covering three walls.

Irregular income's impact can be eased by planning

Making ends meet in today's inflation-ridden economy can be tough enough when you work with a regular paycheck. Managing can be doubly difficult when income is irregular and unscheduled. Two letters asking for help arrived in the same mail — one from a self-employed couple with 20 years' experience.

The other states a common problem: "After 15 years in contracting, we still get ourselves overextended when bad weather comes and no money comes in." Contractors must wrestle with the weather as well as cash flow, which is the perennial problem of the self-employed. With industry taking more time to pay its bills, a self-employed worker can starve with thousands on the books as accounts receivable.

A year-ahead plan answers most problems with an irregular income. Luck, weather, the right season or general economic conditions can and do affect the individual's take. One insurance salesman told me he took in $20 one month and $4,000 the next.

WHEN YOU KNOW income will be irregular, take action today to minimize the impact. From studying the successful operators strengthened with personal experience, you can benefit from these actions:

Plan a full year's spending ahead. Project your yearly income from past records. If records are sketchy, pull yearly earnings from income tax returns. Forecast whether the coming year will be better or worse than the average for the past three years. When you have adjusted yearly income from past records with your own forecast for the coming year, pick a figure 10 to 15 per cent less as your available income.

If you earn up to your projection, the difference will support a higher level of spending the following year. If earnings fall 10 to 15 per cent below your projection, your spending is still within income. And you're still solvent with no debt load to worry about.

Divide the year's available income into monthly increments. If you project yearly net (after-tax) earnings of $12,000, plan $1,000 per month spending. The figure should level off the high months and fill in the dips. By projecting a regular income each month, you achieve what most wage-earners already have — a sustainable, regular income. If you take a new job that pays direct commissions or start a new business, allow at least two or three months for cash to start flowing.

OPERATE ON A cash basis. Charging purchases gets enough people with regular incomes in trouble. For anyone on an irregular income, buying on credit can be dynamite. Invariably, as you are buoyed by the confidence of a good month, you relax spending controls and splurge a bit. You may yield to optimism and charge even more purchases. But the time lag can bring bills to pay when the cycle has turned down and cash is tight. When you owe only a few bills — or none at all — you can struggle through the dips.

Learn to anticipate the periods of low income. If you keep good records, you can predict the slow months or seasons. When you know which part of the cycle you're in, you can temper optimism during the highs and look forward to better times at the lows.

Managing your family's money

by MERLE E. DOWD

Set aside and maintain a larger than normal rainy-day fund. Families operating with a regular income can count on their next paycheck to bail them out of an over-extended position. If you sell on commission or operate your own business, you can't count on next week's cash flow to pay for this week's overspending.

You need a two-part emergency fund. One part compensates for the ups and downs you have learned to expect. The second part acts as a buffer against the unknown or unexpected emergencies. In industry these are the unknown unknowns or "unkunks."

Every family needs a well-organized spending plan to gain the most living value from a regular income.

Poor living conditions, housing squeeze predicted

Landlord warns against government rent freeze

Wouldn't it be nice if the government clamped controls on apartment rents so that your rent wouldn't go any higher?

To many apartment residents in an economic bind, the idea of rent control sounds great. But controls could make living conditions a great deal worse and would very likely aggravate a growing scarcity of rental apartments.

This is the belief of William D. Sally, vice president of Baird & Warner Inc. and general manager of the company's property management division.

"The net effect of rental controls would be to make it difficult if not impossible for owners to operate their buildings, and at the same time, continue discouraging developers from starting new apartments," he said.

Sally said rents have not risen as fast as apartment operating expenses and also not as fast as other segments of the economy. Even in an inflationary economy, rents are still a bargain, though this may be hard for some tenants to accept.

"The last announced rent increase for the Chicago area averaged 5.75 per cent on leases beginning Oct. 1, 1975, while leases beginning last May 1 were up an average 6.74 per cent," he said.

However, according to the National Association of Realtors, during 1974 maintenance and repair costs went up 10 to 15 per cent, gas and electricity costs were up 15 per cent, and fuel oil and coal jumped 57.8 per cent.

"These are among the biggest costs of operating an apartment building, and yet apartment owners kept their rent increases less than the increases in these major expenses," Sally said.

Looked at from the standpoint of wages, prices, and taxes, rents are lagging behind. Between the beginning of 1967 and the end of 1974, according to the U.S. Labor Department, average hourly earnings went up 63.3 per cent, consumer prices rose 55.5 per cent, and taxes jumped 51.2 per cent, while rents increased only 30 per cent.

"If rents had gone up as much as prices, an apartment renting for $180 in 1967 would rent for $280 today," Sally said. "Instead, the rent has gone up to only $234. So the notion that owners have been gouging tenants is untrue."

What's been keeping owners from raising rents as much as they could? Up to now, owners have hesitated because of high vacancy rates. They know that if they raise rents too much, people will move out to less expensive units. But the high vacancy rate has been disappearing as fewer and fewer new apartment buildings have been built. Existing units are being absorbed. In the city of Chicago, the vacancy rate averages 3 per cent. Only in certain outlying areas, principally the northwest suburbs, is the vacancy rate as high as 7 to 12 per cent, and that, too, is going down.

"Unless there is some reduction in the expenses of owning and operating a building, rents will have to move up," Sally said. "Today, more than half of property owners surveyed by the National Association of Realtors said the yields on their properties were less than they were a year ago. Far from making money, many property owners are breaking even or even losing."

A recent article in Forbes magazine (Sept. 15, 1975) noted that rent controls are turning private housing into a utility, and decreeing that owners must subsidize their tenants.

"It is a way of saying that providing reasonably priced housing is a duty of the local government, but since the local government dare not tax its citizens for that purpose, the unfortunate landlords will have to do the subsidizing," Forbes wrote.

Unfortunately, there is a limit to how much landlords can subsidize their tenants, Sally said. If controls make it impossible for owners to keep up with expenses, the building begins to go into the red. Once that happens, the owner begins to defer maintenance and repairs, cut services, and even get behind on tax payments. The worst that can happen is that he abandons the building.

Sally cites New York City as a prime example of what can happen with rent controls. New York has had rent controls since World War II.

Of New York's 122,000 walk-up apartments, 32 per cent in the poorest quarter of town and 15 per cent in the richest quarter are behind in their tax payments. If present trends continue, New York may have to bring foreclosure proceedings on from 200,000 to 250,000 housing units by June, 1977. That amounts to 25 per cent of New York's rental housing stock.

"In Chicago, the situation could be just as bad, because we have many more walk-up buildings and most of these are old, requiring high maintenance and operating expenses," Sally said. "Rent controls could really be devastating in this city."

Not only will rent controls work a hardship on existing buildings, but they'll discourage developers from putting up new rental buildings, Sally said. Multi-family housing starts were down 70 per cent in 1974 nationally, and they continue at depressed levels. In rent-controlled areas, lenders won't provide money for apartments and builders won't build them. This squeezes out the people rent control is supposed to help, people with modest incomes and those without down payments.

"Unless more new rental apartments are built, people who prefer and need apartments are going to be faced with a serious shortage in coming years," Sally said.

While rent controls are politically attractive, the real effort should be placed on controlling inflation throughout the economy, Sally said.

National Association of Realtors President Art S. Keitch said "government attempts to bring inflation under control by putting capricious constraints on just one major segment of the economy (rents) are misdirected."

He said if the costs that drive up rents can be moderated or even reversed, then rents can be held in line without controls.

Falcons win league indoor track crown

Vartanian takes 3 firsts to lead defending champs

by ART MUGALIAN

Four Forest View runners accounted for 47 points in an incredible display of power and stamina as the defending champion Falcons trampled the opposition on their way to another Mid-Suburban indoor track title Wednesday night at Buffalo Grove's fieldhouse.

Couch Bill Mohrmann's Falcons gathered 55 points in all, including an unprecedented total of seven first places, to easily outdistance runnerup Rolling Meadows (36½), Fremd (32½), Palatine (31), and Hoffman (27½).

The most awesome performance of the night was turned in by Forest View senior Jim Vartanian, who sped to three victories, including an upset win in the 50-yard dash over Meadows' Rick Sutton and a pair of record-breaking runs in the 50-yard high hurdles and the 50-lows.

The Falcons' success, their second straight indoor title and fourth championship in a row going back to the 1974 MSL outdoor, was made even more impressive by the fact that two of their key runners were ailing. Both of them however, contributed first-place efforts Wednesday.

State half-mile champion Steve Schellenberger, his right ankle taped heavily, cruised to a win in the 880, outkicking Fremd's Kurt Rutz to finish in 2:03.4, five full seconds short of his own meet record.

Then Falcon teammate Mike Harvey set a conference indoor record in the triple jump with a 43-3½ to take first in that event. Harvey, who also finished second behind Prospect's Brad Millar in the long jump, surpassed 42 feet on all six of his triple-jump attempts.

Forest View junior Darryl Robinson, the pre-meet favorite in both the mile and the two-mile, didn't let anyone down. Running with grace and style, Robinson maintained excellent position in both races and scooted to the front on the final two laps each time.

Robinson ran 9:47.0 in the two-mile, coming from in back of Prospect's Mark Smith for the victory. Smith ran 9:54.3. In the mile, Robinson fought his way out of a logjam to beat Conant's Bill Baird, who was second. The winning time was 4:31.5, three and a half seconds off the conference record.

Forest View also got points from shotputters Randy Galtich and Mike Mischnick, who were third and fourth behind winner Rich Huber of Rolling Meadows (52-0). The Falcons 12-lap relay team placed sixth.

Vartanian's victory in the 50 finals came just five minutes after he had held off Jim Wright of Prospect in the finals of the 50-highs, breaking his own indoor mark with a :06.4.

It took several reruns of the photometer to determine that Vartanian had nipped Sutton at the wire in the 50. Both runners were clocked in :05.6.

"I got a terrible start," said Vartanian later. "I stumbled and almost fell down."

Vartanian's record-setting :06.1 in the low hurdles came at the expense of Dave King of Elk Grove, who had run a :06.1 in the prelims to beat the Falcon hurdler. King was second in the finals, beaten clearly this time by Vartanian.

Kirk Morris of Palatine won the 440-yard dash in :53.4 after Schaumburg sophomore Jeff Ways — in the lead with about 30 yards to go — tripped on a cone and sprawled to the track. Morris had been putting a move on Ways when the accident occurred.

Rolling Meadows took three firsts, including a win in the final event, the 12-lap relay. Mustang high jumper Jeff Lund was the only finalist to move past 6-2, finally going out with a 6-3½, just a quarter-inch short of the official conference indoor record.

Prospect scored 25 points, getting a first from Millar in the long jump (20-7½) and seconds from Wright and Millar (in the high jump).

Hoffman Estates got a first from pole vaulter Dave Paape (13-6). Hersey, with 25 points, managed a first place from its four-lap relay team and seconds from shotputter Dave Komiss and triple jumper Dave Koelker.

Just three conference records fell — two to Vartanian and one to Harvey, in the triple jump.

International prep meet draws track superstars

The Fifth Annual International Prep Invitational Track Meet is scheduled for Saturday, June 12, at 3:00 p.m. at Northwestern's Dyche Stadium in Evanston, and already the track community is in awe over the quality of talent that will be present.

Supermeet V, as it has come to be called without a trace of exaggeration, might very well be the most impressive gathering of high school performers ever assembled in one place before — in any sport.

The meet's sponsors have committed themselves to being the very best track men and women to the Chicagoland area. And the long list of past performers in this prestigious meet reads like a Who's Who of Track and Field — Ronnie Ray, Craig Virgin, Tim Johnson, Mike McFarland, Ted Scales and many more.

This year the crop of outstanding prep seniors is unprecedented. Among the Illinois athletes who have already accepted invitations are defending state champions Ron Craker of York (Elmhurst), Greg Foster of Proviso East (Maywood), and Steve Schellenberger of Forest View (Arlington Heights). Foster has shattered a pair of national hurdlers records already this spring after sweeping the high and low in record times at the state meet last year.

Craker won the Illinois Class AA two-mile in 9:02.9 and Schellenberger captured first place in the 880 in 1:51.9.

Among the top athletes from around the nation who will receive invitations are Houston McTear, the record-breaking sprinter from Florida; Thom Hunt, a four-minute miler from Southern California; Eddie Tate, the nation's best triple jumper from Bloom High School in Chicago Heights, Ill.; and a pair of 16-foot-plus pole vaulters, Brian Kimball of Ft. Wayne, Ind., and Mike McCrindle of Bloom High.

As an added inducement, each of the 19 event-winners will get an all-expenses-paid trip to Hawaii. There will be 17 men's events and two women's races, plus a special Chicagoland Mile Relay.

Last year's meet at Prospect High School in Mount Prospect featured nine new records, including an incredible 440/220 double by Virginia's Ronnie Harris. Harris ran :46.3 in the 440 and came back for a phenomenal :20.6 in the 220.

This year, for the first time, the meet will be held at Northwestern's Dyche Stadium on a fast Tartan surface. The purpose for the switch in sites is to accommodate the many track fans who have flocked from miles around to witness the Midwest's finest prep track meet. Tickets are available, $3 in advance, $4 at the gate. The meet is sponsored by Coca-Cola Bottling Co. of Chicago.

For more information, contact Joe Newton, the meet director, at York High School (530-1240) or in the evenings (654-3240).

Harper Hawks return with 4-1 diamond mark

The Harper Hawks baseball team returned from a rain-shortened road trip through the south with a 4-1 record, courtesy of some time hitting and strong pitching by five different hurlers.

Dave Patterson opened the season on the mound for the Hawks, going all seven innings to turn back the Southern Illinois Jayvees, 8-3.

Patterson struck out nine and allowed only four hits plus drove in a run with a walk.

The Hawks broke loose in the fourth inning, pushing across five runs to wipe out a 3-0 Sakaki lead.

Gary Oslance, Joe Calomino and Steve Raccuglia all had run scoring singles in that inning.

Harper had another big fourth inning in their next game as they punched out seven runs en route to an 11-3 win over Paducah.

Tom Good threw a complete game for the Hawks, fanning three.

Second baseman Dave Mills had a two-run single in the seven-run fourth. Marty Luquet drove in another run with a single and Patterson, playing first base, slapped a two-run homer.

Paducah pushed across two runs in the first and another in the sixth to thwart the Hawks 3-2 in the second game.

Jim Busby went the route for the Hawks on the mound, allowing only two earned runs.

Designated hitter Dar Townsend doubled in the third inning to drive in Raccuglia and Luquet for the only Harper runs.

Harper wound up the trip with a pair of wins over Dyersburg State, crapping for 17 hits in the first game for a 13-7 win.

Harper trailed 7-6 going into the sixth inning when singles by Dave Mnichowicz, Luquet and Steve Raccuglia and a double by Townsend scored four runs for the Hawks.

They padded their lead in the seventh when Mnichowicz opened with a double and was driven in by a Steve Arneri single.

Mills then singled in Arneri and Patterson drove in the final run with a single, scoring Raccuglia who had reached on a walk.

Scott Green went the distance to get the win for Harper.

Townsend allowed one earned run and struck out nine as he threw the Hawks' fifth straight complete game, turning Dyersburg back 4-2.

Townsend's sacrifice fly, a double by Green and base hits by Raccuglia and Luquet drove in the Harper runs.

Benefit to aid injured player; fund started for Mike Schwass

A benefit hockey game for Mike Schwass, a senior at Notre Dame High School, will be held Sunday, April 11 at the Northbrook Sports Complex.

Mike, who lives in Des Plaines, is a hockey fanatic and hoped to attend Lake Forest College on a hockey scholarship after his graduation from Notre Dame.

But in a game Dec. 4, Mike was checked hard into the boards and paralyzed in both the arms and the legs. He is currently taking treatment at the Chicago Rehabilitation Center.

Tickets for the game, which will be played at 6 p.m., are on sale for $3.00. They can be purchased at the door or in advance from Mrs. Salemi, 5503 Pioneer, Chicago.

People wishing to make donations are urged to send them to the Mike Schwass Benefit Fund, care of the First National Bank of Niles.

The money raised from the benefit game will go towards paying Mike's expenses. In addition to his medical expenses, his family must also add onto their home to make room for a rehabilitation gym, buy a van with a lift and purchase a special wheelchair for Mike.

Problem areas still plague Texas

(This is the 8th in a series of 24 baseball spring training sizeups).

POMPANO BEACH, Fla. (UPI) — The Texas Rangers were supposed to be the surprise team in the American League West last season. They were a surprise all right. They were picked to finish first by many and finished a disappointing third, 19 games behind the champion Oakland A's.

Needless to say, this year there will be plenty of changes made.

Frank Lucchesi was the club's first major change. He replaced Billy Martin as manager in July of last season and did a commendable enough job to be rehired. Now it is his ball club and he has already made some key moves which he hopes can make the Rangers a contender this season.

"Obviously, we need defensive improvement," says Lucchesi, "and I think we will get it through employing a set lineup. There will be as little juggling as possible. I'm a firm believer in putting the best fellows on the field and letting them play."

Some of Lucchesi's changes involve the switching of Mike Hargrove from the outfield to first base, his natural position, and putting Roy Smalley at second. Also, Roy Howell, who improved steadily at third base last season, will be installed there on a regular basis.

Youth is the Rangers' strong suit. Of the eight players Lucchesi hopes to start regularly, the oldest are shortstop Toby Harrah and left-fielder Lenay Randle, both of whom are only 27.

"Essentially we have a young, eager, hungry club," says Lucchesi. "We have kids coming into their prime and some of them can be outstanding. I think we'll bounce back. I'm not a predictor, but I'll predict this. We're gonna be very competitive. We're not gonna be palsies for anybody and we will be a contender."

STRENGTHS — Lots of punch offensively with Jeff Burroughs (29 homers, 94 RBI's), Harrah (20 hrs., 93 RBI's), or Tom Grieve (14 hrs., 61 RBI's) and Hargrove (.303, 62 RBI's) one of league's best righthanders in Gaylor Perry.

WEAKNESSES — No pitching depth; poor defensive outfield; weak-hitting catcher in Jim Sundberg (.199); only average bench.

NEW FACES — Juan Beniquez, obtained from Red Sox in Ferguson Jenkins trade, is being tabbed as starting centerfielder; Gene Chines, coming over from Mets, adds outfield help; John Ellis, from Cleveland, could be right-handed DH and will backup Sundberg behind the plate; Bill Singer, from Angels, is listed as No. 2 starting pitcher.

OUTLOOK — Should improve on last year's mark but unlikely to finish higher than third in division.

Yanks call balk on Messersmith

The New York Yankees claimed Wednesday that free agent Andy Messersmith reneged on a four-year, $1 million contract with them and appealed to Baseball Commissioner Bowie Kuhn to step in and settle the matter.

A hearing in the commissioner's New York office has been scheduled for 2 p.m. EST Thursday.

Kuhn gave some indication of what his ruling might be when he called attention to a provision in baseball's rules which states that an agreement between a player and a club before a contract is signed can bind that player to the club.

Messersmith's agent, Herb Osmond, and Yankees' President Gabe Paul both signed a written agreement Tuesday providing for Messersmith to pitch for the Yankees in 1976, 1977, 1978 and 1979 for $1 million and it is that agreement which is at the seat of the dispute.

Part of the salary to Messersmith was to be made in the form of deferred payments over a 20-year period and it is believed that the interest on the deferred money was at the root of the breakdown in negotiations. At six per cent, the interest on deferred payments would come to approximately $450,000 over 20 years.

Paul said he had bargained in good faith with Osmond and had been told that Osmond had the power of attorney for Messersmith.

Black Hawks blitz hapless Scouts

Stan Mikita had two goals and assisted Cliff Koroll on another to lead Chicago to a 6-3 victory over the Kansas City Scouts Wednesday night that gave the Black Hawks a two-point edge over idle Vancouver in the NHL's Conn Smythe divisional race.

Mikita had a power play goal 9:06 into the game and scored his 16th goal of the season 5:47 into the second period for what proved to be the game winner. Dick Redmond also tallied on a first period 50-foot slapshot to give Chicago a 2-0 lead.

Gary Croteau scored twice for Kansas City, which has now gone 20 games without a victory and has a 1-32-8 record in their last 41 games.

Sixth Piston win keeps Bulls on skid

The Detroit Pistons outscored the Chicago Bulls 16-6 late in the third period Wednesday night to break away from a 59-59 tie and roll on to a 102-96 victory, stretching their longest winning streak of the season to six games.

The loss was the seventh in a row for Chicago and also the team's 54th of the season to set a team record.

John Mengelt scored 23 points and Bob Lanier had 18 to lead the Pistons, who moved to within 1½ games of the Midwest Division leading Milwaukee Bucks. The Pistons also pulled a notch closer to wrapping up a position in the NBA playoffs.

Bob Wilson scored 19 points to lead the Bulls, playing without star guard Norm Van Lier.

Benson picks surgery over Olympics

Indiana University All-America center Kent Benson said Wednesday he probably will by-pass the 1976 Summer Olympics because of an operation to correct an injury to his left wrist.

Benson, who Monday night was named the NCAA tourney's most valuable player, said he would fly to California Friday for the operation. The 6-foot-11 native of New Castle, Ind. said he had dreamed of playing in the Olympics since he was a youngster.

"It's a big thing to me," he explained. "I've dreamed of playing in the Olympics. But I have to think of my future. There's just no way."

Benson said specialists in California would perform the surgery, probably this weekend. The operation includes repairing ligaments and tendons damaged in a game at Illinois Jan. 17, when he tumbled after making a fast-break layup. The operation will require him to have an arm-length cast for about two weeks and then another cast for five to 10 weeks.

Cubs win, Sox split, Jackson jests

Reggie Jackson's antics on and off the field highlighted a Chicago Cubs 7-2 Cactus League win over the Oakland A's Wednesday while the White Sox were splitting a pair with Pittsburgh in Florida.

For the second day in a row, Jackson belted two home runs in 45 minutes and before the game he told four unsuspecting reporters he had signed a five year, $1.25 million contract with A's owner Charles O. Finley. Just moments before the first pitch, Jackson confessed to the hoax.

"It was aimed at one guy, and I'm sorry if I caused any of you trouble," said Jackson, whose two homers boosted his spring average to .500.

A's starter Glenn Abbott felt the Cubs' sting as Rick Monday paced a five-run second inning with a two-run homer.

Left-hander John Candelaria pitched the first six innings of a five-hitter as the Pirates beat the Sox 3-0 after losing the seven-inning opener, 4-2.

Bart Johnson yielded all the runs and absorbed the loss in the nightcap. Earlier Terry Forster logged the win after singles by Alan Bannister, Mike Squires, Buddy Bradford and Pat Kelly helped spot him a three-run first inning lead.

And in other sports news...

Tampa Bay Buccaneer coach John McKay preserved domestic tranquility when he drafted his son, J.K., ("If he hadn't, it would have meant instant divorce," his wife quipped) but the wide receiver, who played under his dad at Southern California, is presently planning to stay on as an assistant coach at Oregon State next fall. Another Tampa draftee, linebacker Doug Swift of Miami, may retire in favor of medical school.

Milwaukee Brewer shortstop Robin Blount may be one of the next entries into baseball's bidding wars after his club declined to go along with a two-year contract. . . . In another diamond note Kansas City hurler Steve Busby was placed on the 21-day disabled list Wednesday.

Hoosiers Scott May and Quinn Buckner, along with Major Jones of Albany State, have been named to the East team for Saturday's all-star basketball game at Oral Roberts University. . . . Baltimore Colts general manager Joe Thomas confirmed an offer from a group of Phoenix businessmen to move his football team westward. . . . Eddie Salazar, a jockey thrown from his horse in 1972 at the Nebraska State Fairground race track has filed a $2 million lawsuit.

Youth is the key to this year's Herald All-Area team.

A host of underclassmen on this year's squad indicates some good years ahead for the Herald area in swimming. St. Viator leads the way in pure manpower with both relays and seven individuals on the team, captained by three-event standout, Chris Tague from Hersey.

MEDLEY RELAY

ST. VIATOR

The Lion relay team of Doug and Dan Peonski, Mark Rusche and Chris Stewart missed qualifying for the state finals by a hair, finishing 14th in the state meet. In district competition at Arlington, the Viator squad set a new record, taking first with a 1:43.529 clocking. Listed as high as seventh during the season in state rankings during the year, the team also won its conference title in 1:42.7 and will return intact next year.

PROSPECT

The team of Brad Busse, Spencer Gilchrist, Don Balas and Tom Cole finished second to Viator in the district meet with a 1:43.887 time, but came on in the state meet to edge out the Lions by .001 of a second to finish 13th in the state, missing the cut to 12 for the finals by just one place.

200-YARD FREESTYLE

JON NEWCOMER

Out a good part of the season due to a car accident and plagued all year with bursitis in the shoulder, Newcomer still took second in the district meet with a time of 1:49.634. Though he qualified for the state meet, the junior failed to make the cut to the final 12, swimming a 1:50.460 in the prelims.

200-YARD INDIVIDUAL MEDLEY

STEVE ROGERS

One of only two seniors on the St. Viator squad, Steve won district competition at Arlington, setting a new district record with a 2:07.408 clocking. A consistent performer, his best time all year was 2:06.900. In the preliminaries at the state meet, Steve turned in 2:07.952, but failed to make the cut to the final 12.

BRAD BUSSE

Another consistent performer in this event all year, this senior from Prospect finished second in the district meet at Arlington after a false start, turning in a 2:08.15. Brad also missed the cut in the state prelims, swimming a 2:08.530.

TOM REDIG

This young man from Forest View has a distinct honor — he's the only freshman on this year's All-Area team. Redig won the conference title in the 200-yard individual medley and was a top point getter for his team all year. He didn't compete in this event in the district meet, but his time in the conference meet was 2:08.707.

50-YARD FREESTYLE

TOM COLE

Tom Cole of Prospect took first place in district competition by a judges' decision and a 23.0-second time. In the state meet, he swam second fastest among area competitors, but didn't make the cut to 12 with a time of 22.567 in the prelims, good for 17th place.

MARK ROHL

This swimmer from St. Viator was hitting 22.9 early in the year before illness set in. Fighting a virus, he took third in the districts with a 23.301. But in the state meet, he charged from his 44th-seeded position among 45 swimmers to 15th place in the prelims with a time of 22.392.

TOM STAHNKE

Stahnke set a new record in district competition with a 22.970 time, but first place was given to Cole by a judges' decision. A junior, he won the Mid-Suburban League conference meet. In state competition the Rolling Meadows swimmer missed the final cut to 12 with a time of 22.790.

DIVING

BILL CASHMORE

Undeclared in conference competition, this Hersey senior was the area's premier diver this year, finishing seventh in the state meet. He set two new records enroute to winning both Mid-Suburban League and Arlington District titles and led the Pad-dock honor roll in diving all year.

ALAN CYMBAL

A junior from Buffalo Grove, Cymbal finished second to Cashmore in both district and conference competition. He also qualified for the state meet, but did not qualify for the finals.

won the Arlington District butterfly title with a new record time of 54.097 and also won the MSL conference title with a record 54.236 before failing in the state meet.

TOM COLE
From Prospect, this sophomore took second to Stahnke in both districts and conference meet competition. In state competition, Cole just beat out Stahnke, going 54.841 to Stahnke's 54.944.

100-YARD FREESTYLE

MARK ROHL

Finished sixth in the state in this event for the second year in a row, overcoming illness that bothered him during conference and district competition. Seeded 44th among 45 swimmers at the state meet, he took sixth with times of 48.467 in the prelims, and 49.243 in the finals.

CHRIS STEWART

After posting a best time all year of 51.300, this St. Viator swimmer charged from his fourth seeded spot in the Arlington District meet to take first with a 49.940. In the state meet, this sophomore never got a chance to show his stuff, and was disqualified after two successive false starts.

500-YARD FREESTYLE

RUSTY MYERS

Also a sophomore, Myers took second in districts with a 4:57.822 and second in his conference meet. He failed to make the final 12 in the state meet competition, turning a time of 4:57.584.

DAN PEONSKI

Although he finished right behind Myers in the district meet, Dan took first in the conference meet, edging out Myers. In state competition, he too, failed to make the cut to 12 finalists, turning in a time of 5:00.768.

100-YARD BACKSTROKE

SPENCER GILCHRIST

Spencer Gilchrist, a junior from Prospect, took seventh place in state competition in this event, after winning the MSL conference title and finishing second in district competition. He tied with Doug Peonski of St. Viator for the eighth best time in the state during the year with a 57.0, according to times published by the Illinois Swimming Assoc.

DOUG PEONSKI

Also won his conference title. He edged out Gilchrist for the district crown with a time of 58.383. In state competition, he did not make the final 12, turning in a prelim time of 57.960.

100-YARD BREASTSTROKE

MIKE ROESSLER

The only Herald-area swimmer to qualify for the state meet in this event, Roessler won both MSL conference and Arlington district titles. A junior, he returns to the Card lineup next season.

STEVE ROGERS

This senior from St. Viator finished third in his conference meet and took second in the Arlington district meet, with a time of 1:05.978.

400-YARD FREE RELAY

ST. VIATOR

This young team of Dan Peonski, Chris Stewart, Jon Newcomer and Mark Rohl took fifth in the state meet with a time of 3:18.896. Ranked in the top 12 statewide most of the year, the squad easily won conference and district titles, setting a new Arlington district mark with a time of 3:20.992.

ARLINGTON

The team of Steve Nowack, Jeff Zawadzki, Tony Hahn and Steve Nitch won the MSL conference title and finished second to Viator in the District meet with a time of 3:25.106. In the state meet, the team was clocked at 3:24.307.

MAINE WEST

This team of Jim Ritzema, Tom Ptach, Craig MacNab and Casey Schlachter kept close to Arlington's time drops, going 3:25.29 in its district meet and then 3:24.522 in the state meet.

One of the finest swimmers ever in the Herald area, Hersey's Chris Tague is captain of this year's Herald All-Area swimming team.

Rated first statewide in the 100-, 200- and 500-yard freestyle events for much of the year, Chris finished third in both the 200 and 500 in the state meet.

His accomplishments are legion. Up for consideration as a national high school All-American swimmer, Tague seemed to set records wherever he swam. The senior tanker set new records in the 200- and 500-yard freestyle events in the Mid-Suburban League conference meet, going 1:45.346 in the 100 and 4:42.175 in the 500.

In the district meet at Arlington, it was no competition again as Chris breezed to two firsts again, both in record setting times of 1:45.589 in the 100, and 4:45.689 in the 500.

Listed in swimming magazines as among the best high school swimmers in the country, Tague has been called a "once in a lifetime swimmer," by his coach Herb Parsons, who has trouble finding the right superlatives for Chris. "Nobody works harder than Chris Tague," said Parsons. "He's a coach's dream. I'm really going to miss him next year."

Though his college plans are incomplete, Tague is seriously considering joining teammate and diver Bill Cashmore at Southern Illinois University next year to further his education and swimming career.

Three area players earn all-star bids

Scott Zettek, Jim Popp and Scott Scholz have been chosen to play in the second annual Illinois Coaches Assn. Shrimers' All-Star Football Game on the campus of Illinois State University Aug. 7.

The game, putting high school seniors from the East and West, raised more than $20,000 for the Shrimers' Hospital for Crippled Children last year.

Zettek, a 6-foot 5 1/2-pound all-state lineman from St. Viator, will join Popp, a 170-pound running back from Palatine, on the West squad. Popp became Palatine's all-time rushing leader in 1975. Zettek has signed a letter-of-intent at Notre Dame.

Scholz, Schaumburg's 6-2, 195-pound linebacker, will play on the East squad. The three-year starter is headed for the University of Illinois.

Tickets for the game, set for a 7 p.m. kickoff at Hancock Stadium in Normal, Ill., are again being handled by the Shrimers.

Camp Duncan swimmers second in state meet

The Camp Duncan YMCA swim team traveled to Springfield to compete with 55 other YMCAs from throughout the state in the biggest and fastest Illinois YMCA Championship.

Both the girls and boys teams took second place being just nosed out of first by the B R Ryall YMCA of Glen Ellyn reigning state and national champions.

The quality of swimming during the two-day meet was evident in the fact that several new state records and two national records were set. The Camp Duncan Junior Girls' (13&14) 200 yard freestyle relay of Linda Walkowiak, Kitty Llerandi, Sharon Ratcliffe and Sue Cripe set a new state and national record of 1:43.822 in a hotly-contested race with the former state record holders B R Ryall. Three state records were set by 8-year-old Genny Wilson in the 25 yard butterfly (15.740), 25 yard backstroke (16.987), and joined by Jennifer Krause, Barbara Teuscher, and Lisa Dunn in a new 100 yard freestyle relay mark of 1:01.234.

In addition to placing second overall in the team standings the Boys took second place trophies in three separate age groups, Cadets (8 & under), Midgets (9 & 10) and Preps (11 & 12). The girls took the first place trophy in the Midget division and second place trophies in the Cadets, Preps and Junior age groups.

The Camp Duncan boys and girls finished the meet with 20 state champions and several new record holders. See summary in scoreboard.

Northwest all-star team meets Travelers for Lattot cage title

The Northwest 8th grade all star traveling basketball team moved a step closer to the championship of the Lattot Chevrolet-Arlington Jaycees 8th grade invitational basketball classic at Thomas Junior High in Arlington Heights.

Northwest stopped Mount Prospect St. Marks 63-52 in a quarter final game which moved them into a semifinal contest with the Arlington Travelers Saturday, April 3 at 2:30 p.m.

Arlington topped Northwest 65-56 last February and Northwest evened things two weeks ago with a 53-41 victory.

Northwest is coached by Denny Porter who along with his assistant Jim Millay, have put together an 8th grade all star squad that features players from Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Prospect Heights, Wheeling and Palatine.

After a mediocre showing early in the year, Northwest has won 12 of its last 14 games and rates as one of the best squads in the entire suburban area. Forward Steve Trauber leads Northwest's scoring attack with 228 points and a 12.5 point per game scoring mark.

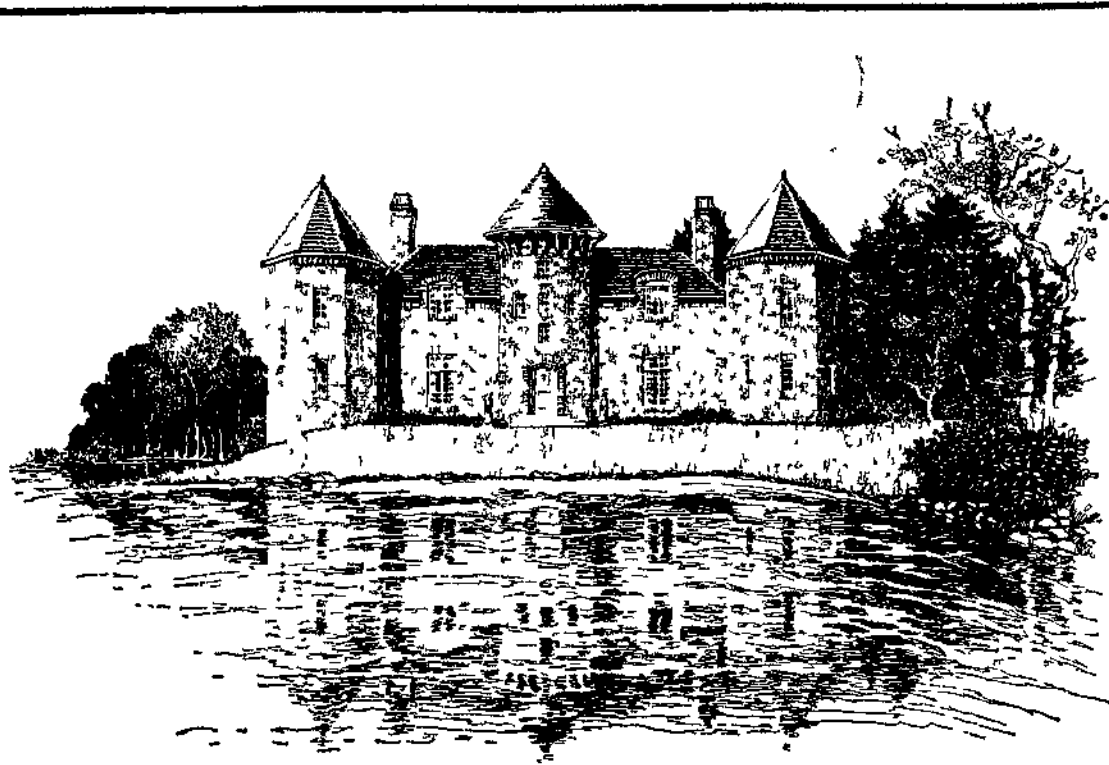

John Lesniak is the team's top rebounder with 118 rebounds per game.

Besides the Arlington Invitational Tourney, Northwest will close out its '76 season in Evanston at the Evanston basketball Classic Friday night. First round opposition pits Northwest against Waukegan.

Braun leads Oakton

The Oakton Community College track team closed out the end of March with a second-place finish in its own invitational track meet. The Raiders were edged 145 to 144 by Joliet Junior College in the six team field.

Leading scorer for Oakton was Dave Braun, a 1974 grad of Maine West who scored a total of 52 points to easily win "Best-Athlete-of-Meet" honors. Braun won the high hurdles, placed second in the three jumping events and grabbed third place in the 300 and the low hurdles.

In the Tradition of the Chateaux . . .

After rebuffing Bonaparte's overtures of prominence in his administration, Lafayette—the hero of two worlds—settled down to live at Chateau La Grange.

The chateau did not at all resemble George Washington's beloved Mount Vernon. La Grange had been built as a fortress 600 years earlier, was surrounded by a large moat and had resisted the onslaughts of artillery. It was here Lafayette realized why Washington so enjoyed being a country squire. There were entertainments, relaxing evenings, and happiness at La Grange, and every return was a new reminder about his remarkable friend in the New World.

If you are interested in building an exceptional period house in the chateau tradition—perhaps like the one pictured above—or in the Tudor or Georgian manner, we will consider the opportunity as a special challenge. We would appreciate hearing from you so we may set time for a preliminary discussion, in the hope that we may one day include you and your family among our satisfied clients.

Help for overeaters and smokers

When will power fails, try hypnosis

"HYPNOSIS IS nothing more than a state of mind. And I merely act as a catalyst to help you say no to yourself." — Hypno-therapist Damon about his smoking-weight loss clinics.

by GENIE CAMPBELL

Whippy Dip. That's what it's called. But more important is its texture: rich, smooth, and oh, so refreshingly cold. But then any kind of ice cream suits me.

Nicotine fits? They couldn't be worse. Besides, my addiction is dangerously fattening.

I've tried will power. Mine likes ice cream as much as I do. What else? Damon.

A hypnotherapist, Damon boasts of huge success with his smoking and weight-loss clinics for people who want to quit cigarettes and snacking.

AT THE CHICAGO Marriott Hotel last week he offered hope to weak-willed Chicagoans and suburbanites alike. Damon's promotion was certainly enticing — "Due to Damon, Americans lost more than 25 tons of excess fat last year." And all I want to lose is 10 pounds.

"Sure it will help you," he said to me before the evening workshop for overeaters. "There's one part where I say rich and fattening sweets and drinks won't appeal to you anymore. You're no different from the person who has to have six or seven Cokes a day," he continued.

"I had one woman who used to bake two chocolate cakes, one for her family and one for herself. And she usually finished hers first. Now she bakes only one for her family and she doesn't even taste the cake while she's making it."

ANOTHER WOMAN told Damon that while she was under hypnosis, she envisioned a little red wagon hauling away all the pies and cakes in the world.

For me that would be the same as envisioning Baskin-Robbins permanently closing up shop. How awful!

Yet before hypnotherapy begins to sound like a dieter's miracle, it must be put in its proper perspective.

"Hypnosis is not a cure-all," said Damon. "There's nothing magical or mysterious about it."

"Hypnosis is nothing more than a state of mind. And I merely act as a catalyst to set a mood to help you say no to yourself. Hypnosis is a shortcut, you might say, to the subconscious," continued Damon.

"Sure someone could leave the session and say, 'I'm going to eat that cookie. You just watch and see if I don't.' I can't break your arm or make your blood turn green if you do. Hopefully you just won't want to."

Damon took courses in hypnotherapy through the school of dentistry at Marquette University. (There are 20,000 dentists throughout the country who now practice hypnosis on patients to relieve their anxieties and increase their threshold level for pain, he said.)

THERE ARE various levels of hypnosis. To help people lose weight and stop smoking Damon utilizes what he calls "controlled day dreaming."

The person remains conscious at all times, but is exceedingly relaxed and sits quietly with eyes closed. During this period, Damon makes suggestions to help people strengthen their own resolve.

It is the same basic technique that is used in transcendental meditation, he said. In fact the hypnosis continues for 20-25 minutes, about the same amount of time recommended for meditation.

Two women in Cleveland attend a session whenever Damon comes to town. They don't need to. In the last seven months one has lost 135 pounds and the other 23. But they just enjoy it.

"THEY SAY THEY feel relaxed for weeks afterwards. It's cheaper than tranquilizers."

Damon (his last name is Reinbold but no one would remember it, he says) resides in East Lansing, Mich., where he is currently working on a proposed curriculum in hypnotherapy for the medical school at Michigan State University.

His wife and business partner, Grace, travels with him and tends to much of the details, including watching over the 69-cent Kresge crystal piece he uses in the very beginning of each session as a focal point.

"It's not really necessary," he said. "It's just easier to begin that way. The real power of suggestion comes from my voice."

"Anyone who spends 20 minutes to an hour driving here and spends $20 besides ($20 for first-timers, $10 for repeaters) has some kind of motivation to change. It doesn't matter if the reason is health, social, financial or if someone was just nagged into doing it. All that matters is that they have made a commitment to themselves not to overeat or smoke."

Damon does neither, but he did once. Though excess weight has never been a problem for him, he formerly smoked three packs a day.

"FIRST I tried quitting the hard way — cold turkey. I lasted a day."

Through self-hypnosis (it took two tries) Damon talked himself out of cigarettes. That was eight years ago. He hasn't smoked one since.

Damon offers tapes for people unable to attend a clinic or needing a booster in between visits. But he claims that 85 per cent of the people who attend only one time report positive results. Seldom is a second visit necessary.

"It was primarily all women when I first started out," said Damon, who instituted group therapy sessions four years ago. "I guess the men were afraid to admit they needed help. But now it's almost 50-50," he said.

THE NIGHT I attended the women still outnumbered the men at least four to one. They entered, registered and quietly took their seats, looking around to literally size up one another.

Already a meditator and tired besides, I found it easy to slip into a state of deep relaxation, soothing to listen to all the goodies I wouldn't miss anymore.

It's still too early to judge the results. Ice cream? Not even a lick in five days — a cookie perhaps but I didn't enjoy it. Chocolate-covered coconut Easter eggs still appeal to me. But, all I have to do is outlast the holiday.

Yet, I prepared myself. Just in case I never eat ice cream again, on my way to see Damon I stopped for a large, combination vanilla and chocolate Whippy Dip. The "last meal" you might say.

Damon is returning to the area April 29 for three days. Information is available through his toll free number, (800) 248-1530.

Marian the Librarian

Technology won't abolish her

by PATRICIA McCORMACK

Automation's advancing on the library of the future. But there's no sign machines will replace those kind souls called librarians.

In an interview Robert Wedgeworth, executive director of the American Library Association, gave that guarantee.

You won't, for example, walk up to a machine in 1990, stick in a card and get a printout with all the information of your choosing.

Wedgeworth told of some ways technology will be changing libraries.

The machines headed for the library scene will make up a vast computer network for exchange of cataloging information and books.

WEDGEWORTH SAID without such computer complexes the libraries of the land would not be able to expand their most ambitious people-to-people programs.

"Machines, ideally, will free librarians to spend more time with the public, rather than less," he said.

"It doesn't take a math expert to know that if 40,000 books are published a year, sooner or later no library is going to have room to store them all, nor the staff to maintain the stacks."

Then there's the economic side to it. Many libraries already are pinched — and at a time when some 30 per cent of the adult population continues to use the library regularly.

WEDGEWORTH SAID the price of books and periodicals has gone up by 49 per cent in the last two years.

"Fewer libraries will be able to afford to have every reference source," he said.

"Pooling of materials will become the only economically feasible way to make all the necessary background material available to the public for recall when they want it."

Library computer networks already are set up in some areas and are projected for nationwide use.

These speed up interlibrary loan programs. As a result, when you want material not available at your library, it can be requested via computer, located via computer and forwarded via computer — perhaps as a printout.

TELEVISION IS another medium expected to speed information-gathering and delivery. A few libraries already have become storehouses for municipal television information.

One example: at the Natrona County Library in Casper, Wyo., major local government events are videotaped and kept at the library.

Many libraries are teaming with schools and colleges to produce videotape cassettes. These include classes, lectures and assignments taped so patrons can use one or a series for course credit.

Prognosticators say two-way television eventually will replace today's people-manned reference services.

WEDGEWORTH SAID it would work this way:

People would tune in their television to a cable station and "call" the library with questions.

The answer will be issued by computer and flashed onto the home screen.

All the technology will give the librarian of the future a chance to reach out more to the people who need a librarian's services most, according to Wedgeworth.

Some already are — teaching reading, setting up adult education courses and planning ambitious programs that translate the library's capabilities into specialized services for the community.

Government putting money before lives?

"It's a choice between gambling with money or gambling with lives."

Remember that quote, for it was made by Dr. Harry M. Meyer, director of the Bureau of Biologics of the Food and Drug Administration, in reference to President Ford's proposed $135 million flu inoculation program.

Remember that quote the next time the FDA agrees with the processed food industry that it would be too costly to eliminate certain food additives suspected of affecting the nervous systems of children and of causing cancer. Remember also that it would be too costly for the industry even to label foods with the names of all additives, colorings and flavorings for the benefit of people who are allergic to those substances.

REMEMBER THAT quote the next time the Ford Administration agrees with the steel or copper or auto industries that pollution control systems would be too costly, even though the health of millions of Americans is being negatively affected by sulphur dioxide and arsenic in the air from the east coast to Chicago to Butte, Mont., and by toxic metals in Lake Superior and the Mississippi River.

Remember that quote when the federal government fails to enforce safety standards on mining companies because it is too costly, even though 26 men may die in one week in one mine.

And rest assured that if there were a constituency of people who insisted they had a "right" to get the flu or a "right" not to be inoculated, there would be no Ford campaign against the flu, just as there is no Ford campaign against the source of some 10,000 deaths annually — the handgun.

THOUSANDS OF lives could be saved every year if the Transportation Department would require air bags in automobiles. They haven't so far because the auto industry says it would be too expensive.

Detroit's opposition to air bags continues in spite of the success of the auto makers' own tests. General Motors has successfully installed air bags into small cars, disproving the objection that this wouldn't work. Ford has tested air bags in 831 cars more than 30 million miles without malfunction or accidental deployment, disproving that objection.

These and other facts on air bags are published in the April issue of Consumer Reports, which is devoted entirely to automobiles. In addition to the air bag report, the magazine offers valuable information and advice on new and used cars, how to shop and deal, how to get good repair work, and much more.

THE 1976 BUICKS, Oldsmobiles and Cadillacs are offered with air bags as optional equipment for $315. But a Florida company has for three years been selling air bags to fit nearly all cars for $75. According to Consumer Reports, they are relatively easy to install, and the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration found the bags satisfactory in tests.

Interested car owners may order the air bags by writing Control Laser Corp., 1800 S.W. Seventh Ave., Pompano Beach, Fla. 33060.

Bicentennial favored in program directory

Everywhere in America this year the Bicentennial is taking top billing. The 1976 Program Directory compiled by Paddock Publications and now ready for distribution is no exception. A Bicentennial section has been added to the booklet, listing a variety of topics in the birthday theme.

The "Philadelphia Good Wife" comes out of the past to describe her life of 200 years ago. An area pharmacist gives a talk on a "Historical Pharmacy" which traces the types of drugs used during Revolutionary days.

Illinois Bell Telephone Co. has a film on the 100th birthday of the telephone, paralleling its development to the history of America during that period, and General Motors Corp. offers a program on the growth of transportation for "The Bicentennial and Beyond."

In a lighter vein are entertaining programs such as "The Many Faces of Woman," a group of dramatic readings on historical and fictional women, and "Patriots in Petticoats," the latter given by the Wednesday Afternoon Evening Society.

THE PROGRAM Directory is offered each spring in updated form to program chairmen of all types of organizations. It lists over 200 ideas, covering demonstrations, speakers, tours, entertainment and money-making projects. Topics range from the serious to the humorous, the informative to strictly entertaining.

Besides categories of interest to adults, there is a children's section which includes both educational and entertaining programs.

Some of the listings are available at no charge; others ask a donation or a fee. All are printed as a public service from the Herald to our readers and are as near to you as the phone.

The 1976 directories are free and may be picked up at any of the following Herald offices: 217 W. Campbell and 114 W. Campbell, both in Arlington Heights, and 601 W. Golf Rd., Mount Prospect.

Those wishing the directory by mail should send 75 cents with their name and address to Program Directory, Paddock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, 60006.

Anyone having a program suggestion to add to next year's listings may call Doris McClellan, 394-2300 ext. 251.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Bifid valve merits cardiac evaluation

Our doctor says that my husband has a bifid valve or early calcareous aortic stenosis. He is 63 years old. Sometimes he has a sharp feeling of pain in his heart, then no more trouble. He feels fine except he tires out rather quickly. He is slim, does not have high cholesterol or any other problems. The doctor says there is nothing to worry about. Will you please tell me how dangerous this condition is? Can anything be done to help it?

At least I can identify from your letter the anatomical area involved. The aortic valve is located at the outlet of the heart to the one great artery (aorta) that provides all of the blood to almost all of the body except the lungs. Ordinarily this valve has three leaflets. They open as the blood is ejected out of the heart and once the squeezing of the heart is over they snap shut, closing the area and preventing blood from rushing back into the heart.

A bifid valve means a birth defect in which there are only two leaflets instead of three. That doesn't necessarily mean that they don't function properly. The other diagnosis refers to development of calcium-like deposits over the aortic valve with obstruction (stenosis) of the valve.

Mild aortic stenosis or obstruction of the bifid valve that doesn't cause enlargement of the heart or excess work of the heart is compatible with a relatively long life.

The amount of difficulty is directly related to the degree of obstruction. The only way that can be told is by special X rays taken of the heart, and in many instances a careful study of the heart through cardiac catheterizations. The pressure is measured inside the heart and outside the heart beyond the obstruction. On the basis of this information and special X-ray studies one can usually tell how much obstruction is present.

IF THERE IS a major amount of obstruction, and certainly if it is indeed associated with progressive changes in the heart, open heart surgery could be considered. In this case the diseased valve would be removed and an artificial valve put in its place. This is a serious operation, but it is done every day in major heart surgery centers of the nation.

I am not sure how you know your husband has heart pain. Heart pain is not sharp and a better history would need to be known. For information on how to recognize heart pain send 50 cents for The Health Letter, number 2-10, Heart Attack, Myocardial Infarction, Angina Pectoris. Send a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope for mailing. Address your letter to me in care of Paddock Publications, P. O. Box 1551, Radio City Station, New York, N.Y. 10019.

I usually don't mention geographic localities, but I see you're close to Stanford University, and I would suggest that you ask your doctor to refer you to the cardiac clinic there for a cardiac evaluation. The nature of the disease, if mild, may not be serious, but if there is a major amount of obstruction I feel that a complete cardiac evaluation would be in order.

Hard water requires laundering 'extras'

Dear Dorothy: I take exception to the statement that if white nylons and polyesters are washed separately, they will never get dingy or yellow. It is impossible to keep whites looking white if one lives where there is an abundance of iron and other substances in water. Even with the most TLC, I've seen expensive white blouses turn yellow or gray and nothing has restored whiteness. I'm open to suggestions. — Margaret Rauschenberg

Let's get it straight, simple and direct. Hard water is the bane of 85 per cent of American homes. In laundering, it creates a "lime soap" that sticks to fabrics and causes discoloring. When iron is present, chlorine bleach adds to the trouble because it automatically brings discoloring. Those who can afford them invest in mechanical water conditioners. Those who can't are advised to use a water-conditioning powder (there are three or four on the market). Where an excess of iron is present, an inexpensive iron filter is a "must."

For white clothes, one general rule is that hot water is essential — and tanks should be set at 160 degrees (to deliver water at between 140 and 160). Another general rule is sufficient soap or detergent and a third is adequate washing time. Heeding to these three rules, the "lime soap" should dissolve and you'll have "whiter" garments.

Dear Dorothy: When I make fudge, I wrap each piece in foil, and if they are to be kept any length of time I keep them refrigerated. Otherwise, the nuts have a tendency to mold. — Clover Fricker

Dear Dorothy: To get the dust off a velvet painting, try the Air Force trick: Wrap masking tape on the hand, sticky side out, and carefully press to surface. The dust will pick right up. — Mrs. L. A. Buhler

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to Dorothy Ritz in care of Suburban Living, Paddock Publications, Box 200, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60006.)

Mother Nature's signalling spring

Trekking out to Busse Woods (Arlington Heights Road and Higgins) the other day, I found the frog concert in full voice in the ponds. This annual event, when the amphibious ones are mating, to me signals the start of spring.

Blue flag iris were sending up sturdy green shards, and all manner of little greenies, too tiny to identify yet, were sprouting.

"The Old Farmer's Almanac" says the Chicago area can expect some foul weather up to April 22, with three to six inches of snow perhaps to come. I use the leafing out of trees as my guideline from Mother Nature for planting the hardiest seeds. You'll notice the stems of dogwood, birches, willows becoming intense in color right now. And if you look closely at the reddish hue of the maples, you'll notice the minute maple tree flowers that appear on the branches before the leaves emerge. This is a sight that most people miss because it lasts for so short a time and one has to be extremely observant to catch it.

BUT AS THE TREES begin to leaf out, the seeds of hardy plants can be sown safely — peas, onions, radishes, cabbage, carrots, spinach and broccoli — and in the flower garden — bachelor button, annual poppy, larkspur, sweet peas. Remember, for any planting projects, the soil must be dry enough to be worked. The soil is just right when the gardener can form a ball of soil in the hand and the ball crumbles without becoming pasty.

I also watch for the bastion of spring, the dandelions — pride of lions in the garden — to make their debut. The very appearance of the saw-toothed squatters tells me it is time to sow hardy seeds. When the dandelions bloom, it's time to sow the tender seeds. I look forward to their flowering, "dandelions that flood the world, dripping off lawns onto the street, tapping softly at crystal cellar windows and agitating themselves so that on all sides lay the dazzle and glitter of molten sun. . . . They run amuck. I let them. . . . Their wine is summer, caught and stoppered. . . . The medicine of another time, the rush of silver rockets, and the fountaining of lawn mowers moving through ant countries, all these, all this in a glass" — Ray Bradbury "Dandelion Wine".

I MUST GET MY dandelion recipe unearthed and wait. Some of the finest dandelions anywhere — several varieties — are to be found in Busse Woods. And all the gourmet-loving Italians with their shopping bags will be there before long, collecting all parts of the entirely-edible dandelion for wine-making and salad.

If you're a "moon man" and believe in planting by the star signs, the best time to plant vegetables that bear crops above the ground is during the light of the moon; that is between the day the moon is new to the day it is full. Vegetables bearing below the ground should be planted during the dark of the moon — from the day after full moon to the day before it is new again. "The Farmer's Almanac" gives the outdoor planting table according to the moon.

SOME THOUGHT should also be given to planting bare-root shrubs and trees. Getting an early start here allows new roots to develop before the leaves open. After leafing, bare-root plants don't transplant well. (Balled and burlapped trees and shrubs can be planted any time.)

Winter protection can be removed from perennial beds to prevent soft growth and disease problems caused by warm spells. Protection can be shoved aside, for quick recovery if foul weather threatens.

A bit of fertilizer applied gingerly, but not heavily, to the lawn now will produce a green scene. It is believed that heavy doses of nitrogen in spring are closely related to incidence of Fusarium patch disease in mid-summer.

A Great American Tradition

Since Colonial times, ham has held a special place at the Easter table. The pork packing industry, importing pigs from England and continental Europe, flourished in both northern and southern colonies by the time the Declaration of Independence was signed. Later, porkers moved westward with the pioneers, and with them traveled the tradition of ham for Easter.

Writing of life in the colonies, poet Henry C. Knight related, "A meat-house is one of the first houses built, hung on all sides with chins, middlings, joles and hams . . ." Mount Vernon, like most plantations, boasted a smokehouse which provided ham for George and Martha Washington's table.

In Colonial times, the curing and smoking of pork was followed by long soaking and simmering prior to roasting. By contrast, today's cook can enjoy tradition with ease. For the modern version of this fine meat comes boneless — packaged fully-cooked or canned. These hams make minimum demands on the host or hostess, yet yield maximum eating satisfaction with tender, juicy and flavor-packed meat.

Canned hams, in common with other fully-cooked hams, need only be roasted to 140 degrees to serve hot for the feast. Dressed for Easter with a glaze and topped with flowers fashioned with fruit, a baked ham is bright as an Easter bouquet. To "gild the lily" for this special meal, surround the elegant ham with hot bacon pinwheels centered with tangy pieces of watermelon pickle.

For a dessert spectacular that's both fun and flavorsome, prepare ahead an Easter Orange Velvet Pie. Chocolate marshmallow eggs, nested in tinted shredded coconut, top its delightfully creamy yet light filling in a flaky pastry crust.

Easter Orange Velvet Pie

- | | |
|--|---------------------------------------|
| 1 package (3 ounces) orange flavored gelatin | 2 drops red food coloring |
| 1 package (3 ounces) lemon flavored gelatin | 1 pint dairy sour cream |
| 2 cups boiling water | 1 single baked pie shell* |
| 1/4 cup frozen orange juice concentrate | 6 to 8 chocolate marshmallow eggs |
| | 1/3 cup shredded coconut tinted green |

Dissolve orange and lemon gelatin in boiling water. Stir in orange juice concentrate and red food coloring and chill until partially congealed. Add sour cream and beat with electric mixer for 3 to 5 minutes or until smooth. Turn filling into baked pie shell. Arrange eggs in circle on top of pie, pressing lightly to partially submerge. Arrange coconut around edge of eggs to form nests. Chill 1 hour or until firm. Serves 6 to 8.

Note: To tint coconut, combine water and green food coloring and toss with shredded coconut.

*Single Baked Pie Shell

- 1 1/2 cups Homemade Pastry Mix
2 to 4 tablespoons ice water

Add water to mix, a small amount at a time, mixing quickly and evenly until dough just holds in a ball. Roll to about 1/8 inch thickness and line 9-inch pie pan, allowing 1 inch pastry to extend over edge. Fold overhanging pastry under crust and crimp edge. Prick pastry with a fork. Bake in very hot oven (450 degrees) 8 to 10 minutes.

Homemade Pastry Mix

- 7 cups flour
4 teaspoons salt
1 1/2 cups lard for soft wheat flour or
2 cups lard for hard wheat flour

Mix flour and salt well. Cut lard into flour mixture with a fork or pastry blender until crumbs are about the size of small peas. Cover and store in refrigerator until ready to use. This mixture will keep at least a month in refrigerator. Yield: 10 cups pastry mix.

Glazed Baked Ham — Tasty Bacon Garnish

- 7 to 10-pound canned ham
1/2 cup apple jelly
1 jar (10 ounces) sweet pickled watermelon rind
1 teaspoon lemon juice
12 to 16 slices bacon

Place ham on a rack in an open roasting pan. Insert roast meat thermometer so the bulb is centered in the thickest part. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in a slow oven (325 degrees) until meat thermometer registers 130 degrees. Combine apple jelly with 1 tablespoon of syrup from watermelon rind and lemon juice in small sauce pan. Cook slowly, stirring until smooth. Brush warm glaze over ham and return to oven until thermometer registers 140 degrees. Allow approximately 15 to 18 minutes per pound. Remove ham and turn oven up to 400 degrees*. Place bacon slices on rack in a pan (broiler pan may be used). Bake for 15 minutes (until almost done). Immediately wrap each bacon slice around a piece of watermelon rind, securing with small wooden pick, and bake 2 to 4 minutes.

*Bacon can be baked in oven with the ham at 325 degrees for 20 to 25 minutes before wrapping around rind.

Note: To decorate ham, arrange canned apricot halves, maraschino cherries, slivers of lemon peel and strips of green onion on top of glazed ham to form flowers 5 minutes before end of cooking time. Brush fruit and stems with glaze and return to oven.

This gourmet cuisine is aimed at great heights

From a small box of chicken in 1939 to a lavish wine dinner today, airlines have placed growing importance on feeding their passengers. In the Chicago area one of the biggest passenger food services is operated by United Airlines.

More than 15,000 meals and snacks are prepared each day in its O'Hare kitchens, according to Marc Michaelson, United's Midwest public relations manager.

However, not all the prepared food is destined for United passengers. "We sell to other airlines, as well as hospitals and restaurants," he said.

The Marriott Hotels buy some of the foods made in the United kitchens — mainly pastries and rolls.

IN FACT, more than 40,000 dozen rolls are made each shift, flash-frozen while still warm from the ovens, he said.

The success of their operation is credited to "having a super recipe and using the best available ingredients," said Michaelson.

But at least the recipe-writing is the product of long hours of careful planning and work. United has test kitchens which simulate with as much accuracy as possible the flight conditions under which its food is served.

"Naturally, things taste a lot different on board than they do fresh from the ovens," said Michaelson.

There is also a big difference between cooking for a 747 and a 707, he said. "Food on the wide-bodied planes (747s and DC 7s) is cooked on board," said Michaelson. "On the narrow-bodied crafts it is simply kept warm."

IN ADDITION to preparing its regular meals, United also handles requests including kosher, vegetarian, diabetic, low cholesterol, low sodium, Hindu, Moslem, Oriental, soul and infant meals, he said. All passengers need to do is give the airline 24-hour notice for their preferences.

About $27 million a year is budgeted for United kitchens to finance an extraordinary volume of food. For example, each year, United uses 5,328,000 one-half pints of milk, 820,000 pounds of lettuce and 1,287,000 pounds of tomatoes.

From O'Hare, which is only one of many United kitchens in the U.S., 5,000 pounds of coffee and a million miniature bottles of liquor are served each month.

Besides the regularly prepared foods, United also fixes thematic dinners. Some of the sealed-for-home recipes from these special dinners follow.

MIKE FINK'S MISSISSIPPI JAMBALAYA

- 1/4 pound sliced bacon, cut in 1-inch pieces
- 1/2 cup chopped onions
- 2 whole medium green peppers, seeded, cut into 1-inch strips
- 1 cup raw rice
- 2 cloves chopped garlic
- 1 pound whole pack tomatoes, chopped
- 1/4 teaspoon thyme leaves
- 1 teaspoon salt
- 1/2 teaspoon black pepper
- 2 cups chicken stock
- 1/2 pound cooked smoked ham, cut into 2 by 1/2-inch strips
- 1 pound medium, raw shrimp, shelled and deveined
- 1 tablespoon chopped fresh parsley
- 3 ounces cooked peas
- 3 ounces sliced mushrooms

Using heavy skillet or pot large enough to hold 4 quarts, fry bacon until brown but not crisp. Remove from fat and set aside.

Add onion to bacon fat and cook until glossy; add cut green peppers. When peppers are wilted and glossy, add rice and fry until it also becomes glossy.

Add garlic, tomatoes, bacon, thyme, salt and pepper. Stir thoroughly, add chicken stock and ham strips.

Bring to a boil and cover pot, placing it into a 350 degree oven. After 15 minutes, add the shrimp, pushing them into the rice mixture. Cook an additional 7 minutes, covered, until rice is tender and has absorbed all the cooking juice. If additional moisture is needed, add more chicken stock. Top with peas and sauteed mushrooms. Serve in a casserole with freshly chopped parsley. Makes enough for 6 persons.

CORNISH GAME HEN MADEIRA

- 2 cups cooked wild rice
- 1 cup cooked white rice
- 1 small onion, finely diced
- 1 tablespoon vegetable oil
- 1 tablespoon butter
- Salt and pepper
- 6 1-pound Rock Cornish Game Hens, partially boned

Saute onion in oil and butter over low heat. Do not brown. Add rice and mix well. Adjust seasoning and cool.

Divide stuffing into 6 equal portions and fill game hen cavities. Rub with butter, season with salt and pepper and roast in 350 degree oven for about 1 hour, or until a golden color.

- Sauce Madeira
- 2 cups beef consommé
- 1/2 cup Madeira wine
- 1 tablespoon red currant jelly
- 1 tablespoon vegetable oil
- 1 shallot, finely chopped
- 1/2 cup chopped fresh mushrooms
- 2 tablespoons flour mixed with 2 tablespoons cognac
- Salt and pepper to taste

Saute shallot and mushrooms in oil and 1 tablespoon butter over low heat. Do not brown. Add wine and boil down to 1/4 of its volume. Add stock and jelly and boil again.

Add flour/cognac mixture slowly, stirring constantly with a wire whip until smooth. Reduce heat and simmer for 15 minutes. Adjust seasonings.

Stir in the remaining tablespoon of butter and strain.

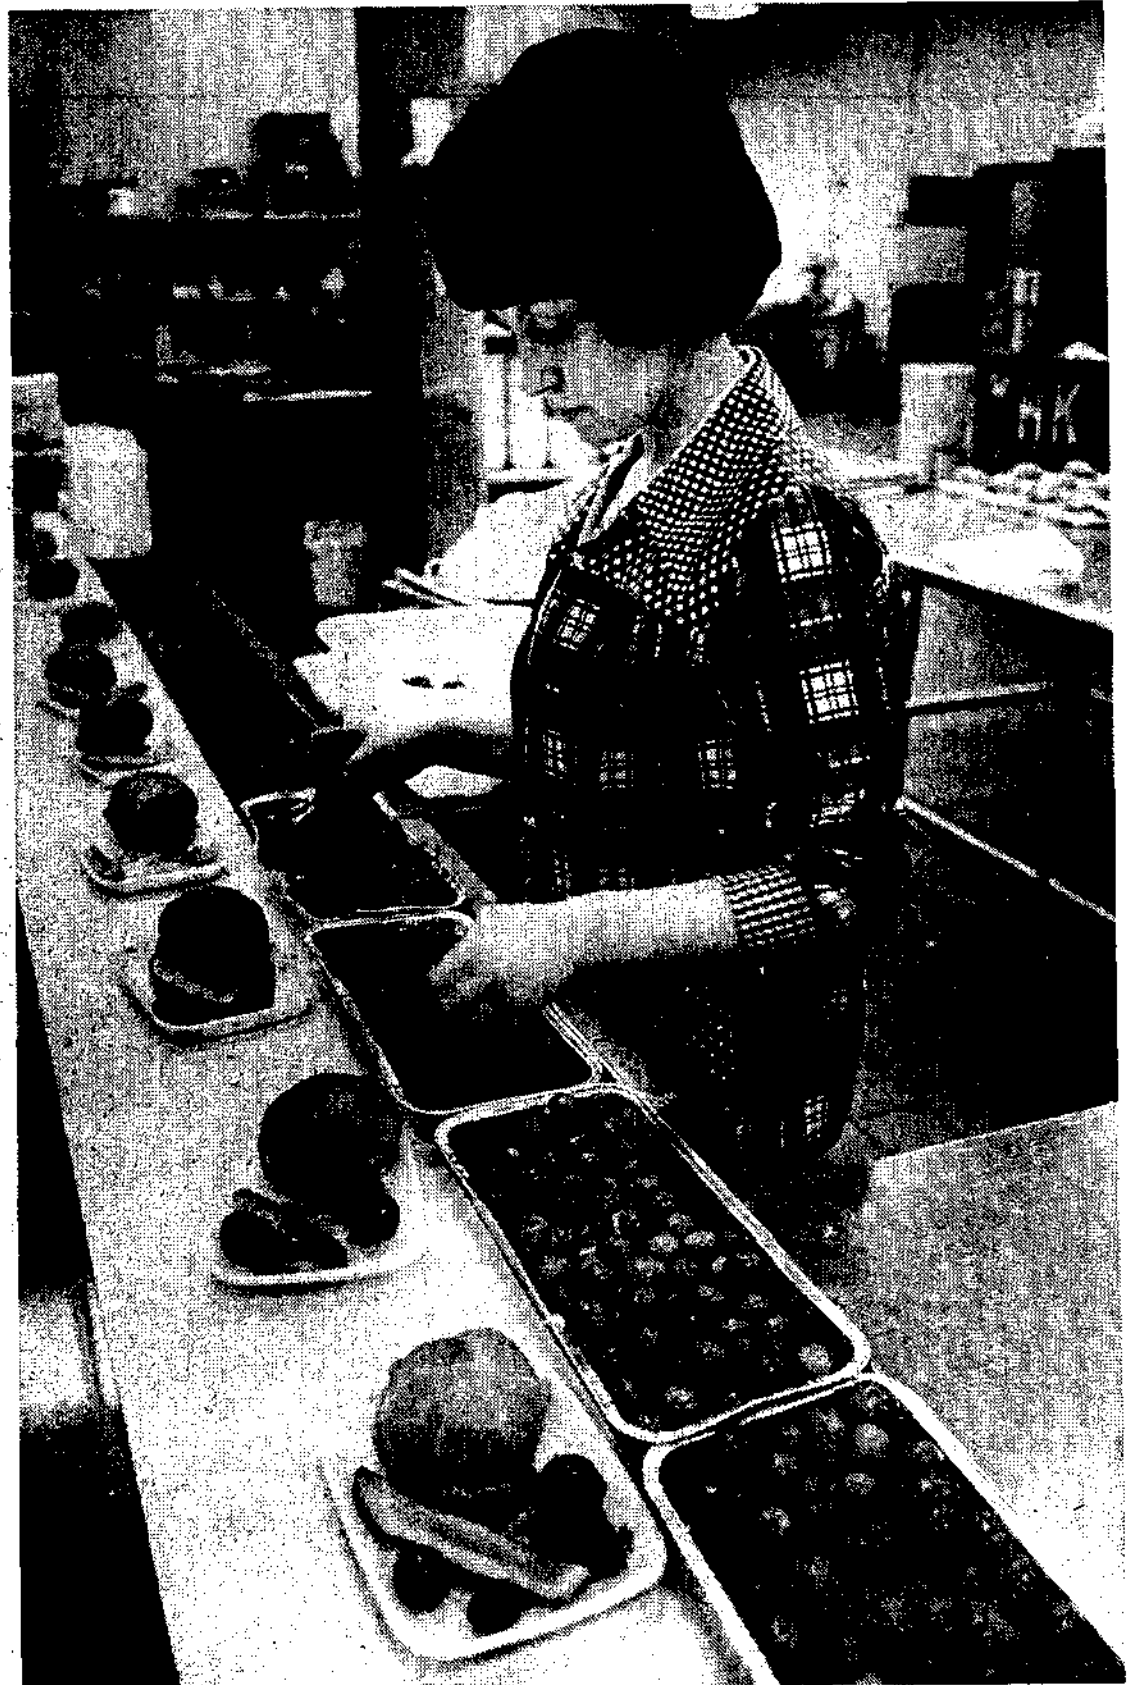

Serve with Cornish game hen. Makes enough for six servings.

Rather than pound round steak to make it thin, Divie simplified her Rouladen recipe by using thin-sliced sandwich steaks. She spreads them with Dijon mustard and rolls them up with onion, bacon and dill pickle spears in each. After browning, they are simmered in a bouillon, tomato paste and herb mixture. Rouladen can be made a day ahead, which seems to Bring two quarts water and one tea-spoon salt to a boil. Moisten a bread-

Spread one teaspoon mustard on each steak. Lay a piece of bacon down the center. Divide one cup of sauteed onions among the six steaks. Lay a pickle spear across the width. Then roll up, jelly roll fashion. Secure STORE-BOUGHT noodles are no comparison to the Spaetzle Dixie Methisen, Palatine, makes for her all-German dinner. Hearty, yet tender, Spaetzle is moister than regular noodle dough and is dropped in strips into boiling water for 10 minutes.

with toothpicks.
In heavy skillet, melt 3 tablespoons shortening or lard. Brown meat rolls evenly on all sides. Transfer to a plate. Add remaining sauteed onions, bouillon, tomato paste, bay leaf, thyme, water, salt and pepper in the skillet. Bring to a boil, scraping up particles from pan. Return beef rolls to pan, cover, reduce heat to simmer and cook one hour or until tender. Turn rolls once or twice during cooking. (do not pierce meat with fork). If necessary, add more water.

For the gravy, make a roux by browning 1½ tablespoons butter, adding 2 tablespoons flour and cooking until golden. When Rouladen are cooked, transfer to heated platter or casserole. Cover to keep warm. Thicken pan liquid with roux, adding one tablespoon at a time. The amount of roux needed depends on amount of liquid left. Season to taste. Let simmer for several minutes, stirring with wire whisk until sauce is smooth and thick. Serve sauce over beef rolls. Serves 6.

GERMAN COLE SLAW
1 medium cabbage, shredded
1/3 cup oil
1/4 cup wine vinegar
1 tablespoon sugar
Salt and pepper to taste
6 strips bacon, cooked
crisp and finely chopped
In a large bowl, pour two quarts boiling water over cabbage. Let sit five minutes. Drain colander. Squeeze excess water out of cabbage with your hands.

Pour oil and vinegar over cabbage. Sprinkle on sugar, salt, pepper and bacon. Mix together. Chill in refrigerator. Serves 6.

FROSTED CREAMS
1/2 cup raisins
1/2 cup raisin water
1/2 cup vegetable shortening
1 cup brown sugar
1 egg
1/2 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon baking soda
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 1/4 cup flour
1/2 cup chopped walnuts or pecans
Cook raisins in one cup water until plump. There should be 1/2 cup water left after cooking. Set aside.
Cream shortening and sugar. Beat in egg. Then add dry ingredients, raisins, 1/2 cup raisin water and chopped nuts. Mix well.
Turn into a greased, 9 by 13-inch baking pan. Bake at 350 degrees for 25 minutes. When cool frost with a butter cream icing. Cut in squares or bars to serve.

Lavish torte is flavored with coffee

For all those who truly like their coffee, here is something a little different, with a distinct coffee flavor.

COFFEE TORTE
1 cup sugar
1/3 cup instant coffee
2 envelopes unflavored gelatin
4 eggs, well beaten
3 cups milk scalded
1/3 cup coffee liqueur
1 4 1/2 or 5-ounce package frozen whipped topping
8 Lady Fingers, split
1/2 cup coarsely chopped nuts
In top of double boiler, combine sugar, coffee and gelatin. Add well beaten eggs; gradually blend in the scalded milk. Cook over hot water, stirring constantly, until gelatin dissolves and mixture thickens slightly. Remove from heat; blend in coffee liqueur. Chill until mixture begins to mound from spoon; fold in whipped topping. Line sides of an 8-inch spring form pan with waxed paper, then lady fingers, rounded side out. Spoon coffee mixture into pan; chill until set. To serve, remove sides of pan and waxed paper. Sprinkle top with chopped nuts. Makes 8 to 10 servings.

Carrot enhanced by adding spice

There's everything good to be said for carrots: Their year-round availability, reasonable price, texture, attractive color and rich nutrient content. Spicy Carrot Pudding is a "company dish" which home economists of the American Spice Trade Association recommend. Ginger Glazed Carrots, a family food, are served with a spicy honey sauce.

SPICED CARROT PUDDING

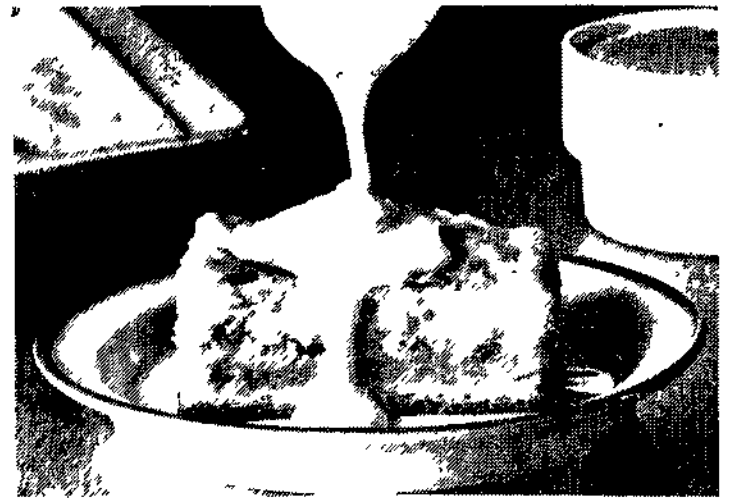

- 1 1/2 cups all-purpose flour
- 1 1/2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1 1/2 teaspoons salt
- 1 1/2 teaspoons ground cinnamon
- 1 1/8 teaspoon ground nutmeg
- 1/2 cup butter or margarine
- 3 cups grated raw carrots
- 3/4 cup firmly-packed dark brown sugar
- 3 eggs, separated

In a medium bowl combine flour, baking powder, salt, cinnamon and nutmeg, set aside. In a medium saucepan melt butter. Blend in carrots, sugar and egg yolks; stir into flour mixture. Beat egg whites until stiff, fold into carrot mixture. Pour into a greased and floured 6-cup ring mold. Bake in a preheated, moderate oven (350 degrees) until a cake tester inserted in center comes out clean, about 45 minutes. Cool in pan on a wire rack for 10 minutes. Unmold. Serve hot. Fill center with hot peas, if desired. Serves 8.

GINGER GLAZED CARROTS

- 6 large carrots
- 2 cups water
- 1 teaspoon ground ginger, divided
- 3/4 teaspoon salt, divided
- 1/4 cup butter or margarine
- 1/4 cup honey

Peel carrots; cut into 2 by 1/4-inch strips. In a medium saucepan combine water, 1/2 teaspoon each of the ginger and the salt. Bring to the boiling point. Add carrots. Return to the boiling point. Reduce heat and simmer, covered, until carrots are almost tender, 8 to 10 minutes, drain. In a medium skillet melt butter. Stir in honey, remaining 1/2 teaspoon ginger and 1/4 teaspoon salt. Add carrots; cook and stir until carrots are tender and glazed, about 8 minutes. Serves 8.

Heart Denver Sandwich Squares

Spring appetites appeased quickly

When spring jobs leave you without a minute to spare, a nutritious hot sandwich that's hearty and quick to put together can make a satisfying dinner, with just the addition of a crisp salad.

Hearty Denver Sandwich Squares combine cheese and luncheon meat or leftover ham slices between layers of a delicious baked "bread" made by combining complete buttermilk pancake mix with a zippy cheese sauce mixture. More cheese sauce goes over the baked sandwich squares.

This main dish sandwich is as nutritious as it is hearty. Each serving furnishes one-third or more of the protein, vitamin C, most B vitamins and the calcium recommended for a good daily diet. As a definite bonus, it also provides 70 per cent of hard-to-get iron, when made with luncheon meat.

HEARTY DENVER SANDWICH SQUARES

- 2 cups complete buttermilk pancake mix
- 1 (11-ounce) can condensed Cheddar cheese soup
- 1 teaspoon prepared mustard
- 1 cup water
- 8 to 10 slices (about 8 to 12-ounces) luncheon meat or ham
- 4 (1-ounce each) slices or 1 cup shredded Cheddar or

- American cheese
- 1/4 cup chopped onion
- 1/4 cup chopped green pepper
- 2 tablespoons milk

Preheat oven to 400 degrees. Grease bottom of 8 or 9-inch square pan. In medium bowl, combine pancake mix, 1/4 cup condensed soup, mustard and water, stir just until blended. Spread about 1 cup batter in pan. Layer meat, cheese, onion and green pepper over batter, evenly spoon on remaining batter. Bake 20 to 30 minutes, until golden brown. Heat remaining soup and milk, spoon over hot sandwich squares. (Refrigerate leftovers.) Serves 4 to 6.

Prices effective Thursday, April 1 through Sunday, April 4, 1976.

Coffee cake sets a change of pace

Batter coffee cakes are a great way to vary breakfast eating patterns or to entertain friends. This recipe, given in both metric and American Standard measurements, is made with a biscuit mix, semi-sweet chocolate and coconut.

COCONUT-CHOCOLATE SWIRL COFFEE CAKE

160 milliliters or 2/3 cups flaked coconut
15 milliliters or 1 tablespoon butter or margarine, melted
15 milliliters or 1 tablespoon sugar
2 1/2 milliliters or 1/2 teaspoon cinnamon
2 squares semi-sweet chocolate
20 milliliters or 2 tablespoons milk
500 milliliters (about 250 grams) or 2 cups biscuit mix

Cooking with metrics

185 milliliters or 3/4 cup milk.
60 milliliters (60 grams) or 1/4 cup sugar
1 egg
30 milliliters or 2 tablespoons salad oil

Combine coconut, butter, 15 milliliters (1 tablespoon) sugar, and the cinnamon; set aside. Melt chocolate with 30 milliliters (2 tablespoons) milk in saucepan over low heat, stirring constantly; cool.

Meanwhile, combine biscuit mix, 185 milliliters (3/4 cup) milk, sugar, egg and salad oil; heat vigorously about 30 seconds. Add half the dough to the melted chocolate; blend well. Alternately spoon chocolate mixture and remaining dough into greased 20 centimeter (8-inch) square pan.

Cut through batter with spatula or knife in zigzag pattern to marble. Evenly sprinkle reserved coconut mixture over batter. Bake at 200 degrees Celsius (400 degrees Fahrenheit) for about 30 minutes or until lightly browned. Cool; cut into squares. Makes about 9 servings.

Paprika is versatile spice

One of nature's own reds is paprika. The more brilliant its red color, the better we like it for numerous cooking purposes. So popular is paprika that we consume about 24 million pounds of this powder annually, 10 million pounds of which are produced in California.

The bright red of paprika is due to certain forms of carotene, a nutrient as well as a coloring matter in plants. While carotene was named for its carrot color in dilution, it is violet in pure form. It occurs widely throughout nature in many brightly colored foods of plant origin.

Once carotene has been eaten, it turns to vitamin A in the process of digestion. Paprika is also rich in vitamin C, but in the amounts normally used, the spice is not significant nutritionally.

Paprika is sold only in the ground form. It comes from certain strains of red pepper pods — generally very mild and sweet, but also available in nippier types. Hungarians, for example, have traditionally preferred paprika with some bite. Most paprika used in this country comes from Spain and California and is of the sweet, highly colorful type.

Paprika is used as a garnish and flavor for all kinds of creamed and light-colored foods, like Welsh rarebit, deviled eggs, mayonnaise dressings, white potatoes, cauliflower, salads, dips, canapes, chowders.

Quick twist to a grilled sandwich

If you're a "from scratch" cook whose meal preparation time is limited, here's the best news since stir-fry cookery. It's the hot-grilled Supper Sole Sandwich — from freezer to family dinner table in less than 15 minutes.

SUPPER SOLE SANDWICH

1 pound frozen Sole fillets
1 cup water
1 slice onion
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup chopped celery
1 cup chopped onion
2 tablespoons pickle relish
1 cup mayonnaise
6 slices (1 ounce each) processed American cheese

12 slices white or whole wheat bread

Place block of frozen fish fillets in 10-inch skillet or large saucepan. Add water, onion and salt. Cover, bring to a boil, then immediately reduce heat and simmer about 8 to 10 minutes or until fish becomes opaque and flakes easily with a fork. Drain and flake fish and combine with celery, chopped onion, pickle relish and mayonnaise. Spread mixture evenly on 6 slices of bread. Top each with a cheese slice and remaining slices of bread. Grill on both sides until cheese starts to melt and sandwich is golden.

Houdini Eggs

Magician in kitchen makes memorable Easter eggs

Houdini is to magic as an egg is to Easter. A magic trick at Sunday brunch uses the traditional hard-cooked egg wrapped in flaky pastry.

HOUDINI EGGS

1 1/4 cups flour
1 teaspoon paprika
1/2 teaspoon onion salt
1/3 cup mayonnaise
2 tablespoons cold water

Supper Sole Sandwich

4 hard cooked eggs, peeled
Magic Mustard Sauce

In medium bowl stir together flour, paprika and onion salt. Cut in mayonnaise with pastry blender or 2 knives until mixture forms fine crumbs. Sprinkle on water; mix well. Press dough with hands into a ball. Divide into 4 parts. Form each part into a ball. On lightly floured surface roll each ball into a circle. Wrap around egg. Place on cookie sheet. Bake in 425 degree oven 15 to 20 minutes or until golden brown. Cut eggs in half and serve with Magic Mustard Sauce. Makes 4 servings.

Magic Mustard Sauce: In small saucepan stir together 1/4 cup mayonnaise and 1/4 cup prepared mustard. Gradually stir in 1/2 cup milk. Cook over low heat, stirring constantly, 5 minutes or until mixture bubbles and thickens.

Changes in food survey announced

The Herald Food Price Survey will change in format, beginning April 8.

Instead of the extensive listing of prices now practiced, the survey will devote coverage to trends in area food marketing, analysis of price fluctuations and forecasts of foods which might be good buys throughout the month.

Some of the reasons for the changes are a stabilizing of food prices over the last year, making an extensive listing of prices unnecessary, and difficulty in publishing an up-to-date listing of prices because of Herald deadlines combined with in-store sales and price adjustments marked on different days in each store.

The Herald will survey five area food chain stores, with the resulting article appearing at the beginning of each month.

If there are any questions, comments or suggestions, the number to call is 394-2300, ext. 263.

Old cookbook discovered

Bicentennial inspired collector's search

by JEANNE LESEM

Bookseller Eleanor Lowenstein usually isn't interested in cookbooks published after 1880.

The volume that changed her mind is a battered copy of "The Centennial Cook Book and General Guide" by Mrs. Ella E. Myers. It is a combined cookbook and guide to Philadelphia and was published in the City of Brotherly Love in 1876 to commemorate the nation's Centennial.

Miss Lowenstein is the author of "American Cookery Books 1742-1880," a bibliography that she said stops at 1880 because that year marked the end of an era and the beginning of the Civil War, after which life in America changed.

Her Corner Book Shop on New York City's Fourth Avenue is a leading source for out-of-print and rare books about gastronomy and textiles. In an interview, Miss Lowenstein said her search for the Myers book began last summer, when the Smithsonian Institution sought her help in locating a copy that people could handle at a Bicentennial exhibit. She had none in stock, so she advertised for it.

JUST BEFORE Christmas, she was offered two copies. She turned down one because its title page and several other pages were missing. When the second copy arrived recently, "I thought it would be a pity if it were displayed one year at the Smithsonian, and then buried. I would like to make it available to the public."

A couple of publishers have expressed interest in publishing a facsimile copy of the Myers book to commemorate the Bicentennial, and she is writing an introduction describing the background of the period in which the book first was published.

Producing a facsimile requires taking the original apart to photograph each page separately.

"This one is falling apart already," Miss Lowenstein said. "It's in very good condition to reproduce. The binding is shot and the pages are loose, but no pages are torn and none are missing."

"Rare books are becoming very scarce, and this would be a way of keeping them alive and available to the public."

"THIS BOOK grows on you," she said, leafing through it. "It's all theory on my part, but I think it probably was published as a souvenir of the Centennial."

"The general guide (section) is a guide to Philadelphia and the Centennial, with drawings of Philadelphia landmarks of the time. Most of it is actually a cookbook — 190 pages."

Like others of the period, it devotes chapters to folk medicine, house-keeping, even farming and butter-making.

The household hints include directions for keeping fish alive without water for two weeks or longer. It's hard to believe that Mrs. Myers was serious when she wrote that fish could be preserved alive by stuffing their mouths with bread steeped in brandy, pouring a little brandy into them, and placing them in straw in "a moderately cool situation."

Although her directions are skimpy, another sign of the times, some of her recipes are not only good, but also practicable even today. Green tomato pie, for example, is made with sliced tomatoes, sugar and ginger, grated lemon peel and lemon juice, baked under a thick crust. Another is Scotch apple pie sweetened with a little sugar and "half a pot of Scotch marmalade" (probably orange).

A previous owner obviously used the book well, pencilling comments in the margins. Beside one faded newspaper clipping about seasoning sausage, she had written: "too much sage entirely one fourth oz. to 10 lb. be enough and a little less salt and pepper."

Wine industry set new record

California wine shipments to market last year set an all-time record of 272.5 million gallons, an increase of more than 22 million over the previous year. John De Luca, president of the Wine Institute, a trade organization, said table wines were up 11.2 per cent, appetizer and dessert wines rose 4.5 per cent and sparkling wines, 6.1 per cent. DeLuca also said California wine is increasing its share of the market.

East Coast Teamsters strike; truckers here roll on

by LEA TONKIN

Teamster negotiators late Wednesday told local union leaders to negotiate their own contracts or "shut 'em down by midnight."

In a move that could sidestep the Ford Administration's invitation for an 80-day cooling-off period under the Taft Hartley Act, the union negotiators also offered national trucking industry bargainers an interim three-year pact as the midnight deadline approached.

By 11 p.m. trucking industry negotiators had not reached a decision on the teamsters' interim offer.

BUT A WALKOUT in the Chicago area apparently was averted about 11 p.m. when local union leaders said Chicago area Teamsters would try to reach interim agreements with local employers.

Louis Peick, representing Chicago Local 705, said area Teamsters leaders have been told to line up agreements with local employers.

Detroit, New York and Ohio Teamsters walked off their jobs at 11 p.m. Chicago time.

Edward Feener, an official for independent union drivers not affiliated with the Teamsters, said a walk-out probably will not take place in the Chicago area today.

The proposed offer calls for a total of $1.75 in wage hikes during the next three years; three cents a mile allowances increase; and $17-a-week hike in health, welfare and pension contributions.

THE TAKE-IT-OR-LEAVE-IT deal offered the Trucking Employers Inc. was simple: Sign the contract or face a strike at 12:01 a.m. today. Pickets were scheduled to be up early this morning if the interim pact was not signed.

The trucking industry's original offer was to boost the $7.18 to $7.33 hourly truckers' wage 85 cents during the next three years. In addition, over-the-road truckers were offered a two-cents hike to the present 18-cent-a-mile allowance limit during the next three years.

The employers also originally offered an $11-a-week increase in the current $44-a-week contribution to the health, welfare and pension fund.

Labor Sec. W. J. Usery was sitting in on marathon negotiating sessions between the Teamsters and the trucking industry at the Arlington Park Hilton Hotel in Arlington Heights.

HIGH HOPES FOR a settlement covering more than 400,000 drivers and warehousemen across the country faded as the time grew shorter.

A Teamsters' strike — the first nationwide walkout by the giant union yet — could have a crippling effect on many segments of the nation's sputtering economy. The Teamsters involved haul 60 per cent of the nation's manufactured goods.

Even if a last-minute agreement were reached, there were calls for wildcat walkouts.

Teamster officials from Pennsylvania and Oklahoma said locals were being advised throughout the nation to seek a local settlement with their individual employers outside the master agreement. Teamsters terms were to remain intact.

THE OKLAHOMA OFFICIAL said he was instructing (Continued on Page 15)

Money mayhem statewide dilemma

A Herald staff report

Northwest suburban communities and municipalities throughout Illinois are facing hard times, a situation which is affecting everything from street sweeping to possible increases in property taxes.

Locally, governmental leaders are tightening the belt on spending — eliminating some programs, rejecting requests for personnel increases and limiting wage increases to about 6 per cent, in most cases.

It is not a crisis, but it is becoming increasingly difficult for revenue to keep up with the spiraling costs of operations, finance directors say.

The common objective in the new fiscal year is to provide existing services without an increase in costs. Financial worry and penny-pinching is evident throughout the state.

"WE'RE JUST having a hell of a time keeping up," said Peoria Assistant City Mgr. A. Fred Timmerman.

"For example, we buy something like 500,000 gallons of gasoline a year. It was 20 to 22 cents a gallon several years ago (without tax). Now we're paying 40 to 42 cents a gallon."

The result in Peoria, Timmerman said, will be a property tax rate increase of 14 or 14½ cents per $100 of assessed valuation this year, which will allow the town's $19 million budget to be balanced. It also will allow a 7 per cent pay hike for the city's 800 employees.

The situation is worse in towns that have been hit hard by unemployment because when people are out of work they buy fewer goods and their communities get less sales tax.

MOST NORTHWEST suburban communities have managed to balance their books this year, but Mount Prospect is facing a deficit of $400,000 and Elk Grove Village has been forced to make some large cuts in spending since last October when a deficit of $270,000 was projected.

Mount Prospect Village Pres. Robert D. Teichert Wednesday said it is "not a panic situation."

"The problem is more severe in the minds of the people than it is in fact," he said.

Tuesday night, the Mount Prospect Village Board voted to impose on residents a $4 per month direct garbage collection charge. It is hoped the new (Continued on Page 10)

Sanitation changes to save $80,000

Des Plaines officials are considering revisions in the city's sanitation department that are expected to save the city $80,000 to $90,000 a year.

The revisions, which will be made by the end of the year, include shifting three employees to other departments, staffing garbage trucks with only two men instead of three, eliminating one sanitation route and expanding the remaining seven. One garbage truck would be eliminated.

Joseph Schwab, commissioner of public works, said no employees will be laid off as a result of the changes. The changes also are not expected to affect service or the $3 monthly garbage pickup rate residents now pay.

CITY OFFICIALS are planning the changes to eliminate at least part of a continuing deficit in the city's sanitation department. The city lost about $400,000 on garbage pickups in 1974 and $370,000 in 1975.

The city council's sanitation committee was considering hiring private scavengers as a way of saving money, but two weeks ago officials decided to try to first improve the efficiency of the present system.

Aldermen deferred action at the request of officials from the Assn. of Independent Municipal Employees, which represents the city's sanitation workers. City officials have met with union officials several times to discuss possible changes.

Walter Cloutier, a spokesman for the union, said the union will cooperate. (Continued on Page 4)

by JILL BETTNER

Better taste the white stuff in the sugar bowl before dumping a big spoonful in your morning coffee. Think twice about going through a week's worth of trash to find that lottery ticket a friend says is worth $1 million. In fact, just to be safe, don't believe half of what anybody tells you all day today.

It's April Fool's Day, beloved holiday of tricksters and practical jokers everywhere and the bane of all the gullible, trusting souls who inevitably become their victims.

Nobody is quite sure how April Fool's Day got started, but although the actual origins of the holiday are obscure, there are several interesting theories.

SOME SAY IT IS derived from ancient New Year festivals celebrating the vernal equinox and the coming of spring — a time when even the capricious weather plays tricks.

In most versions, France gets the credit (or the blame, depending on how you feel about it) for designating April 1 as "All Fools Day."

Apparently, the day grew out of the confusion that was created when France adopted the Gregorian calendar in 1582. Up until that time, the New Year — traditionally a time for gift-giving and visiting friends — had ended April 1. The Gregorian calendar, however, moved the holiday back to its current date, Jan. 1.

A few conservative Frenchmen, so the story goes, refused to accept the new date. Others, who were just more forgetful that stubborn, kept showing up at friends' houses at the wrong time by mistake. Anyway, they were all laughed at and called (guess what) April Fools.

SOME TRIVIA experts trace the beginnings of the holiday back to Biblical times, connecting it to an incident

in the story of Noah and the Ark. This version says the practice of sending friends on fool's errands started when Noah, wrongly thinking the flood had subsided, sent a dove out from the Ark on a futile search for land.

Another religious explanation associates the origin of fool's errands with tricks played on Christ by his foes to mock Him.

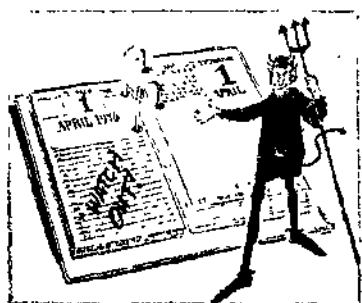

Still another version has its roots in Medieval times. According to this story, the holiday can be traced to a time when insane asylum patients were released for a few hours each year on the first day of April. Cruel crowds reportedly goaded the patients into doing things that were impossible for them and then laughed while the poor patients struggled.

Whatever the real story is, April Fool's Day has evolved into a day of impostors and absurdity relished by pranksters around the world.

In Scotland, the first of April is the time for "hunting the gowk" or cuckoo, the symbol of fools throughout Europe generally.

A Frenchman tricked by a friend is called a Poisson d'Avril or April Fish, meaning one who has been easily caught in an April Fool's Day joke. The day is also popular in Italy, Spain, Portugal, Sweden, Germany and Norway. The last two countries celebrate with hilarity on the last day as well as the first day of April.

Of all the customs associated with April Fool's Day, Mexico has one of the most unusual. South of the border, the day for fooling is Dec. 28. On that date, anyone clever enough to trick a friend into lending him one of his possessions doesn't have to give it back.

Sanitation changes to save $80,000

ate with the city in its efforts to save money.

"WE WANT TO BE able to compete with anybody that will want to take our jobs," he said. "We realize the system is inefficient and want to work to make it more efficient."

Mayor Herbert H. Behrel, who suggested the city consider hiring private scavenger firms, said he is willing to wait and see if the changes in the sanitation department will save money for the city.

"Sure, I would never want our men to think we would just take an arbitrary attitude toward them and their jobs," he said. "We're going to cooperate with them if they cooperate with us in an attempt to save money in the sanitation department."

A preliminary study recently completed by researchers at Columbia University's Graduate School of Business shows that private firms are more efficient and can save taxpayers money. Behrel said, however, he was not aware of the study last January when he suggested the city consider hiring private scavengers.

THE SANITATION department now has 30 employees, Schwab said, and the city plans to reduce the number to 23 by the end of the year. He said four employees will retire by then, and the remaining employees will be placed in other openings in the public works department.

"I will not be able to do this too fast," he said. "I'll have to do it by attrition."

The union has suggested the positions of foremen and superintendent of sanitation be eliminated and that the employees be placed in jobs in which they are needed more. Schwab said, however, he is still considering the matter.

Teachers to mull 'no pact-no work'

by PAM BIGFORD

Elementary school teachers who are members of the North Suburban Unified Bargaining Council (NSUBC) will meet Wednesday to complete a platform for teacher contract bargaining which may include teachers refusing to begin school in September if their contracts have not been settled.

The bargaining coalition, associated with the statewide Illinois Education Assoc., represents about 2,400 teachers in 15 north suburban districts.

Northwest suburban affiliates include unions in Prospect Heights Dist. 23, River Trails Dist. 26, Mount Prospect Dist. 57, Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 and the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization. The Wheeling-Elmhurst Dist. 21 union will consider membership Friday.

CLAIRE HYMAN, NSUBC chairman, said the members will vote on a proposition of "no contract — no work," meaning that teachers whose contracts are not settled by September would refuse to begin the school year until they have a contract.

Teachers beginning the school year without a contract has not been uncommon in the Northwest suburbs, though bargaining usually begins in February or March.

Of the member districts, Dist. 23 settled in October; Dist. 26 signed its contract in December; Dist. 57 settled in September after school began; and Dist. 59 reached an 11th-hour agreement the day before school started. NSSEO is bargaining for its first contract this year. Dist. 21 did not settle until after school began in September.

Members will vote on other platform positions including negotiated procedures for reducing staff that provide seniority for tenure teachers, due process for non-tenure teachers and adequate rehiring procedure; cost-of-living raises;

Parity, or raising elementary teachers' pay to the level of high school teachers; a master contract in every district; a negotiated early retirement plan; and negotiating only one-year contracts with a common expiration date for all NSUBC members.

METHODS FOR REDUCING teaching staffs have been of particular concern to teachers this year because of declining enrollment and grim financial pictures.

Ms. Hyman said part of the "no contract — no work" proposal is that all unions that plan to go on strike should go together and that none would return to work until they all do.

However, the member unions will not automatically be committed to striking if their contracts are not signed by the first day of school, Ms. Hyman said. "Each local will make that decision on its own, but the point is that if they do decide to strike, they will all go together," she said.

Ms. Hyman said if the goals are passed, the member unions will be committed to working toward them. If they do not meet all the goals, they will have to get authorization from the NSUBC before they can sign their contracts.

All of the Northwest suburban member districts have contracts which expire this year and will be negotiating for next year. Dist. 21 has a two-year contract.

THE BARGAINING coalition was formed last spring to set collective bargaining goals for the member unions and to research financial backgrounds of school districts.

The coalition will consider an "action program" for the coming year, including renewed investigation into property tax underassessments, examining school district consolidation, and improving teacher fringe benefits.

Last year the coalition charged that more than $50 million in under assessments of 18 commercial properties in the northern suburbs were robbing schools of $4 million in tax revenue. Ms. Hyman said County Tax Assessor Thomas Tully refused to meet with the coalition.

Panel to meet tonight on unit district

The financial benefits of forming a unit school district will be discussed tonight by the citizens' committee looking into the formation of an Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 unit district.

The committee will meet at 7:30 p.m. at Grove Junior High School, 777 Elk Grove Blvd., Elk Grove Village.

The Illinois School Consultants, hired by Dist. 59 to provide information on forming a unit district, will present the current financial picture of Dist. 59 and High School Dist. 214 and projections on the finance for the proposed unit district.

A unit district would have one school board and administration governing the elementary and high schools. Currently, Dist. 59 is one of seven elementary districts in Dist. 214.

The financial projections are the last report to be discussed by the committee before it meets to decide whether it will seek a referendum on forming a unit district. The committee April 8 will decide whether to petition for a referendum.

Closets full? - try a want-ad

by DIANE MERMIGAS

It was hard to tell who was fooling whom Tuesday afternoon.

The blushing bride was a man who stood six feet tall in a well-padded lace gown, holding a bouquet of onions, garlic, carrots and other assorted vegetables.

The groom was a petite woman dressed in black talls and top hat with an uncanny resemblance to Harpo Marx.

About 50 senior citizens, dressed in their Sunday best, watched attentively from metal folding chairs while the "odd couple" exchanged rare vows of marriage, surrounded by an even stranger looking wedding party.

THE SENIOR citizens thought it would be funny to have the men and women exchange their traditional roles in the wedding party, especially with April Fool's Day around the corner.

Actually, it was a mock wedding ceremony staged by members of the River Trails Park District Senior Citizens Club to honor the 50th wedding anniversary of Edward and Josephine Watrin of Mount Prospect.

The "maid of honor" stood 6 feet 5 inches tall, and was dressed in a ribbon-trimmed gown and floppy-brimmed hat of flowers. Gaudy earrings dangled from the ears of most of the "bridesmaids," whose undershirts peaked out from their lace gowns.

The ushers wore fake mustaches, and a flower girl, dressed in a dotted top and ballet skirt, threw fake flower petals on the audience.

DO YOU PROMISE "to rub his back when he complains and bring him a little schnapps when gets home?" the make-believe minister asked.

"I'm sure you believed that it's cheaper for two to live than one, but on that you've been deceived . . . if you think you can live on love alone, forget it," the minister continued.

Then he pronounced them "louse" and "spouse."

Although the scene was a comical one, the mock wedding prompted some real tears of joy.

The couple brushed tears from their eyes as the gathering of seniors indulged in coffee, lively conversation and, of course, some wedding cake.

"WE NEVER EXPECTED this. We have such wonderful friends to do this for us. This is really love and friendship," said Mrs. Watrin.

The couple was surprised by their friends when they entered the park district community center, 1313 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect, for what would have been a weekly meeting of the group.

Instead, the hall was decorated like a church, with flowers and a white runner down the main aisle. A table in the back of the room was heavy with gifts and cards for the occasion, and a gold money tree as a token of best wishes.

"I didn't know what to think when we came in. I was so surprised. It was just like an April Fool's Day joke," said Watrin, who worked for 28 years in the shipyards of Chicago.

"This is better than our first wedding. My knees are still shaking. I'm nervous as a new bride," Mrs. Watrin said. The room was filled with laughter and old friends remembering the days when they, too, were brides and grooms, and younger.

"ISN'T THIS THE most wonderful wedding you've ever been to?" said Marcelle LeClerc, Arlington Heights, the flower girl, who served most of the wedding party outfits.

"We love to do these kinds of things. It keeps us young and helps us forget the pain," she said.

And Mrs. Watrin? Well, she was busy recalling the first days of the whirlwind relationship with her husband. They met in a Chicago ballroom and were married seven weeks later.

They still enjoy dancing together and they agree that it seems like only yesterday when they met.

"I don't feel older, but I look at Ed and then look at myself in the mirror and I realize we are older. Our feelings haven't changed and neither has our spirit," she said.

A walk down the aisle for the "odd couple."

At the altar.

A laughing guest.

by PAM BIGFORD

Four pairs of hands answer a teacher's question in sign language. Four sets of lips call out the accompanying word. Four deaf children learn a little more about getting along in a hearing world.

The four are in a 13-student deaf education program sponsored by the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization at Kensington School, 201 S. Evanston, Arlington Heights.

A few miles away in Ridge School, 650 Ridge Ave., Elk Grove Village, six other deaf children are equally busy, working just as hard toward the same goals, supervised by the same organization, learning the same subjects.

THE RIDGE DEAF children were classmates of those in Kensington until this year. The six were moved to a newly created program in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 after a three-month controversy over serious inadequacies in the NSSEO program.

Both schools are working to create programs to solve these problems.

At Kensington, a new speech development teacher and principal have been hired. A program to teach the hearing children sign language has been expanded.

Instead of the deaf children being segregated at lunch and recess, they are encouraged to join the other children. Fifth graders are allowed to be patrol guards just like the hearing fifth graders.

A GROUP HAS BEEN started so that parents of deaf children can discuss their common problems. The Kensington PTA included the parent group in their activities.

"The speech development program has really improved," said parent Carol Stark, echoing other parents. "I can tell the difference in my son. He's getting about 3 1/2 hours of speech development a week, where last year he was getting about 20 minutes."

Many parents blamed the poor social integration of the children on a lack of leadership from the former administration. The new principal, Richard Bennett, received nothing but praise from parents.

"The school has a real leader now. He's in the kids' classroom often, and is even taking a sign language class," said parent Cindy Rentdorff.

MOST PARENTS said they are very pleased with the acceptance of their children this year by the hearing students. Other parents said there is progress only because there was nowhere to go but up.

"The attitude of the whole school has improved," said parent Robert Forti. "I'll never be satisfied with the program — it can always be better — but I'm satisfied that they are making progress."

Lorraine Kelly teaches sign language before school to 88 hearing children who come early because they want to learn it.

"There's a natural split between the hearing and the deaf children because they don't know how to communicate with each other," Mrs. Kelly said. "Now that the hearing kids have started taking sign language, I've noticed little groups of them talking and laughing with the deaf children."

OTHER PARENTS said the Kensington program has improved in some ways, but serious problems remain.

Parents' revelations sparked split

The deaf education program sponsored by the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization (NSSEO) split last summer after parents exposed serious inadequacies in the way it was operated and demanded it be removed from Arlington Heights Dist. 25.

Parents of 12 of the 19 children in the program housed in Kensington School in Arlington Heights signed a petition last May to have the program removed.

Charges levied by parents included: Inadequate speech development program; placement of emotionally disturbed children in deaf classes; lack of correlation between the elementary and junior high programs and a lack of social integration of the deaf at Kensington.

NSSEO Director Edward McDonald said some of the parents' complaints were valid.

McDonald recommended the program remain at Kensington because he said that changing the program's location would not solve its problems.

When the NSSEO board voted to keep the program at Kensington, the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education decided to offer an alternative deaf education program for the six deaf children within its boundaries.

The deaf program as a whole has only six girls, and three of them are at Ridge. Parents Marie Burks and Carol Engler said the split in the program has limited their daughters socially by limiting their girlfriends.

"There are only two girls besides my daughter in the program, and this has created some boy-girl problems," Mrs. Engler said.

Some parents say nothing has been done about removing children who are both deaf and emotionally disturbed from the classroom.

BENNETT SAID none of the deaf children have been diagnosed as emotionally disturbed, and he was not aware of any excessive disruption problems in the deaf classes.

At Ridge, a whole new program was formed and is under NSSEO supervision. Classroom teacher Marilyn Grodrian is assisted by one aide. A speech therapist works with the children every afternoon, and Ridge has its own learning disabilities teacher.

The children eat lunch, have recess and gym class and be patrol guards with the hearing students.

Ridge parents said they are very happy with the program and so far have no complaints.

"I think the kids have been honestly accepted by the rest of the school," Mrs. Grodrian said. "The children aren't segregated in any school activity unless I ask for it."

SOME PARENTS said their children's speech has improved not only because of the new speech therapist, but because their children's new involvement with the hearing students has motivated them to want to talk.

"Last year my son didn't even play with the hearing children at Kensington, and this year at Ridge he's on the football team," said Nancy Ford, a leader in the fight to move the program.

"My son feels like he's a part of everything that goes on, and it's done wonders for his speech," Mrs. Ford said. "Nobody has any idea what this kind of thing has done for the morale of these kids."

Carolyn Best said her daughter's speech has improved "100 per cent" this year and credits it to her daughter's feeling of "total acceptance."

"LAST YEAR my daughter said she hated school," Mrs. Best said. "This year she never complains."

Parents said their children do not miss their Kensington classmates as much as they feared they would.

Irene Flagg said her son never even mentions his old friends anymore.

"Now he plays more with the kids in the neighborhood than he did before," Mrs. Flagg said. "Last year he was apprehensive about playing with the hearing kids because he hadn't had any exposure to them for two years. I feel like his whole life has changed."

Most of the Ridge parents remain bitter toward the Kensington program and insist their children will not go back to Kensington if the programs are ever reunited.

"I WOULD SEND my daughter to a regular school with an interpreter" rather than send her to Kensington, Mrs. Best said.

NSSEO Director Edward McDonald said that he does not believe Dist. 59 will be able to sustain a deaf education program after the five 10-year-olds now in the class move on to junior high.

"The prevalence of deaf children in that area (Dist. 59) now is extremely high," McDonald said. He noted that most of the children were born during the time when many pregnant women had German measles.

"The parents in Dist. 59 had legitimate concerns," McDonald said. "I asked them to bear with us and that we would straighten things out. We have kept our promise and I hope they can see that."

McDonald said if the deaf students were brought back together NSSEO would be able to provide a "more diversified program."

THE RIDGE PARENTS said they never intended to split the program — they wanted the entire class removed from Kensington. But even though the program split, parents from both schools say their action focused attention on the program's inadequacies.

"It was very beneficial that the parents' group was so vocal," Mrs. Rentdorff said. "You don't get a second chance to give our kids language development and self-confidence."

"You don't have to worry about hearing kids who automatically get the best education a district can provide. But for my son, who really needs these extra things, they weren't there," she said.

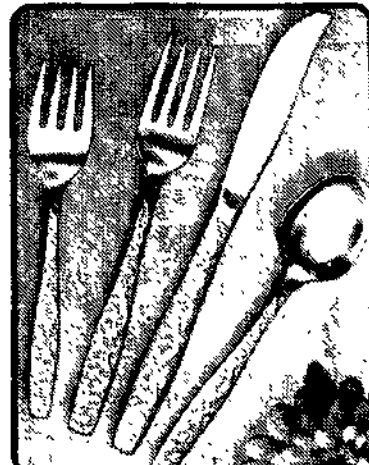

"We're going to have to take a wait-and-see attitude," Mrs. Rentdorff said. "I know there's going to be mistakes made, but this time I think it will all work out."

RIDGE SCHOOL students Suzy Best and Billy Mueller hold an impromptu puppet show in their deaf education class. Parents said their deaf children are much happier since they were moved from the deaf program at Kensington School, Arlington Heights.

East Coast Teamsters strike; truckers here roll on

by LEA TONKIN

Teamster negotiators late Wednesday told local union leaders to negotiate their own contracts or "shut 'em down by midnight."

In a move that could sidestep the Ford Administration's invitation for an 80-day cooling-off period under the Taft Hartley Act, the union negotiators also offered national trucking industry bargainers an interim three-year pact as the midnight deadline approached.

By 11 p.m. trucking industry negotiators had not reached a decision on the teamsters' interim offer.

BUT A WALKOUT in the Chicago area apparently was averted about 11 p.m. when local union leaders said Chicago area Teamsters would try to reach interim agreements with local employers.

Louis Peick, representing Chicago Local 705, said area Teamsters leaders have been told to line up agreements with local employers.

Detroit, New York and Ohio Teamsters walked off their jobs at 11 p.m. Chicago time.

Edward Feener, an official for independent union drivers not affiliated with the Teamsters, said a walk-out probably will not take place in the Chicago area today.

The proposed offer calls for a total of $1.75 in wage hikes during the next three years; three cents a mile allowances increase; and $17-a-week hike in health, welfare and pension contributions.

THE TAKE-IT-OR-LEAVE-IT deal offered the Trucking Employers Inc. was simple: Sign the contract or face a strike at 12:01 a.m. today. Pickets were scheduled to be up early this morning if the interim pact was not signed.

The trucking industry's original offer was to boost the $7.18 to $7.33 hourly truckers' wage 85 cents during the next three years. In addition, over-the-road truckers were offered a two-cents hike to the present 18-cent-a-mile allowance limit during the next three years.

The employers also originally offered an $11-a-week increase in the current $44-a-week contribution to the health, welfare and pension fund.

Labor Sec. W. J. Usery was sitting in on marathon negotiating sessions between the Teamsters and the trucking industry at the Arlington Park Hilton Hotel in Arlington Heights.

HIGH HOPES FOR a settlement covering more than 400,000 drivers and warehousemen across the country faded as the time grew shorter.

A Teamsters' strike — the first nationwide walkout by the giant union yet — could have a crippling effect on many segments of the nation's sputtering economy. The Teamsters involved haul 60 per cent of the nation's manufactured goods.

Even if a last-minute agreement were reached, there were calls for wildcat walkouts.

Teamster officials from Pennsylvania and Oklahoma said locals were being advised throughout the nation to seek a local settlement with their individual employers outside the master agreement. Teamsters terms were to remain intact.

THE OKLAHOMA OFFICIAL said he was instructing (Continued on Page 15)

Money mayhem statewide dilemma

A Herald staff report

Northwest suburban communities and municipalities throughout Illinois are facing hard times, a situation which is affecting everything from street sweeping to possible increases in property taxes.

Locally, governmental leaders are tightening the belt on spending — eliminating some programs, rejecting requests for personnel increases and limiting wage increases to about 6 per cent, in most cases.

It is not a crisis, but it is becoming increasingly difficult for revenue to keep up with the spiraling costs of operations, finance directors say.

The common objective in the new fiscal year is to provide existing services without an increase in costs. Financial worry and penny-pinching is evident throughout the state.

"WE'RE JUST having a hell of a time keeping up," said Peoria Assistant City Mgr. A. Fred Timmerman.

"For example, we buy something like 500,000 gallons of gasoline a year. It was 20 to 22 cents a gallon several years ago (without tax). Now we're paying 40 to 42 cents a gallon."

The result in Peoria, Timmerman said, will be a property tax rate increase of 14 or 14½ cents per $100 of assessed valuation this year, which will allow the town's $19 million budget to be balanced. It also will allow a 7 per cent pay hike for the city's 800 employees.

The situation is worse in towns that have been hit hard by unemployment because when people are out of work they buy fewer goods and their communities get less sales tax.

MOST NORTHWEST suburban communities have managed to balance their books this year, but Mount Prospect is facing a deficit of $400,000 and Elk Grove Village has been forced to make some large cuts in spending since last October when a deficit of $270,000 was projected.

Mount Prospect Village Pres. Robert D. Teichert Wednesday said it is "not a panic situation."

"The problem is more severe in the minds of the people than it is in fact," he said.

Tuesday night, the Mount Prospect Village Board voted to impose on residents a $4 per month direct garbage collection charge. It is hoped the new (Continued on Page 10)

Coles doubts private streets annex

Wheeling Trustee John C. Cole said he doesn't see "any way the village will agree to annex" for maintenance purposes all the private streets in townhouse and condominium developments.

Cole and other village trustees met Tuesday with representatives of condominium and townhouse associations to discuss a request that the village take over upkeep of privately-owned streets in developments.

Cole said village officials will have to study the request "on an individual street basis."

"IF YOU'RE JUST coming in and saying you want all the streets dedicated, then we're just wasting each other's time. That's wishful thinking and daydreaming," Cole said.

William Laytin, a representative of Lakeside Villas, said condominium owners are "frightened to death our streets will cave in."

"We want to sit down and hammer out some type of solution that will benefit us and the village. If we have to pay for it, we're not adverse to that," he said.

Larry Melnick, spokesman for the Wheeling Area Condominium Council, said the problem involves some 4,000 families in the village.

"We want to know where to go from here. We want the streets dedicated. If it takes an assessment, let us know," he said.

by JILL BETTNER

Better taste the white stuff in the sugar bowl before dumping a big spoonful in your morning coffee. Think twice about going through a week's worth of trash to find that lottery ticket a friend says is worth $1 million. In fact, just to be safe, don't believe half of what anybody tells you all day today.

It's April Fool's Day, beloved holiday of tricksters and practical jokers everywhere and the bane of all the gullible, trusting souls who inevitably become their victims.

Nobody is quite sure how April Fool's Day got started, but although the actual origins of the holiday are obscure, there are several interesting theories.

SOME SAY IT IS derived from ancient New Year festivals celebrating the vernal equinox and the coming of spring — a time when even the capricious weather plays tricks.

In most versions, France gets the credit (or the blame, depending on how you feel about it) for designating April 1 as "All Fools Day."

Apparently, the day grew out of the confusion that was created when France adopted the Gregorian calendar in 1582. Up until that time, the New Year — traditionally a time for gift-giving and visiting friends — had ended April 1. The Gregorian calendar, however, moved the holiday back to its current date, Jan. 1.

A few conservative Frenchmen, so the story goes, refused to accept the new date. Others, who were just more forgetful that stubborn, kept showing up at friends' houses at the wrong time by mistake. Anyway, they were all laughed at and called (guess what) April Fools.

SOME TRIVIA experts trace the beginnings of the holiday back to Biblical times, connecting it to an incident

in the story of Noah and the Ark. This version says the practice of sending friends on fool's errands started when Noah, wrongly thinking the flood had subsided, sent a dove out from the Ark on a futile search for land.

Another religious explanation associates the origin of fool's errands with tricks played on Christ by his foes to mock Him.

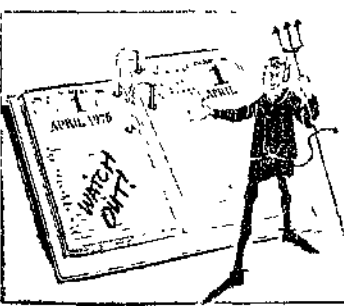

Still another version has its roots in Medieval times. According to this story, the holiday can be traced to a time when insane asylum patients were released for a few hours each year on the first day of April. Cruel crowds reportedly goaded the patients into doing things that were impossible for them and then laughed while the poor patients struggled.

Whatever the real story is, April Fool's Day has evolved into a day of impostors and absurdity relished by pranksters around the world.

In Scotland, the first of April is the time for "hunting the gowk" or cuckoo, the symbol of fools throughout Europe generally.

A Frenchman tricked by a friend is called a Poisson d'Avril or April Fish, meaning one who has been easily caught in an April Fool's Day joke. The day is also popular in Italy, Spain, Portugal, Sweden, Germany and Norway. The last two countries celebrate with hilarity on the last day as well as the first day of April.

Of all the customs associated with April Fool's Day, Mexico has one of the most unusual. South of the border, the day for fooling is Dec. 23. On that date, anyone clever enough to trick a friend into lending him one of his possessions doesn't have to give it back.

Teachers to mull 'no pact-no work'

by PAM BIGFORD
Elementary school teachers who are members of the North Suburban Unified Bargaining Council (NSUBC) will meet Wednesday to complete a platform for teacher contract bargaining which may include teachers refusing to begin school in September if their contracts have not been settled.

The bargaining coalition, associated with the statewide Illinois Education Assoc., represents about 2,400 teachers in 15 north suburban districts.

Northwest suburban affiliates include unions in Prospect Heights Dist. 23, River Trails Dist. 26, Mount Prospect Dist. 57, Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 and the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization. The Wheeling-Buffer Grove Dist. 21 union will consider membership Friday.

CLAIRE HYMAN, NSUBC chairman, said the members will vote on a proposition of "no contract — no work," meaning that teachers whose contracts are not settled by September would refuse to begin the school year until they have a contract.

Teachers beginning the school year without a contract has not been uncommon in the Northwest suburbs, though bargaining usually begins in February or March.

Of the member districts, Dist. 23 settled in October; Dist. 26 signed its contract in December; Dist. 57 settled in September after school began; and Dist. 59 reached an 11th-hour agreement the day before school started. NSUBC is bargaining for its first contract this year. Dist. 21 did not settle until after school began in September.

Members will vote on other platform positions including negotiated procedures for reducing staff that provide seniority for tenure teachers, due process for non-tenure teachers and adequate rehiring procedure; cost-of-living raises;

Parity, or raising elementary teachers' pay to the level of high school teachers; a master contract in every district; a negotiated early retirement plan; and negotiating only one-year contracts with a common expiration date for all NSUBC members.

METHODS FOR REDUCING teaching staffs have been of particular concern to teachers this year because of declining enrollment and grim financial pictures.

Ms. Hyman said part of the "no contract — no work" proposal is that all unions that plan to go on strike should go together and that none would return to work until they all do.

However, the member unions will not automatically be committed to striking if their contracts are not signed by the first day of school, Ms. Hyman said. "Each local will make that decision on its own, but the point is that if they do decide to strike, they will all go together," she said.

Ms. Hyman said if the goals are passed, the member unions will be committed to working toward them. If they do not meet all the goals, they will have to get authorization from the NSUBC before they can sign their contracts.

All of the Northwest suburban member districts have contracts which expire this year and will be negotiating for next year. Dist. 21 has a two-year contract.

THE BARGAINING coalition was formed last spring to set collective bargaining goals for the member unions and to research financial backgrounds of school districts.

The coalition will consider an "action program" for the coming year, including renewed investigation into property tax underassessments, examining school district consolidation, and improving teacher fringe benefits.

Last year the coalition charged that more than $50 million in underassessments of 18 commercial properties in the northern suburbs were robbing schools of $4 million in tax revenue. Ms. Hyman said County Tax Assessor Thomas Tully refused to meet with the coalition.

tracting for street maintenance services for the condominium associations.

"The streets could remain as private drives and we still could maintain them. If we dedicate them, we lose tax money because they're no longer on the tax rolls," he said.

Representatives of the homeowners' associations met with the board in December to ask the village to assume ownership of the private streets in the developments. Melnick said condominium owners are not getting their fair share of the tax dollar since "we're not getting the services every other citizen is getting, and we're not paying any less taxes."

WHEELING VILLAGE officials said the cost of assuming ownership of the private drives would be prohibitive. They said many of the streets are narrower than other village roads and would require special equipment for snow removal and other routine upkeep measures.

Melnick said the condominium associations are willing to take care of snow removal, but are concerned about street repairs.

Cole asked the condominium representatives to submit proposals for street maintenance in their developments. The board will meet again with the association representatives later this month.

Gettin' hitched—April Fool style

by DIANE MERMIGAS

It was hard to tell who was fooling whom Tuesday afternoon.

The blushing bride was a man who stood six feet tall in a well-padded lace gown, holding a bouquet of onions, garlic, carrots and other assorted vegetables.

The groom was a petite woman dressed in black tails and top hat with an uncanny resemblance to Harpo Marx.

About 50 senior citizens, dressed in their Sunday best, watched attentively from metal folding chairs while the "odd couple" exchanged rare vows of marriage, surrounded by an even stranger looking wedding party.

THE SENIOR citizens thought it would be funny to have the men and women exchange their traditional roles in the wedding party, especially with April Fool's Day around the corner.

Actually, it was a mock wedding ceremony staged by members of the River Trails Park District Senior Citizens Club to honor the 50th wedding anniversary of Edward and Josephine Watrin of Mount Prospect.

The "maid of honor" stood 6 feet 5 inches tall, and was dressed in a ribbon-trimmed gown and floppy-brimmed hat of flowers. Gaudy earrings dangled from the ears of most of the "bridesmaids," whose undershirts peaked out from their lace gowns.

The ushers wore fake mustaches, and a flower girl, dressed in a dotted top and ballet skirt, threw fake flower petals on the audience.

DO YOU PROMISE "to rub his back when he complains and bring him a little schnapps when gets home?" the make-believe minister asked.

"I'm sure you believed that it's cheaper for two to live than one, but on that you've been deceived . . . If you think you can live on love alone, forget it," the minister continued.

Then he pronounced them "louse" and "spouse."

Although the scene was a comical one, the mock wedding prompted some real tears of joy.

The couple brushed tears from their eyes as the gathering of seniors indulged in coffee, lively conversation and, of course, some wedding cake.

"WE NEVER EXPECTED this. We have such wonderful friends to do this for us. This is really love and friendship," said Mrs. Watrin.

The couple was surprised by their friends when they entered the park district community center, 1313 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect, for what would have been a weekly meeting of the group.

Instead, the hall was decorated like a church, with flowers and a white runner down the main aisle. A table in the back of the room was heavy with gifts and cards for the occasion, and a gold money tree as a token of best wishes.

"I didn't know what to think when we came in. I was so surprised. It was just like an April Fool's Day joke," said Watrin, who worked for 28 years in the shipyards of Chicago.

"This is better than our first wedding. My knees are still shaking. I'm nervous as a new bride," Mrs. Watrin said. The room was filled with laughter and old friends remembering the days when they, too, were brides and grooms, and younger.

"ISN'T THIS THE most wonderful wedding you've ever been to?" said Marcelle LeClere, Arlington Heights, the flower girl, who sewed most of the wedding party outfits.

"We love to do these kinds of things. It keeps us young and helps us forget the pain," she said.

And Mrs. Watrin? Well, she was busy recalling the first days of the whirlwind relationship with her husband. They met in a Chicago ballroom and were married seven weeks later.

They still enjoy dancing together and they agree that it seems like only yesterday when they met.

"I don't feel older, but I look at Ed and then look at myself in the mirror and I realize we are older. Our feelings haven't changed and neither has our spirit," she said.

A walk down the aisle for the "odd couple."

At the altar.

A laughing guest.

by PAM BIGFORD

Four pairs of hands answer a teacher's question in sign language. Four sets of lips call out the accompanying word. Four deaf children learn a little more about getting along in a hearing world.

The four are in a 13-student deaf education program sponsored by the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization at Kensington School, 201 S. Evanston, Arlington Heights.

A few miles away in Ridge School, 650 Ridge Ave., Elk Grove Village, six other deaf children are equally busy, working just as hard toward the same goals, supervised by the same organization, learning the same subjects.

THE RIDGE DEAF children were classmates of those in Kensington until this year. The six were moved to a newly created program in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 after a three-month controversy over serious inadequacies in the NSSEO program.

Both schools are working to create programs to solve these problems.

At Kensington, a new speech development teacher and principal have been hired. A program to teach the hearing children sign language has been expanded.

Instead of the deaf children being segregated at lunch and recess, they are encouraged to join the other children. Fifth graders are allowed to be patrol guards just like the hearing fifth graders.

A GROUP HAS BEEN started so that parents of deaf children can discuss their common problems. The Kensington PTA included the parent group in their activities.

"The speech development program has really improved," said parent Carol Stark, echoing other parents. "I can tell the difference in my son. He's getting about 3½ hours of speech development a week, where last year he was getting about 20 minutes."

Many parents blamed the poor social integration of the children on a lack of leadership from the former administration. The new principal, Richard Bennett, received nothing but praise from parents.

"The school has a real leader now. He's in the kids' classroom often, and is even taking a sign language class," said parent Cindy Rentdorff.

MOST PARENTS said they are very pleased with the acceptance of their children this year by the hearing students. Other parents said there is progress only because there was nowhere to go but up.

"The attitude of the whole school has improved," said parent Robert Forti. "I'll never be satisfied with the program — it can always be better — but I'm satisfied that they are making progress."

Lorraine Kelly teaches sign language before school to 88 hearing children who come early because they want to learn it.

"There's a natural split between the hearing and the deaf children because they don't know how to communicate with each other," Mrs. Kelly said. "Now that the hearing kids have started taking sign language, I've noticed little groups of them talking and laughing with the deaf children."

OTHER PARENTS said the Kensington program has improved in some ways, but serious problems remain.

Parents' revelations sparked split

The deaf education program sponsored by the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization (NSSEO) split last summer after parents exposed serious inadequacies in the way it was operated and demanded it be removed from Arlington Heights Dist. 25.

Parents of 12 of the 19 children in the program housed in Kensington School in Arlington Heights signed a petition last May to have the program removed.

Charges levied by parents included: Inadequate speech development program; placement of emotionally disturbed children in deaf classes; lack of correlation between the elementary and junior high programs and a lack of social integration of the deaf at Kensington.

NSSEO Director Edward McDonald said some of the parents' complaints were valid.

McDonald recommended the program remain at Kensington because he said that changing the program's location would not solve its problems.

When the NSSEO board voted to keep the program at Kensington, the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education decided to offer an alternative deaf education program for the six deaf children within its boundaries.

Irene Flagg said her son never even mentions his old friends anymore.

"Now he plays more with the kids in the neighborhood than he did before," Mrs. Flagg said. "Last year he was apprehensive about playing with the hearing kids because he hadn't had any exposure to them for two years. I feel like his whole life has changed."

Most of the Ridge parents remain bitter toward the Kensington program and insist their children will not go back to Kensington if the programs are ever reunited.

"I WOULD SEND my daughter to a regular school with an interpreter," rather than send her to Kensington, Mrs. Best said.

NSSEO Director Edward McDonald said that he does not believe Dist. 59 will be able to sustain a deaf education program after the five 10-year-olds now in the class move on to junior high.

"The prevalence of deaf children in that area (Dist. 59) now is extremely high," McDonald said. He noted that most of the children were born during the time when many pregnant women had German measles.

"The parents in Dist. 59 had legitimate concerns," McDonald said. "I asked them to hear with us and that we would straighten things out. We have kept our promise and I hope they can see that."

McDonald said if the deaf students were brought back together NSSEO would be able to provide a "more diversified program."

THE RIDGE PARENTS said they never intended to split the program — they wanted the entire class removed from Kensington. But even though the program split, parents from both schools say their action focused attention on the program's inadequacies.

"It was very beneficial that the parents' group was so vocal," Mrs. Rentdorff said. "You don't get a second chance to give our kids language development and self-confidence."

"You don't have to worry about hearing kids who automatically get the best education a district can provide. But for my son, who really needs these extra things, they weren't there," she said.

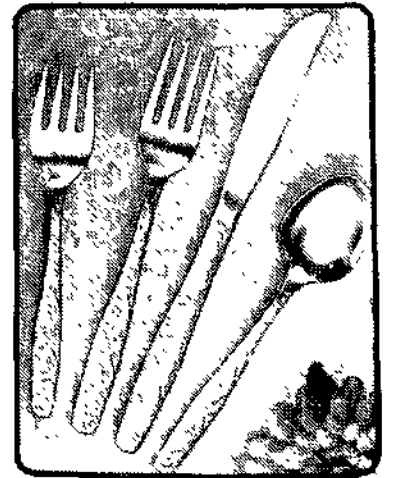

"We're going to have to take a wait-and-see attitude," Mrs. Rentdorff said. "I know there's going to be mistakes made, but this time I think it will all work out."

RIDGE SCHOOL students Suzy Best and Billy Mueller hold an impromptu puppet show in their deaf education class. Parents said their deaf children are much happier since they were moved from the deaf program at Kensington School, Arlington Heights.

Chicago spared in nationwide Teamsters' strike

by LEA TONKIN

The Chicago area apparently was spared a local Teamsters' strike today as truckers in Eastern cities began to pull their rigs off the road, starting the first nationwide Teamsters strike in history.

There were indications, however, that many drivers would continue to work under temporary agreements, including truckers in the Chicago area.

Louis Peick, representing Chicago Teamsters Local 705, said Chicago-area leaders have been told to line up agreements with local employers. Another Chicago union official said he expected 80 per cent of the 40,000 area truckers to work under interim agreements.

A Teamsters official said drivers in Detroit, New York, and Columbus, Ohio, went on strike at 12:01 a.m., Eastern time. There are 400,000 Teamsters affected by the negotiations.

As the midnight deadline approached, national union leaders told local union officials to negotiate their own contracts or "shut 'em down at midnight."

The union negotiators also offered the trucking industry an interim three-year contract offer.

The proposed offer calls for a total of $1.75 in wage hikes during the next three years; three cents a mile allowances increase; and $17-a-week hike in health, welfare and pension contributions.

THE TAKE-IT-OR-LEAVE-IT deal offered the Trucking Employers Inc. was simple: Sign the contract or face a strike at 12:01 a.m. today. Pickets were scheduled to be up early this morning if the interim pact was not signed.

The trucking industry's original offer was to boost the $7.18 to $7.33 hourly truckers' wage 85 cents during the next three years. In addition, over-the-road truckers were offered a two-cents hike to the present 18-cent-a-mile allowance limit during the next three years.

The employers also originally offered an $11-a-week increase in the current $44-a-week contribution to the health, welfare and pension fund.

Labor Sec. W. J. Usery was sitting in on marathon negotiating sessions between the Teamsters and the trucking industry at the Arlington Park Hilton Hotel in Arlington Heights.

HIGH HOPES FOR a settlement covering more than 400,000 drivers and warehousemen across the country faded as the time grew shorter.

A Teamsters' strike — the first nationwide walkout by the giant union yet — could have a crippling effect on many segments of the nation's sputtering economy. The Teamsters involved haul 60 per cent of the nation's manufactured goods.

Even if a last-minute agreement were reached, there were calls for wildcat walkouts.

Teamster officials from Pennsylvania and Oklahoma said locals were being advised throughout the nation to seek a local settlement with their individual employers outside the master agreement. Teamsters terms were to remain intact.

THE OKLAHOMA OFFICIAL said he was instructing (Continued on Page 15)

Communities scrambling for money

A Herald staff report

Northwest suburban communities and municipalities throughout Illinois are facing hard times, a situation which is affecting everything from street sweeping to possible increases in property taxes.

Locally, governmental leaders are tightening the belt on spending — eliminating some programs, rejecting requests for personnel increases and limiting wage increases to about 6 per cent, in most cases.

It is not a crisis, but it is becoming increasingly difficult for revenue to keep up with the spiraling costs of operations, finance directors say.

The common objective in the new fiscal year is to provide existing services without an increase in costs. Financial worry and penny-pinching is evident throughout the state.

"WE'RE JUST having a hell of a time keeping up," said Peoria Assistant City Manager Fred Timmerman.

"For example, we buy something like 500,000 gallons of gasoline a year. It was 20 to 22 cents a gallon several years ago (without tax). Now we're paying 40 to 42 cents a gallon."

The result in Peoria, Timmerman

said, will be a property tax rate increase of 14 or 14½ cents per $100 of assessed valuation this year, which will allow the town's $19 million budget to be balanced. It also will allow a 7 per cent pay hike for the city's 800 employees.

The situation is worse in towns that have been hit hard by unemployment because when people are out of work they buy fewer goods and their communities get less sales tax.

MOST NORTHWEST suburban communities have managed to balance their books this year, but Mount Prospect is facing a deficit of $400,000 and Elk Grove Village has been forced to make some large cuts in spending since last October when a deficit of $270,000 was projected.

Mount Prospect Village Pres. Robert D. Teichert Wednesday said it is "not a panic situation."

"The problem is more severe in the minds of the people than it is in fact," he said.

THE MEAN OLD WITCH, Winifred Sanderson, gives Hansel, Doris Quick, Gretel, Carolyn Papai; and Holly Smith, the sandman, a scare. The famous fairy tale was performed by the Lyric Opera Guild Sunday at the Kingswood Methodist Church, Buffalo Grove.

Public works shift going smoothly

Aside from coping with a new phone system that flashes but doesn't ring, the Buffalo Grove Public Works Dept. is making a smooth transition from its former headquarters in the basement of the village hall to the new public service center across the street.

Charles McCoy, public works director, said the department started moving in to the center at Raupp Boulevard and Lake Cook Road Monday and will complete the switch by the end of the week. Dedication of the $332,000 center isn't scheduled until July, but despite "a few minor additions" all construction has been completed, he said.

Pavement is still scheduled to be put in at a cost of $50,000, he said.

THE PUBLIC WORKS department will use the first floor of the building, with the engineering, building and inspection departments scheduled to move into the second floor sometime next year. The basement will be occupied by the buildings and grounds department and a possible pistol range for use by the police department, McCoy said.

The new service center was built to alleviate "a real space problem," McCoy said. The department's 41 vehicles and other equipment had been stored outdoors at the park district building, and "a lot of the vehicles were going to rot," he said.

The move also will allow the department to cut costs by buying equipment and supplies in bulk amounts since they now have the storage space to do so, he said.

The new service center was approved about two years ago, and construction began in May 1975. The center was paid for through federal revenue-sharing funds and a bank loan of $330,000, which the village will repay through future revenue-sharing funds, McCoy said.

April Fool pranks perpetuate an historic tradition

by JILL BETTNER

Better taste the white stuff in the sugar bowl before dumping a big spoonful in your morning coffee. Think twice about going through a week's worth of trash to find that lottery ticket a friend says is worth $1 million. In fact, just to be safe, don't believe half of what anybody tells you all day today.

It's April Fool's Day, beloved holiday of tricksters and practical jokers everywhere and the bane of all the gullible, trusting souls who inevitably become their victims.

Nobody is quite sure how April Fool's Day got started, but although the actual origins of the holiday are obscure, there are several interesting theories.

SOME SAY IT IS derived from ancient New Year festivals celebrating the vernal equinox and the coming of spring — a time when even the capricious weather plays tricks.

In most versions, France gets the credit (or the blame, depending on how you feel about it) for designating April 1 as "All Fools Day."

Apparently, the day grew out of the confusion that was created when France adopted the Gregorian calendar in 1582. Up until that time, the New Year — traditionally a time for gift-giving and visiting friends — had ended April 1. The Gregorian calendar, however, moved the holiday back to its current date, Jan. 1.

A few conservative Frenchmen, so the story goes, refused to accept the new date. Others, who were just more forgetful that stubborn, kept showing up at friends' houses at the wrong time by mistake. Anyway, they were all laughed at and called (guess what) April Fools.

SOME TRIVIA experts trace the beginnings of the holiday back to Biblical times, connecting it to an incident

in the story of Noah and the Ark. This version says the practice of sending friends on fool's errands started when Noah, wrongly thinking the flood had subsided, sent a dove out from the Ark on a futile search for land.

Another religious explanation associates the origin of fool's errands with tricks played on Christ by his foes to mock Him.

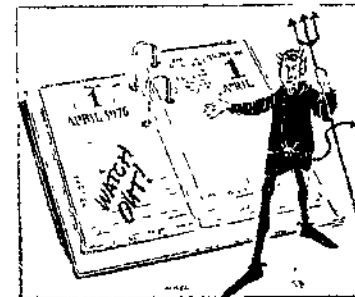

Still another version has its roots in Medieval times. According to this story, the holiday can be traced to a time when insane asylum patients were released for a few hours each year on the first day of April. Cruel crowds reportedly goaded the patients into doing things that were impossible for them and then laughed while the poor patients struggled.

Whatever the real story is, April Fool's Day has evolved into a day of impostors and absurdity relished by pranksters around the world.

In Scotland, the first of April is the time for "hunting the gowk" or cuckoo, the symbol of fools throughout Europe generally.

A Frenchman tricked by a friend is called a Poisson d'Avril or April Fish, meaning one who has been easily caught in an April Fool's Day joke. The day is also popular in Italy, Spain, Portugal, Sweden, Germany and Norway. The last two countries celebrate with hilarity on the last day as well as the first day of April.

Of all the customs associated with April Fool's Day, Mexico has one of the most unusual. South of the border, the day for fooling is Dec. 28. On that date, anyone clever enough to trick a friend into lending him one of his possessions doesn't have to give it back.

Teachers to mull 'no pact-no work'

by PAM BIGFORD

Elementary school teachers who are members of the North Suburban Unified Bargaining Council (NSUBC) will meet Wednesday to complete a platform for teacher contract bargaining which may include teachers refusing to begin school in September if their contracts have not been settled.

The bargaining coalition, associated with the statewide Illinois Education Assoc., represents about 2,400 teachers in 15 north suburban districts.

Northwest suburban affiliates include unions in Prospect Heights Dist. 23, River Trails Dist. 26, Mount Prospect Dist. 57, Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 and the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization. The Wheeling-Buffer Grove Dist. 21 union will consider membership Friday.

CLAIRE HYMAN, NSUBC chairman, said the members will vote on a proposition of "no contract - no work," meaning that teachers whose contracts are not settled by September would refuse to begin the school year until they have a contract.

Teachers beginning the school year without a contract has not been uncommon in the Northwest suburbs, though bargaining usually begins in February or March.

Of the member districts, Dist. 23 settled in October; Dist. 26 signed its contract in December; Dist. 57 settled in September after school began; and Dist. 59 reached an 11th-hour agreement the day before school started. NSUBC is bargaining for its first contract this year. Dist. 21 did not settle until after school began in September.

Members will vote on other platform positions including negotiated procedures for reducing staff that provide seniority for tenure teachers, due process for non-tenure teachers and adequate rehiring procedure; cost-of-living raises;

Parity, or raising elementary teachers' pay to the level of high school teachers; a master contract in every district; a negotiated early retirement plan; and negotiating only one-year contracts with a common expiration date for all NSUBC members.

METHODS FOR REDUCING teaching staffs have been of particular concern to teachers this year because of declining enrollment and grim financial pictures.

Ms. Hyman said part of the "no contract - no work" proposal is that all unions that plan to go on strike should go together and that none would return to work until they all do.

However, the member unions will not automatically be committed to striking if their contracts are not signed by the first day of school, Ms. Hyman said. "Each local will make that decision on its own, but the point is that if they do decide to strike, they will all go together," she said.

Ms. Hyman said if the goals are passed, the member unions will be committed to working toward them. If they do not meet all the goals, they will have to get authorization from the NSUBC before they can sign their contracts.

All of the Northwest suburban member districts have contracts which expire this year and will be negotiating for next year. Dist. 21 has a two-year contract.

THE BARGAINING coalition was formed last spring to set collective bargaining goals for the member unions and to research financial backgrounds of school districts.

The coalition will consider an "action program" for the coming year, including renewed investigation into property tax underassessments, examining school district consolidation, and improving teacher fringe benefits.

Last year the coalition charged that more than $50 million in under assessments of 18 commercial properties in the northern suburbs were robbing schools of $4 million in tax revenue. Ms. Hyman said County Tax Assessor Thomas Tully refused to meet with the coalition.

Gettin' hitched—April Fool style

by DIANE MERMIGAS

It was hard to tell who was fooling whom Tuesday afternoon.

The blushing bride was a man who stood six feet tall in a well-padded lace gown, holding a bouquet of onions, garlic carrots and other assorted vegetables.

The groom was a petite woman dressed in black tails and top hat with an uncanny resemblance to Harpo Marx.

About 50 senior citizens, dressed in their Sunday best, watched attentively from metal folding chairs while the "odd couple" exchanged rare vows of marriage, surrounded by an even stranger looking wedding party.

THE SENIOR citizens thought it would be funny to have the men and women exchange their traditional roles in the wedding party, especially with April Fool's Day around the corner.

Actually, it was a mock wedding ceremony staged by members of the River Trails Park District Senior Citizens Club to honor the 50th wedding anniversary of Edward and Josephine Watrin of Mount Prospect.

The "maid of honor" stood 6 feet 5 inches tall, and was dressed in a ribbon-trimmed gown and floppy-brimmed hat of flowers. Gaudy earrings dangled from the ears of most of the "bridesmaids," whose undershirts peaked out from their lace gowns.

The ushers wore fake mustaches, and a flower girl, dressed in a dotted top and ballet skirt, threw fake flower petals on the audience.

DO YOU PROMISE "to rub his back when he complains and bring him a little schnapps when gets home?" the make-believe minister asked.

"I'm sure you believed that it's cheaper for two to live than one, but on that you've been deceived . . . if you think you can live on love alone, forget it," the minister continued.

Then he pronounced them "louse" and "spouse."

Although the scene was a comical one, the mock wedding prompted some real tears of joy.

The couple brushed tears from their eyes as the gathering of seniors indulged in coffee, lively conversation and, of course, some wedding cake.

"WE NEVER EXPECTED this. We have such wonderful friends to do this for us. This is really love and friendship," said Mrs. Watrin.

The couple was surprised by their friends when they entered the park district community center, 1313 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect, for what would have been a weekly meeting of the group.

Instead, the hall was decorated like a church, with flowers and a white runner down the main aisle. A table in the back of the room was heavy with gifts and cards for the occasion, and a gold money tree as a token of best wishes.

"I didn't know what to think when we came in. I was so surprised. It was just like an April Fool's Day joke," said Watrin, who worked for 28 years in the shipyards of Chicago.

"This is better than our first wedding. My knees are still shaking. I'm nervous as a new bride," Mrs. Watrin said. The room was filled with laughter and old friends remembering the days when they, too, were brides and grooms.

"ISN'T THIS THE most wonderful wedding you've ever been to?" said Marcelle LeClerc, Arlington Heights, the flower girl, who sewed most of the wedding party outfits.

"We love to do these kinds of things. It keeps us young and helps us forget the pain," she said.

And Mrs. Watrin? Well, she was busy recalling the first days of the whirlwind relationship with her husband. They met in a Chicago ballroom and were married seven weeks later.

They still enjoy dancing together and they agree that it seems like only yesterday when they met.

"I don't feel older, but I look at Ed and then look at myself in the mirror and I realize we are older. Our feelings haven't changed and neither has our spirit," she said.

A walk down the aisle for the "odd couple."

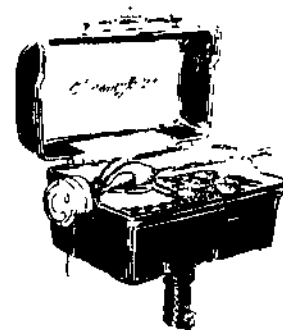

At the altar.

A laughing guest.

"I'M GOING TO TRY to be the best damned firefighter there is," Ron Antor, 21, says of his future goals in life. Antor, a Hoffman Estates fireman, is recuperating from burns suffered in a blaze at the Dennis Schroeder house Jan. 17. He remained in intensive care 10 weeks.

Burned in fire, fireman vows to return to his job

by DANN GIRE

Ron Antor suffered first, second, and third degree burns on more than 27 per cent of his body Jan. 17. The most severe burns were on his neck, arms and legs. The tops of his ears were burned off.

Still, he has one thought on his mind: To get out of Northwest Community Hospital and continue his career in the Hoffman Estates Fire Dept.

"I'm going to be the best damned firefighter there is. And also lead a good family life. Those are really the only two things I want to do," he says, moving his head slowly, minimizing the movement in his blistered neck.

THE 21-YEAR-OLD ANTOR and two comrades were fighting a blaze at the Dennis Schroeder residence Jan. 17 when they were caught in a "backlash." Walls, ceiling and floor all ignited simultaneously.

"I don't really remember everything that happened," he said. "My mind has blanked out a few moments of what went on. After I came here, they said I talked about seeing a bright orange glow coming up the stairs and across the room. But I don't remember it."

Antor's injuries were not severe enough to destroy his career, although he'll be assigned to something less than battling blazes upon his return to the service.

"I may train to become an arson photographer," he says. "I may start doing other things, though. I just don't know yet. Whatever it is, I'll be there a while."

Last week, Antor underwent skin grafts on his burned legs, where flames had literally killed the skin.

"MY LEGS LOOK like checkerboards," he says.

Antor is able to move about in a wheelchair this week. He hopes to be walking by June 19, his wedding day. But if that doesn't happen, it won't deter him.

"I'm going down the aisle even if it's in a wheelchair," Antor says. "But I doubt if that will happen. I fully expect to be walking by then."

Antor's family and fiancée "look it pretty good" when he was injured, he said.

"My fiancée (Sue Marie Jurs) stood up extremely well," he says, looking at her picture posted on the end of his bed. "She was a little on the shaky side, but she was able to come to grips with it."

RON AND SUE MARIE had talked about the possibility of injuries, a factor he says helped ease the shock of the accident.

"I've always been of the opinion that it takes a special type of woman to marry a cop or fireman because of the hazards and risks involved. She knew them and she was able to cope with it," Antor says.

Sue Marie comes to visit her fiancé almost every night, but the many visitors that came to see Antor soon after his accident are gone.

"People tend to forget," he says. "Now I'm just another person recuperating in the hospital. The guys (at the fire department) come in to visit me regularly, but I don't get many visitors other than that."

Antor spends his time watching television, listening to his fire department radio scanning unit (to keep up with the exploits of his colleagues), and is currently reading a book, "20,000 Alarms," about the real life struggles of a big-city firefighter.

Antor, from Elk Grove Village, celebrated his first year with the fire department Feb. 3. He expects to be out of the hospital within a month.

"I'll probably change my hair style to come down over my ears and just forget about them," he said. "All I really want to do right now is get back on the job."

For now Antor lies patiently waiting in Room 320 behind a sign on his door that reads: "If I'm asleep, please wake me up."

Hurricane's effects still linger

Honduras hospitals need supplies

by JOE SWICKARD

It has been 18 months since Hurricane Fifi ripped across Honduras, killing thousands and leaving thousands injured or homeless. But the passing of time has not healed the wounds.

"It's really bad," said Maria McGowan. "There are no jobs. How can I tell you? It's really bad."

Mrs. McGowan, 1014 E. Crab Tree Dr., Arlington Heights, found more suffering when she returned to her native land in February.

"There were two hospitals in the capital city (Tegucigalpa) where there was not one wheelchair. The people — young and old — have to stay in bed; they cannot get out into the sun," Mrs. McGowan said.

THE HOSPITALS, Perpetuo Socorro and SOS Village, are government operated hospitals for long-term patients. In a country the size of Pennsylvania that sustained an estimated $500 million in damages from the hurricane, "They just don't have the money for the wheelchairs," Mrs. McGowan said.

She now is, with the authorization of Honduran consulate in Chicago, seeking donations of wheelchairs for the two hospitals.

"They can be new or old. Even if they are damaged or missing wheels we can take them and fix them," Mrs. McGowan said.

Other related items, such as crutches, canes and braces, are needed, she said.

"As soon as we get enough, I will be going down personally to deliver them. After I saw how things were in February, I decided I would do whatever I could to help them from here," she said.

MRS. MCGOWAN saw the plight of the ill during one of her continuing private relief trips to the Central American republic.

When Hurricane Fifi struck, Mrs. McGowan responded by collecting tons of food and clothing for the victims. The donations, which began around the neighborhood, eventually came from the entire Chicago area.

Her efforts did not stop there. She has continued to supply direct relief to the suffering in Central America. When earthquakes and tropical storms hit other countries of the area, goods she collected went to those victims.

The need does not stop at national borders, she said, so neither should the aid.

But the most poignant need now, she said, are the invalids unable to move from their beds because of the lack of the wheel chairs.

"Even one wheelchair would help. They can take turns using it," she said.

Mrs. McGowan said the oldest resident of the facilities, however, a woman of 103, would be the recipient.

Persons wanting to donate wheelchairs or other medical items should contact Mrs. McGowan at 394-9709.

East Coast Teamsters strike; truckers here roll on

by LEA TONKIN

Teamster negotiators late Wednesday told local union leaders to negotiate their own contracts or "shut 'em down by midnight."

In a move that could sidestep the Ford Administration's invitation for an 80-day cooling-off period under the Taft Hartley Act, the union negotiators also offered national trucking industry bargainers an interim three-year pact as the midnight deadline approached.

By 11 p.m. trucking industry negotiators had not reached a decision on the teamsters' interim offer.

BUT A WALKOUT in the Chicago area apparently was averted about 11 p.m. when local union leaders said Chicago area Teamsters would try to reach interim agreements with local employers.

Louis Peick, representing Chicago Local 705, said area Teamsters leaders have been told to line up agreements with local employers.

Detroit, New York and Ohio Teamsters walked off their jobs at 11 p.m. Chicago time.

Edward Feener, an official for independent union drivers not affiliated with the Teamsters, said a walk-out probably will not take place in the Chicago area today.

The proposed offer calls for a total of $1.75 in wage hikes during the next three years; three cents a mile allowances increase; and $17-a-week hike in health, welfare and pension contributions.

THE TAKE-IT-OR-LEAVE-IT deal offered the Trucking Employers Inc. was simple: Sign the contract or face a strike at 12:01 a.m. today. Pickets were scheduled to be up early this morning if the interim pact was not signed.

The trucking industry's original offer was to boost the $7.18 to $7.33 hourly truckers' wage 85 cents during the next three years. In addition, over-the-road truckers were offered a two-cents hike to the present 18-cent-a-mile allowance limit during the next three years.

The employers also originally offered an $11-a-week increase in the current $44-a-week contribution to the health, welfare and pension fund.

Labor Sec. W. J. Usery was sitting in on marathon negotiating sessions between the Teamsters and the trucking industry at the Arlington Park Hilton Hotel in Arlington Heights.

HIGH HOPES FOR a settlement covering more than 400,000 drivers and warehousemen across the country faded as the time grew shorter.

A Teamsters' strike — the first nationwide walkout by the giant union yet — could have a crippling effect on many segments of the nation's sputtering economy. The Teamsters involved haul 60 per cent of the nation's manufactured goods.

Even if a last-minute agreement were reached, there were calls for wildcat walkouts.

Teamster officials from Pennsylvania and Oklahoma said locals were being advised throughout the nation to seek a local settlement with their individual employers outside the master agreement. Teamsters terms were to remain intact.

THE OKLAHOMA OFFICIAL said he was instructing (Continued on Page 15)

Money mayhem statewide dilemma

A Herald staff report

Northwest suburban communities and municipalities throughout Illinois are facing hard times, a situation which is affecting everything from street sweeping to possible increases in property taxes.

Locally, governmental leaders are tightening the belt on spending — eliminating some programs, rejecting requests for personnel increases and limiting wage increases to about 6 per cent, in most cases.

It is not a crisis, but it is becoming increasingly difficult for revenue to keep up with the spiraling costs of operations, finance directors say.

The common objective in the new fiscal year is to provide existing services without an increase in costs. Financial worry and penny-pinching is evident throughout the state.

"WE'RE JUST having a hell of a time keeping up," said Peoria Assistant City Mgr. A. Fred Timmerman.

"For example, we buy something like 500,000 gallons of gasoline a year. It was 20 to 22 cents a gallon several years ago (without tax). Now we're paying 40 to 42 cents a gallon."

The result in Peoria, Timmerman said, will be a property tax rate increase of 14 or 14½ cents per $100 of assessed valuation this year, which will allow the town's $19 million budget to be balanced. It also will allow a 7 per cent pay hike for the city's 800 employees.

The situation is worse in towns that have been hit hard by unemployment because when people are out of work they buy fewer goods and their communities get less sales tax.

MOST NORTHWEST suburban communities have managed to balance their books this year, but Mount Prospect is facing a deficit of $400,000 and Elk Grove Village has been forced to make some large cuts in spending since last October when a deficit of $270,000 was projected.

Mount Prospect Village Pres. Robert D. Teichert Wednesday said it is "not a panic situation."

"The problem is more severe in the minds of the people than it is in fact," he said.

Tuesday night, the Mount Prospect Village Board voted to impose on residents a $4 per month direct garbage collection charge. It is hoped the new (Continued on Page 10)

Neighborhood paper pickups start

Elk Grove Village residents, beginning today, will be able to set out newspapers with their garbage for recycling.

The village's scavenger contractor, Garden City Disposal Co. of Rosemont, will pick up newspapers for recycling in all residential areas.

The firm is asking residents not to include magazines or cardboard with the papers because both will reduce the amount paid for the papers by the recycling center.

Newspaper piles also must be "tied in two directions by stout cord or twine," a company spokesman said. The newspapers should be placed at the curb next to the normal refuse containers.

NEWSPAPERS WILL bring an estimated $25 a ton. Any profits from the program will be shared by Garden City and the village. The village already plans to use its share of the proceeds primarily for beautification projects.

Earlier estimates by Joseph Stob, a representative of Garden City, said the full village would not have the recycling service until July. The earlier plan proposed starting the pickups in part of the village and gradually expanding to other parts of the village.

Stob said his firm is uninterested in recycling glass because it is "too complicated" and almost always loses money.

by JILL BETTNER

Better taste the white stuff in the sugar bowl before dumping a big spoonful in your morning coffee. Think twice about going through a week's worth of trash to find that lottery ticket a friend says is worth $1 million. In fact, just to be safe, don't believe half of what anybody tells you all day today.

It's April Fool's Day, beloved holiday of tricksters and practical jokers everywhere and the bane of all the gullible, trusting souls who inevitably become their victims.

Nobody is quite sure how April Fool's Day got started, but although the actual origins of the holiday are obscure, there are several interesting theories.

SOME SAY IT IS derived from ancient New Year festivals celebrating the vernal equinox and the coming of spring — a time when even the capricious weather plays tricks.

In most versions, France gets the credit (or the blame, depending on how you feel about it) for designating April 1 as "All Fools Day."

Apparently, the day grew out of the confusion that was created when France adopted the Gregorian calendar in 1582. Up until that time, the New Year — traditionally a time for gift-giving and visiting friends — had ended April 1. The Gregorian calendar, however, moved the holiday back to its current date, Jan. 1.

A few conservative Frenchmen, so the story goes, refused to accept the new date. Others, who were just more forgetful that stubborn, kept showing up at friends' houses at the wrong time by mistake. Anyway, they were all laughed at and called (guess what) April Fools.

SOME TRIVIA experts trace the beginnings of the holiday back to Biblical times, connecting it to an incident in the story of Noah and the Ark. This version says the practice of sending friends on fool's errands started when Noah, wrongly thinking the flood had subsided, sent a dove out from the Ark on a futile search for land.

Another religious explanation associates the origin of fool's errands with tricks played on Christ by his foes to mock Him.

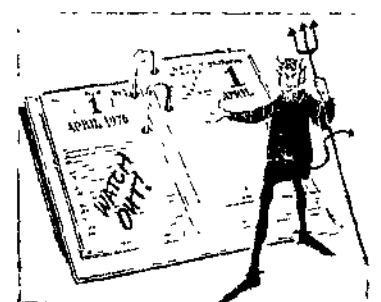

Still another version has its roots in Medieval times. According to this story, the holiday can be traced to a time when insane asylum patients were released for a few hours each year on the first day of April. Cruel crowds reportedly goaded the patients into doing things that were impossible for them and then laughed while the poor patients struggled.

Whatever the real story is, April Fool's Day has evolved into a day of impostors and absurdity relished by pranksters around the world.

In Scotland, the first of April is the time for "hunting the gowk" or cuckoo, the symbol of fools throughout Europe generally.

A Frenchman tricked by a friend is called a Poisson d'Avril or April Fish, meaning one who has been easily caught in an April Fool's Day joke. The day is also popular in Italy, Spain, Portugal, Sweden, Germany and Norway. The last two countries celebrate with hilarity on the last day as well as the first day of April.

Of all the customs associated with April Fool's Day, Mexico has one of the most unusual. South of the border, the day for fooling is Dec. 28. On that date, anyone clever enough to trick a friend into lending him one of his possessions doesn't have to give it back.

Watts, Czajkowski gain support

Dems endorse 2 in Dist. 54 race

The Schaumburg Township Democratic Organization has endorsed two candidates for the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education election April 10.

Dennis Watts, 221 Quincy, Schaumburg, and Ariene Czajkowski, 727 Crest Ave., Roselle, were endorsed by the organization's executive board, committeemen John Morrissey said in a release Wednesday. Three board seats are open.

Watts is a member of organization. Mrs. Czajkowski said she thinks of herself as a Democrat and has been a Democratic election judge since she moved to the area. She said, however, she has never paid dues to the Schaumburg Democrats or attended their meetings.

Watts appeared before the Democrats to discuss school issues. Morrissey was unable to be reached Wednesday to explain what criteria were used for endorsement.

In a prepared release, he said they were endorsed because of "their qualifications and dedication to the betterment of the school system."

This is the first time the Democrats have become formally involved in school board elections. Morrissey told The Herald several weeks ago that the Democrats did not want to become involved in the election, but that they would consider it if the township Republicans took an active role.

The Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township (ROOST) endorsed three candidates last week. Newcomer Elizabeth Carpenter, 1581 Maplewood Ave., Hanover Park, and incumbents Gordon Thoren, 577 Edgefield Ln., Hoffman Estates, and Edward Bedard, 350 Pierce Rd., Hoffman Estates, received ROOST endorsements. Bedard is a ROOST member.

Morrissey said that non-involvement of major political parties in school board elections is probably best for the community, but that "is only realistic if both parties observe it. The Republican Party has not."

MORRISSEY SAID IN the past ROOST has given "off the record" support to board candidates, but now that its support is in the open, "the Democratic Party cannot serve the interests of the community by tacitly allowing the Republican Party to take over school board affairs."

The Democrats do not intend "to seek input into the policies or decisions of the school board" by their endorsements, Morrissey said.

Watts said he was "happy to receive" the Democrats' endorsement because they hold "a dominant position within the township." Watts said he would like to work for as much support as possible to pressure the Illinois General Assembly for full funding for aid to education. He said Morrissey told him the Schaumburg Democrats share this goal.

Watts said the Democrats have offered to campaign for him by sending fliers listing his views and qualifications and by forming a telephone committee to remind Democrats to vote April 10. He said no offer of monetary contributions has been made.

WATTS AND MRS. Czajkowski, as well as Leslie Kleiman, 463 Newcastle, Hoffman Estates, also have been endorsed by the Dist. 54 teachers union.

Mrs. Czajkowski said she is "grateful for any and all support. I hope the Democrats endorsed me because they believe I'm qualified." ROOST did not endorse her, but did list her as "qualified to run."

its own recycling efforts last month because the recycling center was losing money. Since last May, the center lost $635.68, much of it because glass shipments were rejected due to improper preparation by users of the center.

Village Trustee Nancy L. Vanderweel has suggested residents with glass to recycle go to the Des Plaines or Arlington Heights recycling centers.

Stob has estimated 25 tons per month of newspaper could be collected in the village if 50 per cent of the residents participate. That could bring in as much as $625 a month. Part of the firm's expenses have included adding special containers for the newspapers onto its garbage trucks.

Gettin' hitched—April Fool style

by DIANE MERMIGAS
It was hard to tell who was fooling whom Tuesday afternoon.

The blushing bride was a man who stood six feet tall in a well-padded lace gown, holding a bouquet of onions, garlic, carrots and other assorted vegetables.

The groom was a petite woman dressed in black talls and top hat with an uncanny resemblance to Harpo Marx.

About 50 senior citizens, dressed in their Sunday best, watched attentively from metal folding chairs while the "odd couple" exchanged rare vows of marriage, surrounded by an even stranger looking wedding party.

THE SENIOR citizens thought it would be funny to have the men and women exchange their traditional roles in the wedding party, especially with April Fool's Day around the corner.

Actually, it was a mock wedding ceremony staged by members of the River Trails Park District Senior Citizens Club to honor the 50th wedding anniversary of Edward and Josephine Watrin of Mount Prospect.

The "maid of honor" stood 6 feet 5 inches tall, and was dressed in a ribbon-trimmed gown and floppy-brimmed hat of flowers. Gaudy earrings dangled from the ears of most of the "bridesmaids," whose undershirts peaked out from their lace gowns.

The ushers wore fake mustaches, and a flower girl, dressed in a dotted top and ballet skirt, threw fake flower petals on the audience.

DO YOU PROMISE "to rub his back when he complains and bring him a little schnapps when gets home?" the make-believe minister asked.

"I'm sure you believed that it's cheaper for two to live than one, but on that you've been deceived . . . if you think you can live on love alone, forget it," the minister continued.

Then he pronounced them "louse" and "spouse."

Although the scene was a comical one, the mock wedding prompted some real tears of joy.

The couple brushed tears from their eyes as the gathering of seniors indulged in coffee, lively conversation and, of course, some wedding cake.

"WE NEVER EXPECTED this. We have such wonderful friends to do this for us. This is really love and friendship," said Mrs. Watrin.

The couple was surprised by their friends when they entered the park district community center, 1313 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect, for what would have been a weekly meeting of the group.

Instead, the hall was decorated like a church, with flowers and a white runner down the main aisle. A table in the back of the room was heavy with gifts and cards for the occasion, and a gold money tree as a token of best wishes.

"I didn't know what to think when we came in. I was so surprised. It was just like an April Fool's Day joke," said Watrin, who worked for 28 years in the shipyards of Chicago.

"This is better than our first wedding. My knees are still shaking. I'm nervous as a new bride," Mrs. Watrin said. The room was filled with laughter and old friends remembering the days when they, too, were brides and grooms, and younger.

"ISN'T THIS THE most wonderful wedding you've ever been to?" said Marcelle LeClerc, Arlington Heights, the flower girl, who sewed most of the wedding party outfits.

"We love to do these kinds of things. It keeps us young and helps us forget the pain," she said.

And Mrs. Watrin? Well, she was busy recalling the first days of the whirlwind relationship with her husband. They met in a Chicago ballroom and were married seven weeks later.

They still enjoy dancing together and they agree that it seems like only yesterday when they met.

"I don't feel older, but I look at Ed and then look at myself in the mirror and I realize we are older. Our feelings haven't changed and neither has our spirit," she said.

A walk down the aisle for the "odd couple."

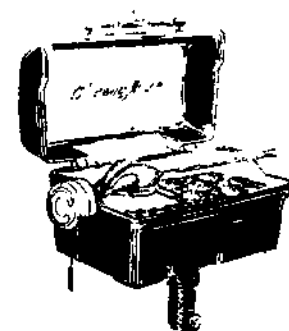

At the altar.

A laughing guest.

by PAM BIGFORD

Four pairs of hands answer a teacher's question in sign language. Four sets of lips call out the accompanying word. Four deaf children learn a little more about getting along in a hearing world.

The four are in a 13-student deaf education program sponsored by the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization at Kensington School, 201 S. Evanston, Arlington Heights.

A few miles away in Ridge School, 650 Ridge Ave., Elk Grove Village, six other deaf children are equally busy, working just as hard toward the same goals, supervised by the same organization, learning the same subjects.

THE RIDGE DEAF children were classmates of those in Kensington until this year. The six were moved to a newly created program in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 after a three-month controversy over serious inadequacies in the NSSEO program.

Both schools are working to create programs to solve these problems.

At Kensington, a new speech development teacher and principal have been hired. A program to teach the hearing children sign language has been expanded.

Instead of the deaf children being segregated at lunch and recess, they are encouraged to join the other children. Fifth graders are allowed to be patrol guards just like the hearing fifth graders.

A GROUP HAS BEEN started so that parents of deaf children can discuss their common problems. The Kensington PTA included the parent group in their activities.

"The speech development program has really improved," said parent Carol Stark, echoing other parents. "I can tell the difference in my son. He's getting about 3 1/2 hours of speech development a week, where last year he was getting about 20 minutes."

Many parents blamed the poor social integration of the children on a lack of leadership from the former administration. The new principal, Richard Bennett, received nothing but praise from parents.

"The school has a real leader now. He's in the kids' classroom often, and is even taking a sign language class," said parent Cindy Rentdorff.

MOST PARENTS said they are very pleased with the acceptance of their children this year by the hearing students. Other parents said there is progress only because there was nowhere to go but up.

"The attitude of the whole school has improved," said parent Robert Forti. "I'll never be satisfied with the program — it can always be better — but I'm satisfied that they are making progress."

Lorraine Kelly teaches sign language before school to 88 hearing children who come early because they want to learn it.

"There's a natural split between the hearing and the deaf children because they don't know how to communicate with each other," Mrs. Kelly said. "Now that the hearing kids have started taking sign language, I've noticed little groups of them talking and laughing with the deaf children."

OTHER PARENTS said the Kensington program has improved in some ways, but serious problems remain.

Parents' revelations sparked split

The deaf education program sponsored by the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization (NSSEO) split last summer after parents exposed serious inadequacies in the way it was operated and demanded it be removed from Arlington Heights Dist. 25.

Parents of 12 of the 19 children in the program housed in Kensington School in Arlington Heights signed a petition last May to have the program removed.

Charges levied by parents included: Inadequate speech development program; placement of emotionally disturbed children in deaf classes; lack of correlation between the elementary and junior high programs and a lack of social integration of the deaf at Kensington.

NSSEO Director Edward McDonald said some of the parents' complaints were valid.

McDonald recommended the program remain at Kensington because he said that changing the program's location would not solve its problems.

When the NSSEO board voted to keep the program at Kensington, the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education decided to offer an alternative deaf education program for the six deaf children within its boundaries.

The deaf program as a whole has only six girls, and three of them are at Ridge. Parents Marie Burks and Carol Engler said the split in the program has limited their daughters socially by limiting their girlfriends.

"There are only two girls besides my daughter in the program, and this has created some boy-girl problems," Mrs. Engler said.

Some parents say nothing has been done about removing children who are both deaf and emotionally disturbed from the classroom.

BENNETT SAID none of the deaf children have been diagnosed as emotionally disturbed, and he was not aware of any excessive disruption problems in the deaf classes.

At Ridge, a whole new program was formed and is under NSSEO supervision. Classroom teacher Marilyn Grodrian is assisted by one aide. A speech therapist works with the children every afternoon, and Ridge has its own learning disabilities teacher.

The children eat lunch, have recess and gym class and be patrol guards with the hearing students.

Ridge parents said they are very happy with the program and so far have no complaints.

"I think the kids have been honestly accepted by the rest of the school," Mrs. Grodrian said. "The children aren't segregated in any school activity unless I ask for it."

SOME PARENTS said their children's speech has improved not only because of the new speech therapist, but because their children's new involvement with the hearing students has motivated them to want to talk.

"Last year my son didn't even play with the hearing children at Kensington, and this year at Ridge he's on the football team," said Nancy Ford, a leader in the fight to move the program.

"My son feels like he's a part of everything that goes on, and it's done wonders for his speech," Mrs. Ford said. "Nobody has any idea what this kind of thing has done for the morale of these kids."

Carolyn Best said her daughter's speech has improved "100 per cent" this year and credits it to her daughter's feeling of "total acceptance."

"LAST YEAR my daughter said she hated school," Mrs. Best said. "This year she never complains."

Parents said their children do not miss their Kensington classmates as much as they feared they would.

Irene Flagg said her son never even mentions his old friends anymore.

"Now he plays more with the kids in the neighborhood than he did before," Mrs. Flagg said. "Last year he was apprehensive about playing with the hearing kids because he hadn't had any exposure to them for two years. I feel like his whole life has changed."

Most of the Ridge parents remain bitter toward the Kensington program and insist their children will not go back to Kensington if the programs are ever reunited.

"I WOULD SEND my daughter to a regular school with an interpreter" rather than send her to Kensington, Mrs. Best said.

NSSEO Director Edward McDonald said that he does not believe Dist. 59 will be able to sustain a deaf education program after the five 10-year-olds now in the class move on to junior high.

"The prevalence of deaf children in that area (Dist. 59) now is extremely high," McDonald said. He noted that most of the children were born during the time when many pregnant women had German measles.

"The parents in Dist. 59 had legitimate concerns," McDonald said. "I asked them to bear with us and that we would straighten things out. We have kept our promise and I hope they can see that."

McDonald said if the deaf students were brought back together NSSEO would be able to provide a "more diversified program."

THE RIDGE PARENTS said they never intended to split the program — they wanted the entire class removed from Kensington. But even though the program split, parents from both schools say their action focused attention on the program's inadequacies.

"It was very beneficial that the parents' group was so vocal," Mrs. Rentdorff said. "You don't get a second chance to give our kids language development and self-confidence."

"You don't have to worry about hearing kids who automatically get the best education a district can provide. But for my son, who really needs these extra things, they weren't there," she said.

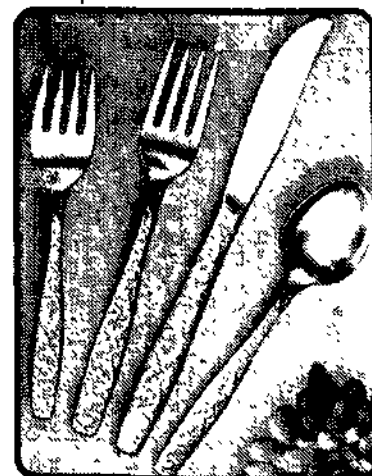

"We're going to have to take a wait-and-see attitude," Mrs. Rentdorff said. "I know there's going to be mistakes made, but this time I think it will all work out."

RIDGE SCHOOL students Suzy Best and Billy Mueller hold an impromptu puppet show in their deaf education class. Parents said their deaf children are much happier since they were moved from the deaf program at Kensington School, Arlington Heights.

Chicago spared in nationwide Teamsters' strike

by LEA TONKIN

The Chicago area apparently was spared a local Teamsters' strike today as truckers in Eastern cities began to pull their rigs off the road, starting the first nationwide Teamsters strike in history.

There were indications, however, that many drivers would continue to work under temporary agreements, including truckers in the Chicago area.

Louis Peick, representing Chicago Teamsters Local 705, said Chicago-area leaders have been told to line up agreements with local employers. Another Chicago union official said he expected 80 per cent of the 40,000 area truckers to work under interim agreements.

A Teamsters official said drivers in Detroit, New York, and Columbus, Ohio, went on strike at 12:01 a.m., Eastern time. There are 400,000 Teamsters affected by the negotiations.

As the midnight deadline approached, national union leaders told local union officials to negotiate their own contracts or "shut 'em down at midnight."

The union negotiators also offered the trucking industry an interim three-year contract offer.

The proposed offer calls for a total of $1.75 in wage hikes during the next three years; three cents a mile allowances increase; and $17-a-week hike in health, welfare and pension contributions.

THE TAKE-IT-OR-LEAVE-IT deal offered the Trucking Employers Inc. was simple: Sign the contract or face a strike at 12:01 a.m. today. Pickets were scheduled to be up early this morning if the interim pact was not signed.

The trucking industry's original offer was to boost the $7.18 to $7.33 hourly truckers' wage 85 cents during the next three years. In addition, over-the-road truckers were offered a two-cents hike to the present 18-cent-a-mile allowance limit during the next three years.

The employers also originally offered an $11-a-week increase in the current $44-a-week contribution to the health, welfare and pension fund.

Labor Sec. W. J. Usery was sitting in on marathon negotiating sessions between the Teamsters and the trucking industry at the Arlington Park Hilton Hotel in Arlington Heights.

HIGH HOPES FOR a settlement covering more than 400,000 drivers and warehousemen across the country faded as the time grew shorter.

A Teamsters' strike — the first nationwide walkout by the giant union yet — could have a crippling effect on many segments of the nation's sputtering economy. The Teamsters involved haul 60 per cent of the nation's manufactured goods.

Even if a last-minute agreement were reached, there were calls for wildcat walkouts.

Teamster officials from Pennsylvania and Oklahoma said locals were being advised throughout the nation to seek a local settlement with their individual employers outside the master agreement. Teamsters terms were to remain intact.

THE OKLAHOMA OFFICIAL said he was instructing (Continued on Page 15)

Communities scrambling for money

A Herald staff report

Northwest suburban communities and municipalities throughout Illinois are facing hard times, a situation which is affecting everything from street sweeping to possible increases in property taxes.

Locally governmental leaders are tightening the belt on spending — eliminating some programs, rejecting requests for personnel increases and limiting wage increases to about 6 per cent, in most cases.

It is not a crisis, but it is becoming increasingly difficult for revenue to keep up with the spiraling costs of operations, finance directors say.

The common objective in the new fiscal year is to provide existing services without an increase in costs. Financial worry and penny-pinching is evident throughout the state.

"WE'RE JUST having a hell of a time keeping up," said Peoria Assistant City Mgr. A. Fred Timmerman.

"For example, we buy something like 100,000 gallons of gasoline a year. It was 20 to 22 cents a gallon several years ago (without tax). Now we're paying 40 to 42 cents a gallon."

The result in Peoria, Timmerman

said, will be a property tax rate increase of 14 or 14½ cents per $100 of assessed valuation this year, which will allow the town's $19 million budget to be balanced. It also will allow a 7 per cent pay hike for the city's 800 employees.

The situation is worse in towns that have been hit hard by unemployment because when people are out of work they buy fewer goods and their communities get less sales tax.

MOST NORTHWEST suburban communities have managed to balance their books this year, but Mount Prospect is facing a deficit of $400,000 and Elk Grove Village has been forced to make some large cuts in spending since last October when a deficit of $270,000 was projected.

Mount Prospect Village Pres. Robert D. Teichert Wednesday said it is "not a panic situation."

"The problem is more severe in the minds of the people than it is in fact," he said.

Tuesday night, the Mount Prospect Village Board voted to impose on residents a $4 per month direct garbage collection charge. It is hoped the new (Continued on Page 10)

Ran against GOP in '73 election

O'Brien seeking township post

A Schaumburg resident who challenged the Republican-controlled township board in the 1973 election is one of four persons seeking appointment to a township vacancy expected to be filled April 28.

Timothy O'Brien, 1401 Elmhurst Ln., Schaumburg, has submitted a resume for consideration, Township Supervisor Vernon Laubenstein said Wednesday.

O'Brien could not be reached for comment.

He is one of three unsuccessful independent candidates who opposed the incumbent township board three years ago.

O'Brien also was instrumental in forming Schaumburg Citizens for Planned Progress, a new political party which ran a slate of candidates in last year's Schaumburg village election.

His wife, Sally, was the party's candidate for village president.

The vacancy was created by the recent resignation of John J. Jensen, who has moved from the community. The appointee will fill Jensen's unexpired four-year term, which ends in April 1977.

Other applicants include Henry Cornet, 921 Yorkshire Ln., Hanover Park, and Shirley Kost, 326 Aster Dr., and Russell Bliss, 130 Forest Pk. Ln., both of Hoffman Estates.

Laubenstein said applications for the vacancy will be accepted through April 27 at the township office, 105 S. Roselle Rd.

He said interviews will be scheduled with each candidate prior to the April 28 township board meeting.

Group loses bid to reopen Kaufman case

A petition to reopen the case between Kaufman and Broad Homes Inc. and the Village of Hoffman Estates has been denied by Cook County Circuit Judge Walter Dahl.

The petition, brought by the Barrington Square Unit 5 Condominium

Assn., said the recent settlement between the village and the firm "adversely affects" the association which sought to have it nullified.

Village Atty. Edward C. Hofert said Wednesday that the denial "will hopefully discourage any further actions by individuals to reopen the settlement."

by JILL BETTNER

Better taste the white stuff in the sugar bowl before dumping a big spoonful in your morning coffee. Think twice about going through a week's worth of trash to find that lottery ticket a friend says is worth $1 million. In fact, just to be safe, don't believe half of what anybody tells you all day today.

It's April Fool's Day, beloved holiday of tricksters and practical jokers everywhere and the bane of all the gullible, trusting souls who inevitably become their victims.

Nobody is quite sure how April Fool's Day got started, but although the actual origins of the holiday are obscure, there are several interesting theories.

SOME SAY IT IS derived from ancient New Year festivals celebrating the vernal equinox and the coming of spring — a time when even the capricious weather plays tricks.

In most versions, France gets the credit (or the blame, depending on how you feel about it) for designating April 1 as "All Fools Day."

Apparently, the day grew out of the confusion that was created when France adopted the Gregorian calendar in 1562. Up until that time, the New Year — traditionally a time for gift-giving and visiting friends — had ended April 1. The Gregorian calendar, however, moved the holiday back to its current date, Jan. 1.

A few conservative Frenchmen, so the story goes, refused to accept the new date. Others, who were just more forgetful that stubborn, kept showing up at friends' houses at the wrong time by mistake. Anyway, they were all laughed at and called (guess what) April Fools.

SOME TRIVIA experts trace the beginnings of the holiday back to Biblical times, connecting it to an incident in the story of Noah and the Ark. This version says the practice of sending friends on fool's errands started when Noah, wrongly thinking the flood had subsided, sent a dove out from the Ark on a futile search for land.

Another religious explanation associates the origin of fool's errands with tricks played on Christ by his foes to mock Him.

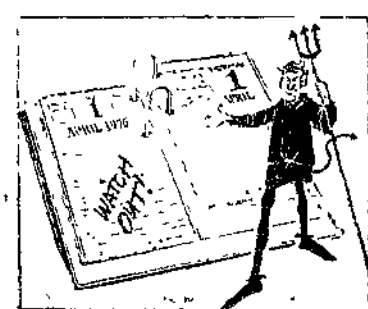

Still another version has its roots in Medieval times. According to this story, the holiday can be traced to a time when insane asylum patients were released for a few hours each year on the first day of April. Cruel crowds reportedly goaded the patients into doing things that were impossible for them and then laughed while the poor patients struggled.

Whatever the real story is, April Fool's Day has evolved into a day of impostors and absurdity relished by pranksters around the world.

In Scotland, the first of April is the time for "hunting the gowk" or cuckoo, the symbol of fools throughout Europe generally.

A Frenchman tricked by a friend is called a Poisson d'Avril or April Fish, meaning one who has been easily caught in an April Fool's Day joke. The day is also popular in Italy, Spain, Portugal, Sweden, Germany and Norway. The last two countries celebrate with hilarity on the last day as well as the first day of April.

Of all the customs associated with April Fool's Day, Mexico has one of the most unusual. South of the border, the day for fooling is Dec. 28. On that date, anyone clever enough to trick a friend into lending him one of his possessions doesn't have to give it back.

Teachers to mull 'no pact-no work'

by PAM BIGFORD
Elementary school teachers who are members of the North Suburban Unified Bargaining Council (NSUBC) will meet Wednesday to complete a platform for teacher contract bargaining which may include teachers refusing to begin school in September if their contracts have not been settled.

The bargaining coalition, associated with the statewide Illinois Education Assoc. represents about 2,400 teachers in 15 north suburban districts.

Northwest suburban affiliates include unions in Prospect Heights Dist 23, River Trails Dist 26, Mount Prospect Dist 57, Elk Grove Township Dist 59 and the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization. The Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist 21 union will consider membership Friday.

CLAIRE HYMAN, NSUBC chairman said the members will vote on a proposition of "no contract — no work" meaning that teachers whose contracts are not settled by September would refuse to begin the school year until they have a contract.

Teachers beginning the school year without a contract has not been uncommon in the Northwest suburbs though bargaining usually begins in February or March.

Of the member districts, Dist 23 settled in October, Dist 26 signed its contract in December, Dist 57 settled in September after school began, and Dist 59 reached an 11th-hour agreement the day before school started. NSSEO is bargaining for its first contract this year. Dist 21 did not settle until after school began in September.

Members will vote on other platform positions including negotiated procedures for reducing staff that provide seniority for tenure teachers, due process for non-tenure teachers and adequate rehiring procedure, cost-of-living raises.

Parity, or raising elementary teachers' pay to the level of high school teachers a master contract in every district, a negotiated early retirement plan, and negotiating only one-year contracts with a common expiration date for all NSUBC members.

METHODS FOR REDUCING teaching staffs have been of particular concern to teachers this year because of declining enrollment and grim financial pictures.

Ms Hyman said part of the "no contract — no work" proposal is that all unions that plan to go on strike should go together and that none would return to work until they all do.

However the member unions will not automatically be committed to striking if their contracts are not signed by the first day of school, Ms Hyman said. "Each local will make that decision on its own, but the point is that if they do decide to strike they will all go together," she said.

Ms Hyman said if the goals are passed, the member unions will be committed to working toward them. If they do not meet all the goals, they will have to get authorization from the NSUBC before they can sign their contracts.

All of the Northwest suburban member districts have contracts which expire this year and will be negotiating for next year. Dist 21 has a two-year contract.

THE BARGAINING coalition was formed last spring to set collective bargaining goals for the member unions and to research financial backgrounds of school districts.

The coalition will consider an "action program" for the coming year, including renewed investigation into property tax underassessments, examining school district consolidation, and improving teacher fringe benefits.

Last year the coalition charged that more than $50 million in under assessments of 18 commercial properties in the northern suburbs were robbing schools of $4 million in tax revenue. Ms Hyman said County Tax Assessor Thomas Tully refused to meet with the coalition.

at the right way." Unit 5 attorney George Faber had contended the association was not consulted about the settlement before it was agreed to by the village and K & B.

Settlement terms called for developers to pay $75,000 in three payments to the village commercial instead of residential development in Barrington Square and reduction in the density of the remaining portions of the complex.

In return the village rescinded a 1974 resolution banning further development in the complex at Higgins and Barrington roads.

THE VILLAGE allowed K&B to begin construction on 38 units in the complex some of which are in the Unit 5 area.

Faber said the association had been considering reopening the village settlement ever since they "understood" its effects on the homeowners.

But Village Mgr George Longmeyer has said the group has had ample opportunity to present their opinions on the settlement.

Dems back 2 hopefuls in Dist. 54 board race

The Schaumburg Township Democratic Organization has endorsed two candidates for the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education election April 10.

Dennis Watts, 221 Quincy, Schaumburg, and Arlene Czajkowski, 727 Crest Ave., Roselle, were endorsed by the organization's executive board, committeemen John Morrissey said in a release Wednesday. Three board seats are open.

Watts is a member of organization. Mrs. Czajkowski said she thinks of herself as a Democrat and has been a Democratic election judge since she moved to the area. She said, however, she has never paid dues to the Schaumburg Democrats or attended their meetings.

NEITHER MRS. CZAJKOWSKI nor Watts appeared before the Democrats to discuss school issues. Morrissey was unable to be reached Wednesday to explain what criteria were used for endorsement.

In a prepared release, he said they were endorsed because of "their qualifications and dedication to the betterment of the school system."

This is the first time the Democrats have become formally involved in school board elections. Morrissey told The Herald several weeks ago that the Democrats did not want to become involved in the election, but that they would consider it if the township Republicans took an active role.

The Republican Organization of Schaumburg Township (ROOST) endorsed three candidates last week. Newcomer Elizabeth Carpenter, 1581 Maplewood Ave., Hanover Park, and incumbents Gordon Thoren, 577 Edgefield Ln., Hoffman Estates, and Edward Bedard, 350 Pierce Rd., Hoffman Estates, received ROOST endorsements. Bedard is a ROOST member.

Morrissey said that non-involvement of major political parties in school board elections is probably best for the community, but that "is only realistic if both parties observe it. The Republican Party has not."

MORRISSEY SAID in the past ROOST has given "off the record" support to board candidates, but now that its support is in the open, "the Democratic Party cannot serve the interests of the community by tacitly allowing the Republican Party to take over school board affairs."

The Democrats do not intend "to seek input into the policies or decisions of the school board" by their endorsements, Morrissey said.

Watts said he was "happy to receive" the Democrats' endorsement because they hold "a dominant position within the township." Watts said he would like to work for as much support as possible to pressure the Illinois General Assembly for full funding for aid to education. He said Morrissey told him the Schaumburg Democrats share this goal.

Watts said the Democrats have offered to campaign for him by sending fliers listing his views and qualifications and by forming a telephone committee to remind Democrats to vote April 10. He said no offer of monetary contributions has been made.

WATTS AND MRS. Czajkowski, as well as Leslie Kleiman, 463 New-castle, Hoffman Estates, also have been endorsed by the Dist. 54 teachers union.

Mrs. Czajkowski said she is "grateful for any and all support. I hope the Democrats endorsed me because they believe I'm qualified." ROOST did not endorse her, but did list her as "qualified to run."

Mrs. Czajkowski said, "Endorsements are fine, but I hope they all remember to vote." A board member from 1972-75, she lost in her bid for reelection last year by 36 votes.

Township OKs federal funds for 3 agencies

Approximately $26,000 in federal revenue-sharing funds for three agencies has been approved by members of the Schaumburg Township Board of Auditors.

"The funding will run through the end of 1976 only because of the still uncertain future of federal revenue sharing money," Township Supervisor Vernon Laubenstein said Wednesday.

He said a total of $13,566 has been allocated to the Northwest Special Recreation Assn., noting the sum is two-thirds of the requested $18,000.

Laubenstein said $3,220 has been earmarked for Shelter Inc., a temporary foster-care agency, to cover a six-month period beginning July 1.

Also approved was continuation of a $10,000 contribution to pay for "hot-line" services provided by the Regional Youth Services Bureau, supported by Schaumburg, Palatine and Elk Grove townships.

Township board members refused, however, to allocate additional funds to provide decentralized health services and counseling, which would include pregnancy testing and birth control information for teen-agers. The service, estimated at a cost of between $6,850 and $7,250, was proposed by Regional Youth Services Bureau.

Laubenstein said the request was voted down by township board members who believe the services would duplicate those now being provided by other local agencies.

Money top issue: Dist. 15 hopefuls

by DIANE GRANAT

The financial problem facing Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 is the primary concern of most candidates for the Dist. 15 school board.

Candidates were asked what they believe is the most pressing problem facing Dist. 15, at a candidates' night this week at Plum Grove Junior High School, 28 W. Old Plum Grove Rd., Rolling Meadows.

More than 50 parents and teachers attended the meeting cosponsored by the Palatine League of Women Voters and the Northwest Suburban Council PTAs.

E. ERIC JONES of Palatine, running for the one 1-year board seat, said the most important short-term issue in Dist. 15 is the fiscal problem. Dist. 15 anticipates a $2.2 million budget deficit for 1976-77.

Jones said the board must examine all present expenditures to make budget cutbacks, but the last priority for cuts should be in the instructional program.

Incumbent Irene Sjostedt of Hoffman Estates, also running for the 1-year term, agreed the fiscal problem is the most important issue. She said the board must work to meet the educational needs of all the children in the district within the limits of its budget.

Mrs. Sjostedt said the board must try to define the community's interpretation of what they feel is a quality education.

Incumbent Leland Gibbs, of Rolling Meadows who is running for one of two 3-year seats on the board, said he favors operating Dist. 15 on a balanced budget rather than with a deficit.

THE BOARD SHOULD only cut back the programs affecting the fewest number of people and having the least long-term effects, Gibbs said.

Ann Koller of Inverness, another candidate for a 3-year seat, said in addition to the financial problems facing Dist. 15, there are also problems of shifting populations, busing and school closings.

Mrs. Koller said her main concern is that "every child has the opportunity for the best possible education commensurate with their ability."

She said when budget cuts are made they should not be made at the expense of the quality of education for the district's children.

IN A STATEMENT read to the audience, Patsy Kelly of Palatine, also running for a 3-year term, said her greatest concern is the budget problem.

"We have lived through the educational spending pattern of more, more, more, and we have found that more money does not insure more quality in education," said Mrs. Kelly's statement. She was unable to attend the candidates' night.

"We shall, in the future, have to be sure that every cent the district receives goes toward quality in education, for we can no longer afford to scatter our shots, hoping that quantity will bring quality," Mrs. Kelly said.

Norman Knapp of Palatine, a candidate for one of the 3-year terms, said communications is the main problem facing the Dist. 15 board.

KNAPP SAID IF elected, he would work to gain more citizen participation in Dist. 15's problems and he suggested using the local PTAs as a sounding board for parents' opinions.

Jones, Gibbs and Mrs. Koller said they did not oppose an additional tax levy to raise more revenue for the district, but agreed it would not solve the immediate problem of a deficit budget.

If Dist. 15 held a tax referendum the funds raised would not become available until the 1977-78 school year.

"The referendum won't bring in the money in time," Mrs. Koller said. "We must find a way to make the dollars we do have go farther," she said.

Mrs. Sjostedt said she would favor a referendum to raise taxes because the additional revenue could be used to replace programs which might have to be cut now.

THE DIST. 15 candidates were asked if they would vote to close Cardinal Drive School if they were on the board. The board is currently considering closing the school at 2300 Cardinal Dr., Rolling Meadows, because of the high cost of bringing the building up to life safety standards.

Mrs. Sjostedt said she is not sure Dist. 15 has enough money to renovate the school to make it worthwhile to keep open. The district's architects estimate it will cost about $300,000 to make the needed improvements, a cost almost equal to the original price of the school.

Gibbs said considering the cost of updating Cardinal Drive and the problem of declining enrollment in the Cardinal Drive area in Rolling Meadows, he would vote to close Cardinal Drive School.

Mrs. Koller said the question of closing Cardinal Drive is more than an economic matter to the parents of children at the school. She said the board may reach the point where it will have to say, "we can't afford to maintain or modernize the school."

Knapp said he would want to study the impact of busing children from different areas in the district to fill up classrooms before deciding whether to close the school.

Chicago spared in nationwide Teamsters' strike

by LEA TONKIN

The Chicago area apparently was spared a local Teamsters' strike today as truckers in Eastern cities began to pull their rigs off the road, starting the first nationwide Teamsters strike in history.

There were indications, however, that many drivers would continue to work under temporary agreements, including truckers in the Chicago area.

Louis Pelek, representing Chicago Teamsters Local 705, said Chicago-area leaders have been told to line up agreements with local employers. Another Chicago union official said he expected 80 per cent of the 40,000 area truckers to work under interim agreements.

A Teamsters official said drivers in Detroit, New York, and Columbus, Ohio, went on strike at 12:01 a.m. Eastern time. There are 400,000 Teamsters affected by the negotiations.

As the midnight deadline approached, national union leaders told local union officials to negotiate their own contracts or "shut 'em down at midnight."

The union negotiators also offered the trucking industry an interim three-year contract offer.

The proposed offer calls for a total of $1.75 in wage hikes during the next three years; three cents a mile allowances increase; and $17-a-week hike in health, welfare and pension contributions.

THE TAKE-IT-OR-LEAVE-IT deal offered the Trucking Employers Inc. was simple: Sign the contract or face a strike at 12:01 a.m. today. Pickets were scheduled to be up early this morning if the interim pact was not signed.

The trucking industry's original offer was to boost the $7.18 to $7.33 hourly truckers' wage 85 cents during the next three years. In addition, over-the-road truckers were offered a two-cents hike to the present 18-cent-a-mile allowance limit during the next three years.

The employers also originally offered an $11-a-week increase in the current $44-a-week contribution to the health, welfare and pension fund.

Labor Sec. W. J. Usery was sitting in on marathon negotiating sessions between the Teamsters and the trucking industry at the Arlington Park Hilton Hotel in Arlington Heights.

HIGH HOPES FOR a settlement covering more than 400,000 drivers and warehousemen across the country faded as the time grew shorter.

A Teamsters' strike — the first nationwide walkout by the giant union yet — could have a crippling effect on many segments of the nation's sputtering economy. The Teamsters involved haul 60 per cent of the nation's manufactured goods.

Even if a last-minute agreement were reached, there were calls for wildcat walkouts.

Teamster officials from Pennsylvania and Oklahoma said locals were being advised throughout the nation to seek a local settlement with their individual employers outside the master agreement. Teamsters terms were to remain intact.

THE OKLAHOMA OFFICIAL said he was instructing (Continued on Page 13)

Communities scrambling for money

A Herald staff report

Northwest suburban communities and municipalities throughout Illinois are facing hard times, a situation which is affecting everything from street sweeping to possible increases in property taxes.

Locally, governmental leaders are tightening the belt on spending — eliminating some programs, rejecting requests for personnel increases and limiting wage increases to about 6 per cent, in most cases.

It is not a crisis, but it is becoming increasingly difficult for revenue to keep up with the spiraling costs of operations, finance directors say.

The common objective in the new fiscal year is to provide existing services without an increase in costs. Financial worry and penny-pinching is evident throughout the state.

"WE'RE JUST having a hell of a time keeping up," said Peoria Assistant City Mgr. A. Fred Timmerman.

"For example, we buy something like 500,000 gallons of gasoline a year. It was 20 to 22 cents a gallon several years ago (without tax). Now we're paying 40 to 42 cents a gallon."

The result in Peoria, Timmerman

said, will be a property tax rate increase of 14 or 14½ cents per $100 of assessed valuation this year, which will allow the town's $19 million budget to be balanced. It also will allow a 7 per cent pay hike for the city's 800 employees.

The situation is worse in towns that have been hit hard by unemployment because when people are out of work they buy fewer goods and their communities get less sales tax.

MOST NORTHWEST suburban communities have managed to balance their books this year, but Mount Prospect is facing a deficit of $400,000 and Elk Grove Village has been forced to make some large cuts in spending since last October when a deficit of $270,000 was projected.

Mount Prospect Village Pres. Robert D. Teichert Wednesday said it is "not a panic situation."

"The problem is more severe in the minds of the people than it is in fact," he said.

Tuesday night, the Mount Prospect Village Board voted to impose on residents a $4 per month direct garbage collection charge. It is hoped the new (Continued on Page 10)

Decision Saturday on Dist. 15 cuts

The Palatine-Rolling Meadows Dist. 15 Board of Education will decide Saturday what items to cut from the 1976-77 budget.

The board is considering eliminating 19 teachers, closing Cardinal Drive School, and cutting special services and instructional programs to prevent a $2.2 million deficit in the coming year.

The board will meet as a committee-of-the-whole at 9 a.m. Saturday to vote on budget cuts proposed by the administration. The meeting will be at Plum Grove Junior High School gymnasium, 26 W. Old Plum Grove Rd.,

Rolling Meadows.

ABOUT 200 PARENTS and teachers attended Dist. 15 budget hearings Tuesday at Palatine Hills Junior High School, 1100 N. Smith Rd., Palatine, to protest proposed cutbacks.

Several parents objected to proposed cuts in the special education program. The board is considering reducing the number of learning disabilities teachers, speech therapists and diagnostic reading teachers.

"If two self-contained learning disabilities classes are cut, that will bring hyperactive, disruptive children back into the regular classroom with teachers who are unprepared to teach these children," one parent said.

Several parents of children attending Cardinal Drive School, 2300 Cardinal Dr., Rolling Meadows, voiced their concern over the proposed closing of that school. The board is considering closing Cardinal Drive because of the high cost of renovating the building for safety.

THE BOARD also has received recommendations from Dist. 15 teachers on what budget items to cut.

by JILL BETTNER

Better taste the white stuff in the sugar bowl before dumping a big spoonful in your morning coffee. Think twice about going through a week's worth of trash to find that lottery ticket a friend says is worth $1 million. In fact, just to be safe, don't believe half of what anybody tells you all day today.

It's April Fool's Day, beloved holiday of trucksters and practical jokers everywhere and the bane of all the gullible, trusting souls who inevitably become their victims.

Nobody is quite sure how April Fool's Day got started, but although the actual origins of the holiday are obscure, there are several interesting theories.

SOME SAY IT IS derived from ancient New Year festivals celebrating the vernal equinox and the coming of spring — a time when even the capricious weather plays tricks.

In most versions, France gets the credit (or the blame, depending on how you feel about it) for designating April 1 as "All Fools Day."

Apparently, the day grew out of the confusion that was created when France adopted the Gregorian calendar in 1582. Up until that time, the New Year — traditionally a time for gift-giving and visiting friends — had ended April 1. The Gregorian calendar, however, moved the holiday back to its current date, Jan. 1.

A few conservative Frenchmen, so the story goes, refused to accept the new date. Others, who were just more forgetful that stubborn, kept showing up at friends' houses at the wrong time by mistake. Anyway, they were all laughed at and called (guess what) April Fools.

SOME TRIVIA experts trace the beginnings of the holiday back to Biblical times, connecting it to an incident in the story of Noah and the Ark. This version says the practice of sending friends on fool's errands started when Noah, wrongly thinking the flood had subsided, sent a dove out from the Ark on a futile search for land.

Another religious explanation associates the origin of fool's errands with tricks played on Christ by his foes to mock Him.

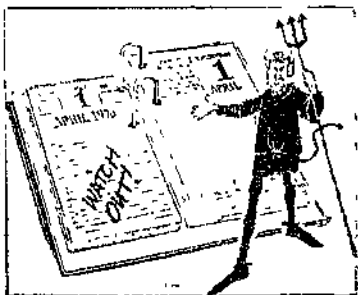

Still another version has its roots in Medieval times. According to this story, the holiday can be traced to a time when insane asylum patients were released for a few hours each year on the first day of April. Cruel crowds reportedly goaded the patients into doing things that were impossible for them and then laughed while the poor patients struggled.

Whatever the real story is, April Fool's Day has evolved into a day of impostors and absurdity relished by pranksters around the world.

In Scotland, the first of April is the time for "hunting the gowk" or cuckoo, the symbol of fools throughout Europe generally.

A Frenchman tricked by a friend is called a Poisson d'Avril or April Fish, meaning one who has been easily caught in an April Fool's Day joke. The day is also popular in Italy, Spain, Portugal, Sweden, Germany and Norway. The last two countries celebrate with hilarity on the last day as well as the first day of April.

Of all the customs associated with April Fool's Day, Mexico has one of the most unusual. South of the border, the day for fooling is Dec. 28. On that date, anyone clever enough to trick a friend into lending him one of his possessions doesn't have to give it back.

Rolling Meadows High School's jazz ensemble has been selected to perform in the high school division of the Notre Dame collegiate jazz festival in South Bend, Ind., Saturday.

Jazz groups were selected by audition only. Rolling Meadows was chosen as one of 15 bands from Indiana, Illinois, Ohio and Michigan. Two bands will be selected by festival judges to perform at the evening concert on a program with college bands at Notre Dame.

The jazz ensemble, directed by Len King, was a Class AAA finalist at the recent Oak Lawn Jazz Festival and was the winner of the Class AAA contest at the Western Illinois University jazz festival in Macomb.

Sophomore David Creagh represented Rolling Meadows High School in the finals of the Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation Leadership Seminar. David participated in a discussion centered around the question: "Were Our Founding Fathers True Democrats?"

Three Arlington High School students received high ratings at the recent Illinois Office Education Assn. state contest and conference.

Margo Baranowski placed fourth in records management; Judy Blaszczyński, fourth place in accounting; and Kathy Reckling placed third in individual student job manual. As a third place winner, Miss Reckling will enter the national competition at Topeka, Kan.

Chris Strom was elected as one of three candidates who will represent Illinois and run for a national office at the conference. She plans to run for historian, an office she is currently holding on the state level.

GLENN KILLOREN and Matt Penn portray Peter and Jerry in Fremd High School's production of "Zoo Story" by Edward Albee. The play is one of three modern American plays, including "Chamber Music" and "A View From the Bridge," which will be presented at 7:30 p.m. today, Friday, Saturday and April 10, and at 3 p.m. April 11 at the school, 1000 S. Quentin Rd., Palatine.

Bicycle decorating contest, pony rides at July 4th fest

A bicycle decorating contest and pony rides in the park are the newest additions to the day-long list of festivities planned by the Rolling Meadows Fourth of July committee.

The committee, chaired by Dick and Karen Trieber, is coordinating the day-long celebration in Kimball Hill Park. Representatives from many city organizations, clubs and groups have shown an interest in setting up and operating booths at a carnival.

The Triebers still are seeking volunteers who wish to play "target" in the dunking booth. Other traditional carnival attractions also are planned such as water fights, games conducted by the park district and a country fair.

Will Hutchinson, parade chairman, said several organizations are planning to enter floats for judging in the parade.

The group has arranged for four marching bands to perform during the parade. A battle of the bands is scheduled later during the day.

Clergy in the city are finalizing plans for an ecumenical service to be held in the park, perhaps shortly before the fireworks display at dusk.

Groups interested in entering the parade or operating booths at the carnival may contact Marge Alt at 398-3730.

Dist. 15 to decide budget cuts soon

342 teachers disagreed with the administration proposal to eliminate 39 teaching jobs.

The majority of the teachers also objected to the proposed cuts in special education programs.

The board plans to consider the teacher and parent opinions in its Saturday decision on budget cuts. Board members Tuesday said they will discuss additional sources of revenue for the district to help prevent a deficit.

Festival brings money—and friends—for St. Colette

by JERRY THOMAS

When the St. Colette's parish festival committee members meet, they need a room as big as a ballfield.

More than 600 persons volunteered to present the annual parish festival that represents the major fund-raising effort for the Rolling Meadows parish.

Ask anyone who has ever chaired a carnival or festival committee and he'll tell you there are usually six workers in a committee of 15 persons — and you're a lucky devil of a chairman if you can find 15 volunteers.

At St. Colette's, it's a different story.

NOT ONLY has the parish been successful in recruiting more than 600 workers from within the parish and outside community, but the festival itself is very well attended, and a definite money-maker.

"Making money for the parish may have been how it all started three years ago, when the festival was first thought of, but it's become much more than that," John Rock said. Rock, one of the first chairmen of the 'Good Times' ahead at St. Colette

"Let The Good Times Roll," a parish festival at St. Colette Catholic Parish, 3900 Meadow Dr., Rolling Meadows, offers four evenings of entertainment at 7:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday and April 9 and 10.

Food and refreshments are available in a cabaret atmosphere that features five lively new shows.

Tickets may be obtained in advance at $5 per person at the Meadows Pharmacy, 3407 Kirchoff Rd., Central Pharmacy, 675 W. Central Rd., or by phoning Ald. John Rock 259-9114. Tickets also may be obtained for $6 at the door.

This year the festival includes an "All You Can Eat Spaghetti Dinner." The dinner includes spaghetti with meat sauce, garlic bread, dessert and a beverage, which will be served in the school basement from 6 to 7:30 p.m.

Adult price is $2 and for children under 12, $1. A festival tickets is not needed to attend the dinner, which will be served all four nights of the festival.

event and a city alderman, still is involved as a finance officer for the festival.

Rock said he accepted the cochairmanship with Bob Ulbrich the year the festival was proposed and "had no idea what they were talking about, or I probably would not have done it." Rock said he attended "lots of festivals in other parishes that year and decided after seeing what went on that I'd better get busy recruiting volunteers."

"WOULD YOU BELIEVE we got about 500 volunteers and almost the whole community came out to help," he added. "We made money that year and more important, we made friends, and the festival has gotten bigger and better every year," Rock said.

In order to prepare for the four-night performance, the parish closes its school for spring vacation April 1-11.

Fire Dept. Lt. Ted Loesch, who is both chairman and performer in one of the shows this year, said one year preparation for the event involved tearing out brick walls that separated classrooms.

"Now we take down removable partitions between classrooms to transform them into cabarets, where four of the five shows are performed," he said.

ADDITIONAL CLASSROOMS are called holding rooms and are used to entertain guests who are waiting to view a show. Entertainment and drinks are available in the "holding rooms."

Loesch said, "When I was in Canada, fishing, my wife signed me up as chairman of a show. I've been a barber, fireman, carpenter, electrician and glazier and here I was, faced with putting on a large-scale theatrical production. I was terrified and talentless," he added.

"Since then I've found out it's been fun and sometimes a panic or disappointment, like when your lead singer leaves town a couple of days before the show," he said.

Loesch recruited the Rev. Brian Simpson of the parish, who also is the fire department chaplain, to act in the show as one of the calypso dancers.

"WE ARE ALL amateurs — housewives, city officials, young people in the community and guys who do other things for a living and get together to put on the festival," Loesch said.

"I think it's one of the greatest things that happened to St. Colette's," James Niesen said. Niesen, also a former room chairman, talked about how the festival idea began three years ago.

"I was on the school board and a member of the finance committee when we decided the parish needed extra money. We asked people for fund-raising ideas and that's how the festival got its start," Niesen said.

"IT'S BROUGHT the parish money. Last year's festival netted the parish about $20,000 in funds. The money goes into a general fund to help defray expenses of operating the school or any other expense money is needed for. But I think at this point that the best result of the festival is the fact that it makes us all work together," he added.

As this year's preparation for the festival go into final dress rehearsal, over-all festival chairmen Tony Tarchynski and Ron Weber hope for even a greater money maker.

They say the festival already has succeeded in its other goal — that of bringing the community together.

Veeery interesting — the way Barb Suchecki plays the part.

After the show is over Carol Johnson's pictures will still tell the story.

by PAM BIGFORD

Elementary school teachers who are members of the North Suburban Unified Bargaining Council (NSUBC) will meet Wednesday to complete a platform for teacher contract bargaining which may include teachers refusing to begin school in September if their contracts have not been settled.

The bargaining coalition, associated with the statewide Illinois Education Assoc., represents about 2,400 teachers in 15 north suburban districts.

Northwest suburban affiliates include unions in Prospect Heights Dist. 23, River Trails Dist. 26, Mount Prospect Dist. 57, Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 and the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization. The Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 union will consider membership Friday.

CLAIRE HYMAN, NSUBC chairman, said the members will vote on a proposition of "no contract — no work," meaning that teachers whose contracts are not settled by September would refuse to begin the school year until they have a contract.

Teachers beginning the school year without a contract has not been uncommon in the Northwest suburbs, though bargaining usually begins in February or March.

Of the member districts, Dist. 23 settled in October; Dist. 26 signed its contract in December; Dist. 57 settled in September after school began; and Dist. 59 reached an 11th-hour agreement the day before school started. NSUBC is bargaining for its first contract this year. Dist. 21 did not settle until after school began in September.

Members will vote on other platform positions including negotiated procedures for reducing staff that provide seniority for tenure teachers, due process for nonrenewal teachers and adequate rehiring procedure; cost-of-living raises;

Parity, or raising elementary teachers' pay to the level of high school teachers; a master contract in every district; a negotiated early retirement plan; and negotiating only one-year contracts with a common expiration date for all NSUBC members.

METHODS FOR REDUCING teaching staffs have been of particular concern to teachers this year because of declining enrollment and grim financial pictures.

Ms. Hyman said part of the "no contract — no work" proposal is that all unions that plan to go on strike should go together and that none would return to work until they all do.

However, the member unions will not automatically be committed to striking if their contracts are not signed by the first day of school, Ms.

Hyman said. "Each local will make that decision on its own, but the point is that if they do decide to strike, they will all go together," she said.

Ms. Hyman said if the goals are passed, the member unions will be committed to working toward them. If they do not meet all the goals, they will have to get authorization from the NSUBC before they can sign their contracts.

All of the Northwest suburban member districts have contracts which expire this year and will be negotiating for next year. Dist. 21 has a two-year contract.

THE BARGAINING coalition was formed last spring to set collective bargaining goals for the member unions and to research financial backgrounds of school districts.

The coalition will consider an "action program" for the coming year, including renewed investigation into property tax underassessments, examining school district consolidation, and improving teacher fringe benefits.

Last year the coalition charged that more than $50 million in under assessments of 18 commercial properties in the northern suburbs were robbing schools of $4 million in tax revenue. Ms. Hyman said County Tax Assessor Thomas Tully refused to meet with the coalition.

3 agents appeal realty license ruling

Three Palatine real estate agents have filed an appeal with the Illinois Real Estate Examining Committee following the committee's recent recommendation that their licenses be revoked.

E. T. Cunningham, attorney for John and Loretta Olson and Clifford Kortas, said the appeal charges the committee's findings merely restated the charges in the original complaint filed against the three by the Illinois Dept. of Registration and Education.

Cunningham said the appeal also says the committee did not give proper consideration to the evidence presented by the defendants.

IN ADDITION, the attorney said the committee regularly conferred with department of registration officials during the proceedings, which he said made the procedure somewhat one-sided against the brokers.

Cunningham said the appeal also states that a majority of the evidence presented by the department of registration was hearsay from witnesses.

The Olsons and Kortas, agents for the Olsons' company Vacation Sites Inc., Hoffman Estates, were charged with deception in connection with land trade deals in which nearly 100 Chicago area customers traded their Illinois recreational property as a down-payment for land in Wisconsin.

The department of registration and witnesses for the department said customers who traded their Illinois land remained liable for mortgage payments on both sides after the trades.

The committee found the three in violation of seven counts of the Real Estate Brokers and Salesman Licensing Act and recommended their licenses be revoked.

THE RECOMMENDATION, which came following a review of testimony from three days of hearings, will be forwarded to Ronald E. Stackler, department director, along with the appeal.

Stackler has the option to grant a rehearing before the committee, conduct a hearing of his own or deny a rehearing and issue a final order.

Cunningham said the only finding of fact which he did not dispute was the committee's charge that the three had failed to state on their contracts that the documents were binding real estate contracts, which is required by law.

Chicago spared in nationwide Teamsters' strike

by LEA TONKIN

The Chicago area apparently was spared a local Teamsters' strike today as truckers in Eastern cities began to pull their rigs off the road, starting the first nationwide Teamsters strike in history.

There were indications, however, that many drivers would continue to work under temporary agreements, including truckers in the Chicago area.

Louis Peick, representing Chicago Teamsters Local 705, said Chicago-area leaders have been told to line up agreements with local employers. Another Chicago union official said he expected 80 per cent of the 40,000 area truckers to work under interim agreements.

A Teamsters official said drivers in Detroit, New York, and Columbus, Ohio, went on strike at 12:01 a.m., Eastern time. There are 400,000 Teamsters affected by the negotiations.

As the midnight deadline approached, national union leaders told local union officials to negotiate their own contracts or "shut 'em down at midnight."

The union negotiators also offered the trucking industry an interim three-year contract offer.

The proposed offer calls for a total of $1.75 in wage hikes during the next three years; three cents a mile allowances increase; and $17-a-week hike in health, welfare and pension contributions.

THE TAKE-IT-OR-LEAVE-IT deal offered the Trucking Employers Inc. was simple: Sign the contract or face a strike at 12:01 a.m. today. Pickets were scheduled to be up early this morning if the interim pact was not signed.

The trucking industry's original offer was to boost the $7.18 to $7.33 hourly truckers' wage 85 cents during the next three years. In addition, over-the-road truckers were offered a two-cents hike to the present 18-cent-a-mile allowance limit during the next three years.

The employers also originally offered an $11-a-week increase in the current $44-a-week contribution to the health, welfare and pension fund.

Labor Sec. W. J. Usery was sitting in on marathon negotiating sessions between the Teamsters and the trucking industry at the Arlington Park Hilton Hotel in Arlington Heights.

HIGH HOPES FOR a settlement covering more than 400,000 drivers and warehousemen across the country faded as the time grew shorter.

A Teamsters' strike — the first nationwide walkout by the giant union yet — could have a crippling effect on many segments of the nation's sputtering economy. The Teamsters involved haul 60 per cent of the nation's manufactured goods.

Even if a last-minute agreement were reached, there were calls for wildcat walkouts.

Teamster officials from Pennsylvania and Oklahoma said locals were being advised throughout the nation to seek a local settlement with their individual employers outside the master agreement. Teamsters terms were to remain intact.

THE OKLAHOMA OFFICIAL said he was instructing (Continued on Page 13)

Communities scrambling for money

A Herald staff report

Northwest suburban communities and municipalities throughout Illinois are facing hard times, a situation which is affecting everything from street sweeping to possible increases in property taxes.

Locally, governmental leaders are tightening the belt on spending — eliminating some programs, rejecting requests for personnel increases and limiting wage increases to about 6 per cent, in most cases.

It is not a crisis, but it is becoming increasingly difficult for revenue to keep up with the spiraling costs of operations, finance directors say.

The common objective in the new fiscal year is to provide existing services without an increase in costs. Financial worry and penny-pinching is evident throughout the state.

"WE'RE JUST having a hell of a time keeping up," said Peoria Assistant City Mgr. A. Fred Timmerman.

"For example, we buy something like 500,000 gallons of gasoline a year. It was 20 to 22 cents a gallon several years ago (without tax). Now we're paying 40 to 42 cents a gallon."

The result in Peoria, Timmerman

said, will be a property tax rate increase of 14 or 14½ cents per $100 of assessed valuation this year, which will allow the town's $19 million budget to be balanced. It also will allow a 7 per cent pay hike for the city's 800 employees.

The situation is worse in towns that have been hit hard by unemployment because when people are out of work they buy fewer goods and their communities get less sales tax.

MOST NORTHWEST suburban communities have managed to balance their books this year, but Mount Prospect is facing a deficit of $400,000 and Elk Grove Village has been forced to make some large cuts in spending since last October when a deficit of $270,000 was projected.

Mount Prospect Village Pres. Robert D. Teichert Wednesday said it is "not a panic situation."

"The problem is more severe in the minds of the people than it is in fact," he said.

Tuesday night, the Mount Prospect Village Board voted to impose on residents a $4 per month direct garbage collection charge. It is hoped the new (Continued on Page 10)

3 agents appeal realty license ruling

Three Palatine real estate agents have filed an appeal with the Illinois Real Estate Examining Committee following the committee's recent recommendation that their licenses be revoked.

E. T. Cunningham, attorney for John and Loretta Olson and Clifford Kortas, said the appeal charges the committee's findings merely restated the charges in the original complaint filed against the three by the Illinois Dept. of Registration and Education.

Cunningham said the appeal also says the committee did not give proper consideration to the evidence presented by the defendants.

IN ADDITION, the attorney said the committee regularly conferred with department of registration officials during the proceedings, which he said made the procedure somewhat one-sided against the brokers.

Cunningham said the appeal also states that a majority of the evidence presented by the department of registration was hearsay from witnesses.

The Olsons and Kortas, agents for the Olsons' company Vacation Sites Inc., Hoffman Estates, were charged with deception in connection with land trade deals in which nearly 100 Chicago area customers traded their Illinois recreational property as a down-payment for land in Wisconsin.

The department of registration and witnesses for the department said customers who traded their Illinois land remained liable for mortgage payments on both sides after the trades.

The committee found the three in violation of seven counts of the Real Estate Brokers and Salesman Licensing Act and recommended their licenses be revoked.

April Fool pranks perpetuate an historic tradition

by JILL BETTNER

Better taste the white stuff in the sugar bowl before dumping a big spoonful in your morning coffee. Think twice about going through a week's worth of trash to find that lottery ticket a friend says is worth $1 million. In fact, just to be safe, don't believe half of what anybody tells you all day today.

It's April Fool's Day, beloved holiday of tricksters and practical jokers everywhere and the bane of all the gullible, trusting souls who inevitably become their victims.

Nobody is quite sure how April Fool's Day got started, but although the actual origins of the holiday are obscure, there are several interesting theories.

SOME SAY IT IS derived from ancient New Year festivals celebrating the vernal equinox and the coming of spring — a time when even the capricious weather plays tricks.

In most versions, France gets the credit (or the blame, depending on how you feel about it) for designating April 1 as "All Fools Day."

Apparently, the day grew out of the confusion that was created when France adopted the Gregorian calendar in 1582. Up until that time, the New Year — traditionally a time for gift-giving and visiting friends — had ended April 1. The Gregorian calendar, however, moved the holiday back to its current date, Jan. 1.

A few conservative Frenchmen, so the story goes, refused to accept the new date. Others, who were just more forgetful that stubborn, kept showing up at friends' houses at the wrong time by mistake. Anyway, they were all laughed at and called (guess what) April Fools.

SOME TRIVIA experts trace the beginnings of the holiday back to Biblical times, connecting it to an incident

in the story of Noah and the Ark. This version says the practice of sending friends on fool's errands started when Noah, wrongly thinking the flood had subsided, sent a dove out from the Ark on a futile search for land.

Another religious explanation associates the origin of fool's errands with tricks played on Christ by his foes to mock Him.

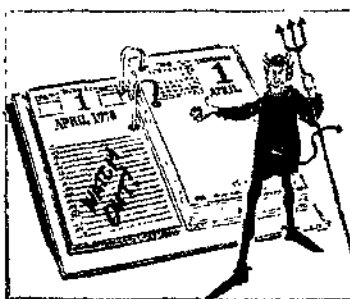

Still another version has its roots in Medieval times. According to this story, the holiday can be traced to a time when insane asylum patients were released for a few hours each year on the first day of April. Cruel crowds reportedly goaded the patients into doing things that were impossible for them and then laughed while the poor patients struggled.

Whatever the real story is, April Fool's Day has evolved into a day of impostors and absurdity relished by pranksters around the world.

In Scotland, the first of April is the time for "hunting the gowk" or cuckoo, the symbol of fools throughout Europe generally.

A Frenchman tricked by a friend is called a Poisson d'Avril or April Fish, meaning one who has been easily caught in an April Fool's Day joke. The day is also popular in Italy, Spain, Portugal, Sweden, Germany and Norway. The last two countries celebrate with hilarity on the last day as well as the first day of April.

Of all the customs associated with April Fool's Day, Mexico has one of the most unusual. South of the border, the day for fooling is Dec. 28. On that date, anyone clever enough to trick a friend into lending him one of his possessions doesn't have to give it back.

Rolling Meadows High School's jazz ensemble has been selected to perform in the high school division of the Notre Dame collegiate jazz festival in South Bend, Ind., Saturday.

Jazz groups were selected by audition only. Rolling Meadows was chosen as one of 15 bands from Indiana, Illinois, Ohio and Michigan. Two bands will be selected by festival judges to perform at the evening concert on a program with college bands at Notre Dame.

The jazz ensemble, directed by Len King, was a Class AAA finalist at the recent Oak Lawn Jazz Festival and was the winner of the Class AAA contest at the Western Illinois University jazz festival in Macomb.

The Chicago chapter of the Junior Chamber of Commerce and Industry hosted the recent seminar, which included discussions, lectures, a tour of the Chicago Historical Society and an evening at the Goodman Theater production of "1776."

Three Arlington High School students received high ratings at the recent Illinois Office Education Assn. state contest and conference.

Margo Baranowski placed fourth in records management; Judy Blaszczyński, fourth place in accounting, and Kathy Rockling placed third in individual student job manual. As a third place winner, Miss Rockling will enter the national competition at Topeka, Kan.

Chris Strom was elected as one of three candidates who will represent Illinois and run for a national office at the conference. She plans to run for historian, an office she is currently holding on the state level.

from three days of hearings, will be forwarded to Ronald E. Stackler, department director, along with the appeal.

Stackler has the option to grant a rehearing before the committee, conduct a hearing of his own or deny a rehearing and issue a final order.

Cunningham said the only finding of fact which he did not dispute was the committee's charge that the three had failed to state on their contracts that the documents were binding real estate contracts, which is required by law.

The attorney said, however, that other real estate contracts fail to state this condition, and to ask that the licenses of the three be revoked because of violating the law is "unreasonable."

Cunningham said contracts now issued by the Olsons, who are still doing business, although not as Vacation Sites Inc., carry the binding contract clause.

Paul Shandling, attorney who is handling the case for the department of registration, was unavailable for comment Wednesday.

Cunningham said he is awaiting word from the department on the next step in the case.

Story of 2 deaf programs: much progress after split

THE HERALD Thursday, April 1, 1976 Section 1 —5

by PAM BIGFORD
Four pairs of hands answer a teacher's question in sign language. Four sets of lips call out the accompanying word. Four deaf children learn a little more about getting along in a hearing world.

The four are in a 13-student deaf education program sponsored by the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization at Kensington School, 201 S. Evanston, Arlington Heights.

A few miles away in Ridge School, 650 Ridge Ave., Elk Grove Village, six other deaf children are equally busy, working just as hard toward the same goals, supervised by the same organization, learning the same subjects.

THE RIDGE DEAF children were classmates of those in Kensington until this year. The six were moved to a newly created program in Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 after a three-month controversy over serious inadequacies in the NSSEO program.

Both schools are working to create programs to solve these problems.

At Kensington, a new speech development teacher and principal have been hired. A program to teach the hearing children sign language has been expanded.

Instead of the deaf children being segregated at lunch and recess, they are encouraged to join the other children. Fifth graders are allowed to be patrol guards just like the hearing fifth graders.

A GROUP HAS BEEN started so that parents of deaf children can discuss their common problems. The Kensington PTA included the parent group in their activities.

"The speech development program has really improved," said parent Carol Stark, echoing other parents. "I can tell the difference in my son. He's getting about 3 1/2 hours of speech development a week, where last year he was getting about 20 minutes."

Many parents blamed the poor social integration of the children on a lack of leadership from the former administration. The new principal, Richard Bennett, received nothing but praise from parents.

MOST PARENTS said they are very pleased with the acceptance of their children this year by the hearing students. Other parents said there is progress only because there was nowhere to go but up.

Lorraine Kelly teaches sign language before school to 88 hearing children who come early because they want to learn it.

OTHER PARENTS said the Kensington program has improved in some ways, but serious problems remain.

The deaf program as a whole has only six girls, and three of them are at Ridge. Parents Marie Burks and Carol Engler said the split in the program has limited their daughters socially by limiting their girlfriends.

Some parents say nothing has been

Parents' revelations sparked split

The deaf education program sponsored by the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization (NSSEO) split last summer after parents exposed serious inadequacies in the way it was operated and demanded it be removed from Arlington Heights Dist. 25.

Parents of 12 of the 19 children in the program housed in Kensington School in Arlington Heights signed a petition last May to have the program removed.

Charges levied by parents included: Inadequate speech development program, placement of emotionally disturbed children in deaf classes; lack of correlation between the elementary and junior high programs and a lack of social integration of the deaf at Kensington.

NSSEO Director Edward McDonald said some of the parents' complaints were valid.

McDonald recommended the program remain at Kensington because he said that changing the program's location would not solve its problems.

When the NSSEO board voted to keep the program at Kensington, the Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 Board of Education decided to offer an alternative deaf education program for the six deaf children within its boundaries.

done about removing children who are both deaf and emotionally disturbed from the classroom.

BENNETT SAID none of the deaf children have been diagnosed as emotionally disturbed, and he was not aware of any excessive disruption problems in the deaf classes.

At Ridge, a whole new program was formed and is under NSSEO supervision. Classroom teacher Marilyn Grodrian is assisted by one aide. A speech therapist works with the children every afternoon, and Ridge has its own learning disabilities teacher.

The children eat lunch, have recess and gym class and be patrol guards with the hearing students.

Ridge parents said they are very happy with the program and so far have no complaints.

SOME PARENTS said their children's speech has improved not only because of the new speech therapist, but because their children's new involvement with the hearing students has motivated them to want to talk.

"Last year my son didn't even play with the hearing children at Kensington, and this year at Ridge he's on the football team," said Nancy Ford, a leader in the fight to move the program.

Carolyn Best said her daughter's speech has improved "100 per cent" this year and credits it to her daughter's feeling of "total acceptance."

"LAST YEAR my daughter said she hated school," Mrs. Best said. "This year she never complains."

Parents said their children do not miss their Kensington classmates as much as they feared they would. Irene Flagg said her son never even mentions his old friends anymore.

Most of the Ridge parents remain bitter toward the Kensington program and insist their children will not go back to Kensington if the programs are ever reunited.

RIDGE SCHOOL students Suzy Best and Billy Mueller hold an impromptu puppet show in their deaf education class. Parents said their deaf children are much happier since they were moved from the deaf program at Kensington School, Arlington Heights.

we would straighten things out. We have kept our promise and I hope they can see that."

McDonald said if the deaf students were brought back together NSSEO would be able to provide a "more diversified program."

THE RIDGE PARENTS said they never intended to split the program — they wanted the entire class removed from Kensington. But even though the program split, parents from both schools say their action focused attention on the program's inadequacies.

"It was very beneficial that the parents' group was so vocal," Mrs. Rentdorff said. "You don't get a second chance to give our kids language development and self-confidence."

"You don't have to worry about hearing kids who automatically get the best education a district can provide. But for my son, who really needs these extra things, they weren't there," she said.

"We're going to have to take a wait-and-see attitude," Mrs. Rentdorff said. "I know there's going to be mistakes made, but this time I think it will all work out."

Teachers to mull 'no pact-no work'

by PAM BIGFORD
Elementary school teachers who are members of the North Suburban Unified Bargaining Council (NSUBC) will meet Wednesday to complete a platform for teacher contract bargaining which may include teachers refusing to begin school in September if their contracts have not been settled.

The bargaining coalition, associated with the statewide Illinois Education Assoc., represents about 2,400 teachers in 15 north suburban districts.

Northwest suburban affiliates include unions in Prospect Heights Dist. 23, River Trails Dist. 26, Mount Prospect Dist. 57, Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 and the Northwest Suburban Special Education Organization. The Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 union will consider membership Friday.

CLAIRE HYMAN, NSUBC chairman, said the members will vote on a proposition of "no contract — no work," meaning that teachers whose contracts are not settled by September would refuse to begin the school year until they have a contract.

Teachers beginning the school year without a contract has not been uncommon in the Northwest suburbs, though bargaining usually begins in February or March.

Of the member districts, Dist. 23 settled in October; Dist. 26 signed its contract in December; Dist. 57 settled

$641,000 OKd for township road budget

The Palatine Township Board of Auditors approved a $641,000 budget for the township highway department for fiscal year 1976-77.

The budget is $114,000 higher than last year's $527,000 budget because of an increased appropriation for the Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund, increased rates for general and medical insurance and an estimated $75,000 to $80,000 for asphalt resurfacing.

About a mile-and-a-half of road in Lake Park Estates will be resurfaced once a sanitary sewer system is installed. That installation began in early January and should be completed by May, Robert Bergman, highway commissioner, said.

The department is now taking bids for resurfacing materials, he said.

Installing a sewer system in Lake Park Estates in the northwest corner of the township had been discussed for several years, Bergman said, and resurfacing the roads had been delayed until the project was complete.

The auditors also added about $19,000 to Bergman's estimates for Illinois Municipal Retirement Fund and Social Security payments.

Scout open house April 8

"Getting to Know You" is the theme of an open house for adults who might be interested in working with Palatine Girl Scouts.

The open house will be held from 1 to 3 p.m. April 8 at the home of Kris Howard, Palatine Community Girl Scout chairman, at 1890 Pheasant Tr., Inverness. Interested persons should call Ann Swiatowy, 358-4567, or Sue McPham, 358-9258, who will make transportation arrangements.

in September after school began; and Dist. 59 reached an 11th-hour agreement the day before school started. NSUBC is bargaining for its first contract this year. Dist. 21 did not settle until after school began in September.

Members will vote on other platform positions including negotiated procedures for reducing staff that provide seniority for tenure teachers, due process for non-tenure teachers and adequate rehiring procedure; cost-of-living raises;

Pay, or raising elementary teachers' parity to the level of high school teachers; a master contract in every district; a negotiated early retirement plan; and negotiating only one-year contracts with a common expiration date for all NSUBC members.

METHODS FOR REDUCING teaching staffs have been of particular concern to teachers this year because of declining enrollment and grim financial pictures.

Ms. Hyman said part of the "no contract — no work" proposal is that all unions that plan to go on strike should go together and that none would return to work until they all do.

However, the member unions will not automatically be committed to striking if their contracts are not signed by the first day of school, Ms. Hyman said. "Each local will make that decision on its own, but the point is that if they do decide to strike, they will all go together," she said.

Ms. Hyman said if the goals are passed, the member unions will be committed to working toward them. If they do not meet all the goals, they will have to get authorization from the NSUBC before they can sign their contracts.

All of the Northwest suburban member districts have contracts which expire this year and will be negotiating for next year. Dist. 21 has a two-year contract.

THE BARGAINING coalition was formed last spring to set collective bargaining goals for the member unions and to research financial backgrounds of school districts.

The coalition will consider an "action program" for the coming year, including renewed investigation into property tax underassessments, examining school district consolidation, and improving teacher fringe benefits.

Last year the coalition charged that more than $50 million in under assessments of 18 commercial properties in the northern suburbs were robbing schools of $4 million in tax revenue. Ms. Hyman said County Tax Assessor Thomas Tully refused to meet with the coalition.

Chicago spared in nationwide Teamsters' strike

by LEA TONKIN

The Chicago area apparently was spared a local Teamsters' strike today as truckers in Eastern cities began to pull their rigs off the road, starting the first nationwide Teamsters strike in history.

There were indications, however, that many drivers would continue to work under temporary agreements, including truckers in the Chicago area.

Louis Peick, representing Chicago Teamsters Local 705, said Chicago-area leaders have been told to line up agreements with local employers. Another Chicago union official said he expected 80 per cent of the 40,000 area truckers to work under interim agreements.

A Teamsters official said drivers in Detroit, New York, and Columbus, Ohio, went on strike at 12:01 a.m., Eastern time. There are 400,000 Teamsters affected by the negotiations.

As the midnight deadline approached, national union leaders told local union officials to negotiate their own contracts or "shut 'em down at midnight."

The union negotiators also offered the trucking industry an interim three-year contract offer.

The proposed offer calls for a total of $1.75 in wage hikes during the next three years; three cents a mile allowances increase; and $17-a-week hike in health, welfare and pension contributions.

THE TAKE-IT-OR-LEAVE-IT deal offered the Trucking Employers Inc. was simple: Sign the contract or face a strike at 12:01 a.m. today. Pickets were scheduled to be up early this morning if the interim pact was not signed.

The trucking industry's original offer was to boost the $7.18 to $7.33 hourly truckers' wage 85 cents during the next three years. In addition, over-the-road truckers were offered a two-cents hike to the present 18-cent-a-mile allowance limit during the next three years.

The employers also originally offered an $11-a-week increase in the current $44-a-week contribution to the health, welfare and pension fund.

Labor Sec. W. J. Usery was sitting in on marathon negotiating sessions between the Teamsters and the trucking industry at the Arlington Park Hilton Hotel in Arlington Heights.

HIGH HOPES FOR a settlement covering more than 400,000 drivers and warehousemen across the country faded as the time grew shorter.

A Teamsters' strike — the first nationwide walkout by the giant union yet — could have a crippling effect on many segments of the nation's sputtering economy. The Teamsters involved haul 60 per cent of the nation's manufactured goods.

Even if a last-minute agreement were reached, there were calls for wildcat walkouts.

Teamster officials from Pennsylvania and Oklahoma said locals were being advised throughout the nation to seek a local settlement with their individual employers outside the master agreement. Teamsters terms were to remain intact.

THE OKLAHOMA OFFICIAL said he was instructing (Continued on Page 15)

Money mayhem statewide dilemma

A Herald staff report

Northwest suburban communities and municipalities throughout Illinois are facing hard times, a situation which is affecting everything from street sweeping to possible increases in property taxes.

Locally, governmental leaders are tightening the belt on spending — eliminating some programs, rejecting requests for personnel increases and limiting wage increases to about 6 per cent, in most cases.

It is not a crisis, but it is becoming increasingly difficult for revenue to keep up with the spiraling costs of operations, finance directors say.

The common objective in the new fiscal year is to provide existing services without an increase in costs. Financial worry and penny-pinching is evident throughout the state.

"WE'RE JUST having a hell of a time keeping up," said Peoria Assistant City Mgr. A. Fred Timmerman.

"For example, we buy something like 500,000 gallons of gasoline a year. It was 20 to 22 cents a gallon several years ago (without tax). Now we're paying 40 to 42 cents a gallon."

The result in Peoria, Timmerman said, will be a property tax rate increase of 14 or 14½ cents per $100 of assessed valuation this year, which will allow the town's $19 million budget to be balanced. It also will allow a 7 per cent pay hike for the city's 800 employees.

The situation is worse in towns that have been hit hard by unemployment because when people are out of work they buy fewer goods and their communities get less sales tax.

MOST NORTHWEST suburban communities have managed to balance their books this year, but Mount Prospect is facing a deficit of $400,000 and Elk Grove Village has been forced to make some large cuts in spending since last October when a deficit of $270,000 was projected.

Mount Prospect Village Pres. Robert D. Teichert Wednesday said it is "not a panic situation."

"The problem is more severe in the minds of the people than it is in fact," he said.

Tuesday night, the Mount Prospect Village Board voted to impose on residents a $4 per month direct garbage collection charge. It is hoped the new (Continued on Page 10)

Hearing dates on utility hike likely

The Illinois Commerce Commission today is expected to set hearing dates for proposals by Citizens Utilities Co. to substantially raise water and sewer rates in Mount Prospect.

Mark Goldstein, hearing examiner for the ICC, Wednesday said the utility will present documents supporting its request for a 70 per cent hike in water rates and a 178 per cent increase in sewer rates.

The prehearing conference is scheduled for 1:30 p.m. in the State of Illinois Building, 160 N. LaSalle St., Chicago.

Citizens Utilities Co., which serves about 20,000 residents of the village's New Town area filed for the rate increases in January. The company submitted two new rate structures for water and one for sewer service. One "step" is an immediate increase, the second step is a future hike.

THE "STEP ONE" water rate increase is designed to make up for losses incurred by the company since the last rate increase in 1974, which company officials contend was not sufficient to meet operating costs.

That rate structure would raise the average water bill by 31 per cent. Customers now pay $1.31 per 1,000 gallons of water a month. Under the step one proposal, the rate would increase to $1.81.

A "step two" increase, designed to meet projected needs by the company, would raise water rates by 70 per cent over the current rate. Under (Continued on Page 4)

Panel seeks funding for downtown

Amid last-minute efforts to balance Mount Prospect's 1976-77 budget, the village board has been confronted with yet another request for funds.

The Business District Development and Redevelopment Commission (BDDRC) has asked the board to allocate $14,500 for retaining outside consultants to complete plans for redeveloping the downtown business area.

Robert Bennett, chairman of the commission, said by retaining Barton-Aschman Associates Inc. of Chicago as consultants for the estimated $1.6 million project, a comprehensive conceptual plan would be finalized with 120 days. He said that by completing a workable plan before the end of the year, the village would better qualify for federal funding.

"If we work on the plan ourselves," Bennett said, "the estimated time of the plan's completion would be late in 1977. We're not comfortable at all with that date."

BENNETT, presenting the commission's first status report to the board since last May, said the only advantage of the commission working out the plan itself would be the cost of hiring the consultants. "However, we believe time is of the essence," he added.

Mayor Robert D. Teichert said he favors completing the master plan before the end of 1976, so the village will be eligible for more federal funding. "There'll be a hell of a lot of crying (Continued on Page 6)

April Fool pranks perpetuate an historic tradition

by JILL BETTNER

Better taste the white stuff in the sugar bowl before dumping a big spoonful in your morning coffee. Think twice about going through a week's worth of trash to find that lottery ticket a friend says is worth $1 million. In fact, just to be safe, don't believe half of what anybody tells you all day today.

It's April Fool's Day, beloved holiday of tricksters and practical jokers everywhere and the bane of all the gullible, trusting souls who inevitably become their victims.

Nobody is quite sure how April Fool's Day got started, but although the actual origins of the holiday are obscure, there are several interesting theories.

SOME SAY IT IS derived from ancient New Year festivals celebrating the vernal equinox and the coming of spring — a time when even the capricious weather plays tricks.

In most versions, France gets the credit (or the blame, depending on how you feel about it) for designating April 1 as "All Fools Day."

Apparently, the day grew out of the confusion that was created when France adopted the Gregorian calendar in 1582. Up until that time, the New Year — traditionally a time for gift-giving and visiting friends — had ended April 1. The Gregorian calendar, however, moved the holiday back to its current date, Jan. 1.

A few conservative Frenchmen, so the story goes, refused to accept the new date. Others, who were just more forgetful that stubborn, kept showing up at friends' houses at the wrong time by mistake. Anyway, they were all laughed at and called (guess what) April Fools.

SOME TRIVIA experts trace the beginnings of the holiday back to Biblical times, connecting it to an incident in the story of Noah and the Ark. This version says the practice of sending friends on fool's errands started when Noah, wrongly thinking the flood had subsided, sent a dove out from the Ark on a futile search for land.

Another religious explanation associates the origin of fool's errands with tricks played on Christ by his foes to mock Him.

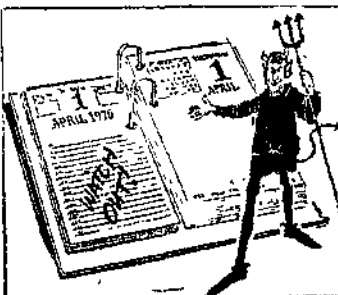

Still another version has its roots in Medieval times. According to this story, the holiday can be traced to a time when insane asylum patients were released for a few hours each year on the first day of April. Cruel crowds reportedly goaded the patients into doing things that were impossible for them and then laughed while the poor patients struggled.

Whatever the real story is, April Fool's Day has evolved into a day of impostors and absurdity relished by pranksters around the world.

In Scotland, the first of April is the time for "hunting the gowk" or cuckoo, the symbol of fools throughout Europe generally.

A Frenchman tricked by a friend is called a Poisson d'Avril or April Fish, meaning one who has been easily caught in an April Fool's Day joke. The day is also popular in Italy, Spain, Portugal, Sweden, Germany and Norway. The last two countries celebrate with hilarity on the last day as well as the first day of April.

Of all the customs associated with April Fool's Day, Mexico has one of the most unusual. South of the border, the day for fooling is Dec. 28. On that date, anyone clever enough to trick a friend into lending him one of his possessions doesn't have to give it back.

A program of mime techniques, illustrating the wide range of non-verbal expression, will be presented by mime artist T. Daniel for students at Jay School, 1835 W. Pheasant, Mount Prospect, at schools 10:45 a.m. and 12:55 p.m. Friday.

High School Dist. 214

An arts and craft fair and used book sale will be held from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and Sunday in Buffalo Grove High School's gymnasium, 1100 W. Dundee Rd., Buffalo Grove.

Sculpture, wood crafts, ceramics, macrame, jewelry and assorted craft combinations will be exhibited. Customized and learn-to-do-it-yourself crafts also will be featured.

Hard-cover books, paperbacks, children's literature encyclopedias, text books, sheet music, records and posters will be available at the used book sale in the lobby of the gymnasium.

Proceeds from the event, sponsored by the school's Choral Guild, will be used in summer music camp scholarships and for other projects in support of the high school's choral department.

In general...

The Illinois Junior Academy of Science will hold a regional science fair from 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday, at the Wheeling High School fieldhouse, 900 S. Elmhurst Rd., Wheeling. The fair is open to visitors from 1 to 3 p.m.

More than 500 students from junior and senior high schools in the Northwest area plan to exhibit original science projects. The projects will be judged by a committee of industrial representatives and science teachers from the participating schools. Winners will be selected from 16 categories, including astronomy, physics, zoology, aeronautics, chemistry and electronics.

Student winners will then go on to exhibit their projects at the state exposition in May, at the University of Illinois, Champaign-Urbana, sponsored by the Illinois Junior Academy of Science.

Candidates' night today in Dist. 59

An Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 candidates' night will be held at 8 p.m. today at the Elk Grove Township Hall, 2400 S. Arlington Heights Rd., Arlington Heights, by the district's School Community Council.

Candidates running in the April 10 school board election for three 3-year terms are: Emil Bahmaier, Charles Canupp, Erwin Poklacki and Judith Zanca.

the higher proposal, residents using 8,000 gallons a month or less would be charged a flat rate of $2.25 per 1,000 gallons.

Write-in candidate bids for clerk's job

Frances A. Morava, a 22-year resident of Prospect Heights, will run as a write-in candidate for clerk in the city's May 22 municipal election.

Mrs. Morava, 45, 418 W. Olive St., said she only decided to run for office this week because she was not "totally pleased with all of the candidates running."

She is challenging Nancy Lambert, 30 E. Stonegate Dr., and Jo Ellen Claves, 203 N. Parkway St., for the clerk's post.

The deadline for the filing of nominating petitions for the election was earlier this month. However, Mrs. Morava can unofficially enter the race as a write-in candidate for clerk.

Mrs. Morava has been a member of the citizens' committee which worked to form the Prospect Heights Public Library.

She has also worked full-time in the communications department of Holy Family Hospital and formed a Prospect Heights women's club. She and her husband, Gil, have two daughters.

The rate change would result in an increase in water bills for customers using an average of 5,000 gallons a month from the current charge of $6.60 to $11.25 a month.

SEWAGE RATES for sewage collected by the utility, but processed by the Metropolitan Sanitary District, would increase from $8 to $10.80 a month — about 80 per cent. Rates for sewage processed directly by the utility company would jump from $9.50 to $17 a month, or 178 per cent.

The village is opposing the rate hikes, and residents of the New Town area are organizing against the proposal as well.

A review of the quality of water provided customers by Citizens Utilities also is scheduled for 10:30 a.m. before the prehearing conference on rate increases. The utility is under order by the ICC to institute a water quality monitoring system and make other changes in its operation. The order was issued after residents complained of impurities in the water.

Gettin' hitched—April Fool style

by DIANE MERMIGAS

It was hard to tell who was fooling whom Tuesday afternoon.

The blushing bride was a man who stood six feet tall in a well-padded lace gown, holding a bouquet of onions, garlic, carrots and other assorted vegetables.

The groom was a petite woman dressed in black tails and top hat with an uncanny resemblance to Harpo Marx.

About 50 senior citizens, dressed in their Sunday best, watched attentively from metal folding chairs while the "odd couple" exchanged rare vows of marriage, surrounded by an even stranger looking wedding party.

THE SENIOR citizens thought it would be funny to have the men and women exchange their traditional roles in the wedding party, especially with April Fool's Day around the corner.

Actually, it was a mock wedding ceremony staged by members of the River Trails Park District Senior Citizens Club to honor the 50th wedding anniversary of Edward and Josephine Watrin of Mount Prospect.

The "maid of honor" stood 6 feet 5 inches tall, and was dressed in a ribbon-trimmed gown and floppy-brimmed hat of flowers. Gaudy earrings dangled from the ears of most of the "bridesmaids," whose undershirts peeked out from their lace gowns.

The ushers wore fake mustaches, and a flower girl, dressed in a dotted top and ballet skirt, threw fake flower petals on the audience.

DO YOU PROMISE "to rub his back when he complains and bring him a little schnapps when gets home?" the make-believe minister asked.

"I'm sure you believed that it's cheaper for two to live than one, but on that you've been deceived . . . if you think you can live on love alone, forget it," the minister continued.

Then he pronounced them "louse" and "spouse."

Although the scene was a comical one, the mock wedding prompted some real tears of joy.

The couple brushed tears from their eyes as the gathering of seniors indulged in coffee, lively conversation and, of course, some wedding cake.

"WE NEVER EXPECTED this. We have such wonderful friends to do this for us. This is really love and friendship," said Mrs. Watrin.

The couple was surprised by their friends when they entered the park district community center, 1313 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect, for what would have been a weekly meeting of the group.

Instead, the hall was decorated like a church, with flowers and a white runner down the main aisle. A table in the back of the room was heavy with gifts and cards for the occasion, and a gold money tree as a token of best wishes.

"I didn't know what to think when we came in. I was so surprised. It was just like an April Fool's Day joke," said Watrin, who worked for 28 years in the shipyards of Chicago.

"This is better than our first wedding. My knees are still shaking. I'm nervous as a new bride," Mrs. Watrin said. The room was filled with laughter and old friends remembering the days when they, too, were brides and grooms, and younger.

"ISN'T THIS THE most wonderful wedding you've ever been to?" said Marcelle LeClerc, Arlington Heights, the flower girl, who sewed most of the wedding party outfits.

"We love to do these kinds of things. It keeps us young and helps us forget the pain," she said.

And Mrs. Watrin? Well, she was busy recalling the first days of the whirlwind relationship with her husband. They met in a Chicago ballroom and were married seven weeks later.

They still enjoy dancing together and they agree that it seems like only yesterday when they met.

"I don't feel older, but I look at Ed and then look at myself in the mirror and I realize we are older. Our feelings haven't changed and neither has our spirit," she said.

A walk down the aisle for the "odd couple."

At the altar.

A laughing guest.

when federal funds are distributed all around us and we come up with zero," Teichert said. "The (federal) money will be there and our community needs it just as much as any others."

Mount Prospect already has received $90,000 in county-administered Housing and Urban Development funds for two short-range projects included in the complete downtown redevelopment plan. The village received $30,000 for the village hall parking lot and $60,000 for beautification of the new senior citizens center.

Other short-range projects, which would take between two and three years to complete, proposed by the commission include:

- An additional Chicago and North Western Ry. grade-level crossing.
- A new railroad station to be located one block east of where the current station now stands.
- Additional commuter parking facilities. The commission cited the need for creating 350 additional parking spaces.
- Traffic safety improvements, because of the shifts in traffic patterns with the opening of the new bank and postal facilities.
- Coordinated business signs to standardize and beautify signs.

• Beautification of landscaping and sidewalk improvements.
• Street lighting.
• Shopper parking.
Bennett said the commission has been considering plans for improvements that would aid business and help stabilize the downtown area. "We must keep it (the downtown area) from going on the downward trend we've seen within the last 10 years," he said.

The commission suggested the board vote on the requested allocation. However, Teichert deferred any formal action and recommended displaying the tentative plans in village hall, so trustees have a chance to review them and take a vote on the matter at Tuesday's board meeting.

Trustee Leo Flores questioned the necessity of outside advice to complete the comprehensive plan.

"You've approached this on a practical, logical basis and I like what I see," he said. "But do we need this outside advice when the expertise is right here?" Flores noted that $30,000 already has been spent on consultant fees.

"They're (Barton-Aschman) talking a grand a week," Trustee Michael H. Minton said of the $14,500 request. "That's a high fee."

Trustee Theodore J. Wattenberg told the commission, "I think we should do everything possible to implement what you've done. It behooves all of us to revive our downtown."
